BOLSHEVIKIS MAY BE DECLARED ENEMIES

AMERICA AND OTHER POWERS OF ENTENTE MUST DETERMINE IT

Will Decide Status of Russ Radicals as Soon as Their Relations With Germany Are Understood.

MAY BE HELD AS ALLIES OF PRUSSAINS

Washington, Nov. 28.—The American government and the entente allies as well, will determine whether the Bolsheviks are actually to be classed as enemies and active allies of Germany as soon as official advice can be gathered in conference between Bolshevik leaders and German officers.

Yesterday's new dispatch saying German staff officers actually were in Petrograd actively engaged as advisers to Lenin followed by today's news cables that Bolshevik leaders had crossed into the German line for conferences with the German military authorities, were not wholly unexpected to officials here, but they shattered the faint hope that the Bolsheviks might in the end help carry on the war against Prussian militarism.

The developments more than confirmed the contention of those who have held from the first that the Bolsheviks were actually in the hands of Germany seeking to break Russia from her allies.

One of the first acts of the allied government when they learn that the Bolsheviks are actively working with the Germans, undoubtedly will be to withdraw their embassies in Petrograd. This, of course, will include American Ambassador Francis.

Whether the diplomatic corps would go to one of the adjacent neutral countries to await developments, or whether it would move to some other part of Russia, where a new government considered representative of the government rather than of an anarchical faction, might be set up, has not yet been determined.

This will be decided by the developments in Russia. Ambassador Francis has large measures of discretion to act with others of the diplomatic corps in Petrograd and much of his course will have to be determined without frequent consultation with Washington.

Today the state department had no new advice whatever but was expecting some on which judgments might be formed as to the course the government will pursue. Meanwhile the United States is receiving the benefit of what information the entente allies are gathering in Russia and the course of action when finally selected will be the respective governments.

Contact has been established between the Bolshevik leaders in Russia and the German military authorities and negotiations for an armistice are presumably in full swing behind the German lines.

PREPARING NEW SMASH

Austro-German Forces Make Ready to Launch Fresh Attack on Italy.
GREAT ACTIVITIES
ALONG PIAVE LINE
Defenders Determined Not to Let the Invaders
Get Past.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Great activity among the Austro-German divisions all along the Italian front, and reported in official dispatches from Rome received here today are declared to forecast a still greater offensive in the northern sectors, with elaborate preparations for mighty effort to break through.

The dispatch says: "The enemy is making large scale preparations for a still greater offensive in the northern region. Yesterday in the vicinity of Malifa Slappa, large enemy units with machine guns attempted an encircling movement but were counter attacked by a battalion of Alpini and forced to retire leaving in our hands complete sections of machine guns which were immediately turned on the fleeing enemy. Big guns are roaring all along the front, indicating the imminent renewal of a general offensive on the part of the Austro-Germans in a night effort to break through our lines."

FARMERS' RESPONSE TO APPEAL AMPLE
Total Value of Products of American Farms About
$21,000,000,000.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Thanksgiving day finds America's horn of plenty with new high record fullness. Responding faithfully to President Wilson's appeal and the needs of a war torn world, American farmers produced a gross total of $21,000,000,000 worth of farm products, equalling in value the nation's total expenditure in one year of war.

That great total, being the value of all crops, animals and animal products, was $6,500,000 greater than last year's, and more than the combined value of any two previous years. There were record crops of corn, oats, rice, wheat and sweet potatoes, tobacco and beans.

The principal farm crops will reach more than $12,000,000,000 in value, minor

BITTER FIGHT STILL RAGING

British and Germans Keep Up Desperate Battle
for Cambrai.
FONTAINE SCENE OF
TERRIBLE STRUGGLE
After Taking Positions the
Fresh Forces.

British Headquarters in France, Tuesday, Nov. 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Desperate and sanguinary fighting has been raging in and about Fontaine Notre Dame since dawn today, when the British again attacked the strongly held village. Shortly after 9 o'clock it appeared that the assaulting infantry had stormed its way through the village in the face of tremendous machine gun fire both from the houses of the hamlet and from La Folle wood to the southeast. Five hundred German prisoners were taken in the early hours of the fighting.

Two New German Divisions.
Late this afternoon the Germans, however, moved up two new divisions and threw them in for a counter-attack.

The fighting which followed in Fontaine was even more bitter, if possible, than that which occurred in the first rush through the ruined hamlet. At latest reports superior numbers of enemy infantry had pushed the British back through the village again to the west of the outskirts, but the battle still continued with unabated fury.

In the meantime the British line running around Bourlon wood to the northwest was sustaining a heavy assault. The enemy appeared to be determined to regain this important position if it were humanly possible. The whole front from Fontaine to Bourlon wood was the scene of fierce fighting, which at many places was at close quarters. The British line about Bourlon wood is still intact.

TELEGRAPHERS MAKING DEMAND FOR MORE PAY

Operators on Railroads to Move at Once for Increase of Wages.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Mediation of the strike demands of Baltimore & Ohio telegraphers revealed today that railroad telegraphers throughout the U. S. have asked increased wages, eight-hour-day and pay for Sunday work. The demands have been made by the men of the individual systems and not by the order of railroad telegraphers as a whole.

H. B. Perham, president of the union and the men's strike committee conferred here yesterday with G. W. W. Hanger of the board of mediation and conciliation who today went to Baltimore for a session of the mediation conferences with J. M. Davis, vice-president of the road. Other conferences will be held here later in the week.

Strike demand of telegraphers on the Burlington and Illinois Central were settled last week through mediation by Mr. Hanger. In all the cases the men were given increased wages, pay for Sunday overtime and a reduction in the hours of labor.

About 2,300 men are involved in the demands made on the Baltimore & Ohio.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Nearly two hundred athletes from thirty colleges are in Chicago today wearing the symbols of army rank received after three months' intensive work at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. These new officer athletes include enough all-star football players to make up three eleven, shining lights in college baseball, several golfers of championship class, tennis players who hold interstate records, swimmers and trapshooters of more than local reputation.

Watts Valentine, one of the six to win the rank of major at the Fort Sheridan camp, is a former athlete from Shattuck Military academy, Minnesota. Joseph Spaulding, Yale's football captain in 1912, and Henry Gordon Gale, of the University of Chicago star baseball player twenty years ago, received captaincies.

Eight all-American football men who received commissions were: E. J. Allmendinger, Albert Benbrook and James B. Craig, University of Michigan; Paul Des Jardins, University of Chicago; Jesse Spalding, Yale; Knox P. Wheeler, University of Virginia; E. Verwiebe, Harvard, and James Turner, Dartmouth.

Washington, Nov. 28.—All persons subject to the selective military service law, Provost Marshal Crowder announced today, are charged with knowing the law and accompanying regulations and failure to comply with them will be considered a misdemeanor, punishable by a year's imprisonment. Failure also may cause immediate induction into military service and will operate as a waiver of any right or privilege which might otherwise have been claimed.

General Crowder pointed out that all previous exemptions are revoked under a section of the regulations which reads:

DENIAL THAT VON LUDENDORFF HAS GONE TO RUSSIA

Amsterdam, Nov. 28.—An official statement received here from Berlin denies a rumor, attributed to London, that Gen. von Ludendorff, first quartermaster general of the German army, had gone to the Russian front with a number of his staff. It is said that Gen. von Ludendorff is at the western front.

A London despatch on Nov. 24 said that according to advice received from Amsterdam Gen. von Ludendorff had started for the eastern front in connection with the Russian offer of a truce.

GERMANY READY FOR A TRUCE ON ALL THE FRONTS

With All Belligerents, the

BOLSHEVIKI SEND MEN OVER THE LINE

Petrograd, Nov. 28.—Representatives sent by Ensign Krylenko, the Bolshevik commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, have been received in the German lines and informed by the German commander that the Germans have officially consented to immediate negotiations for an armistice on all the fronts of the belligerent countries.

The Germans have set Dec. 2 for a conference for negotiation of an armistice. Ensign Krylenko sent three representatives with instructions to request the German commander of the sector in which the crossing was effected to inquire of the German commander in chief whether it was agreeable to him that representatives be sent for immediate negotiations for an armistice on the fronts of all belligerent countries and incase his response was satisfactory to ask him to fix a time and place for a conference of representatives of both sides. The Bolshevik emissaries crossed the Russian lines at four o'clock yesterday afternoon and were received by the German commander of the sector. A reply was promised at 8 o'clock. At the appointed time the Germans gave official consent to conducting negotiations. The conference was set for Dec. 2.

The removal of General Balueff, commander on the western front is reported by the revolutionary committee at Minsk. He refused to negotiate an armistice with the Germans and has been replaced by a Maximalist. Announcement is made by the Maximalists that they are in control of Tashkent, capital of Russian Turkestan, after four days of fighting.

The military revolutionary committee has seized the customs department.

ENVOYS ARE SENT.

WASHINGTON KEEPS A CLOSE WATCH ON AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA

Washington, Nov. 28.—The conference at Petrograd today of Russian political leaders, which according to a London Times dispatch, is for the purpose of forming a government representative of all parties added to the interest with which official Washington and unofficial Washington as well, is watching the march of developments in that changing capital.

What really lies back of the conference it was too early for officials to judge. It was significant that former members of Kerensky's cabinet were among those who assembled along with the Bolshevik leaders, although the calling in of some members of an overthrown regime, it is recognized, may be a strategic move for effect on the diplomatic corps at Petrograd who have uniformly refused to indicate any recognition of the newly sprung element of power while Russian diplomats and consuls in this country openly repudiate it. Details of the conference were awaited here with considerable concern.

News of the conference followed over night the London report that German staff officers are already in Petrograd acting as military advisers of the government in power. Official confirmation was lacking but if official confirmation comes, it is understood here that the action will be met immediately by this government and its allies putting the Bolshevik government squarely in the status of an ally of Germany. The result would be the immediate withdrawal of the diplomats to the Swedish or some other neutral capital to await instructions from their government, including Washington, and meantime, in this country final orders would be issued heading off supplies for Russia.

The economic effect on Germany would be to make available to it the vast stores of the great Russian empire and the restoration of German prisoners held in Russia, and their utilization for service again at the German front. Meantime, it is believed that Col. House and the allied conference at London is working to close touch with the developments.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

STRICKEN WITH HEART FAILURE AT WORK

Elmer Kabisch Falls Unconscious in Shop and Dies in Ambulance.

While performing his duties in the General Electric works at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, Elmer Kabisch fell unconscious as the result of heart disease and died in the ambulance while being taken to the hospital. Dr. F. J. Schulz, the General Electric company's surgeon, was immediately summoned to the side of the unconscious man and with the prompt aid of other means made an effort to revive him, but to no avail.

Elmer Kabisch was 26 years old, resided at the corner of Wilt and Rockhill streets, and is survived by the widow and an infant son. He is also survived by the father, F. C. Kabisch, and by several brothers and sisters. One of the brothers, Frank M. Kabisch, conducts a meat market at 1123 Rockhill street and before taking employment at the Electric works, Elmer was employed as a clerk in the store. He resigned that position two months ago and took employment with Foreman Rohm in the automatic screw machine department of the General Electric works, on the third floor of building 26, on the north side of Wilt street. A few minutes before striking Mr. Kabisch talked with some of his shop associates and did not complain of being sick. The attack was sudden and unexpected. Coroner J. E. McArdle viewed the remains at the hospital and ordered them removed to the Wellman & Ulmer undertaking parlors, where they will be prepared for burial.

EXCURSIONISTS RETURN.

Enjoyed Four Days With the Soldiers at Camp Shelby.

The personally conducted excursion to Camp Shelby by Agent John E. Ross, over the G. R. & I., was one of the most enjoyable events of its kind ever given to a Fort Wayne crowd. Not an accident or unpleasant incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the 144 people in the party. The trip consumed eight days and offered a four days' visit with the boys at the camp. The soldiers were given great freedom during the visit of their relatives and friends and a good portion of the time was spent down town. En route to Hattiesburg stop-overs were made at Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Fort Oglethorpe and other places of national interest. The cars occupied by the excursionists were attached to G. R. & I. train No. 3, on the homeward trip, and arrived here at 4:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The excursionists extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Ross for the manner in which he looked after their comfort and amusement.

Preparing to Make Last Year in Old Quarters Most Successful of All.

The November monthly meeting of the railroad department committee of management of the Fort Wayne Young Men's Christian association was held Tuesday evening at the railroad department building. Vice Chairman E. Hughes presiding. An interesting feature of the evening was the election of H. L. Bley, general yard master of the Pennsylvania company, as vice chairman of the board and the re-election of W. E. Blessing, recording secretary and J. E. N. Dillon, treasurer. The following committee appointments having been made by Chairman O. E. Maxwell were announced by Vice Chairman Hughes:

House Committee—James Leach, chairman; O. S. Collins, vice chairman; H. L. Bley, E. B. Hughes.

Membership Committee—Ernest F. Stephan, chairman; S. B. Eckenrode, vice chairman; E. W. Gartner, E. B. Hughes.

Religious Work Committee—H. A. Philley, chairman; E. H. May, vice chairman; W. D. Erickson.

Special guests of the evening were E. H. May, assistant division engineer of the Pennsylvania, and Erwin W. Gartner, chief electrician of the Chestnut street shops of the Pennsylvania and Northern Indiana Traction company. They expect to become active in the work of the department.

Very encouraging reports were made by the chairman of the sub-committees and many new plans were discussed for the winter season. One of the important activities will be a still stronger series of lectures and talks given under the auspices of the educational committee. As quite a number of association members have gone to fight for their country, a service flag will be prepared and hung in the front window of the building.

The committee of management expects to make this last year in the old building one of the very best in the long history of the railroad department.

CHANGES AT BOWSER PLANT.

Officers Created to Meet Demand of Growing Business.

PLAYED THEIR FIRST GAME.

The reorganized bowling league of the electric in the G. R. & I. offices had their first games at the Academy alleys last night, when the Engineers won two out of three games from the Caboose and the Cars won out of three from the Rails. The high team scores were made by the Engineers and the high individual score was made by H. Lauer. The scores were as follows: Towles, 119, 125 and 147; Martz, 176, 148 and 176; Getz, 186, 164 and 132; Kalbfeisch, 135, 118 and 99; Brake, 184, 130 and 131; Lauer, 174, 165 and 180; Ackerman, 154, 139 and 124; Klotz, 103, 138 and 157. As stated, this was the first game under the reorganized clubs.

NO LOCAL FREIGHT TOMORROW.

All Fort Wayne steam roads have issued bulletins, announcing that the local freight trains will be annulled tomorrow on account of Thanksgiving. In some instances the crews will be engaged in moving through freight, which is heavy on all roads.

INSTALLING SPRINKLERS.

The Bowser plant is installing an automatic sprinkling system in the old Holton avenue school building, which at present houses the departments of publication, art, card, printing, stationery stock and the editorial room of the "Booster and Boomer."

AT TORONTO ON BUSINESS.

W. A. Berch, auditor of the Bowser firm, is at Toronto, Canada, supervising the annual inventory of the Canadian branch of the firm. Mrs. Berch is accompanying him on the trip.

WILL OBSERVE THANKSGIVING.

The Bowser employees of both the offices and factory will observe Thanksgiving day, orders having been issued that the big works would not operate tomorrow.

Machinist William McCarthy, of the Wash shops, has gone to Chicago to be the guest of friends over Thanksgiving day.

CANNOT REDUCE THE NUMBER OF TRAINS

Rea Says Company Cannot Handle Passenger Business With Less Cars.

In answer to inquiries as to whether the Pennsylvania Railroad company contemplated radical reduction in passenger service or what the situation was in this respect, President Samuel Rea replied: "Less passenger train service on the eastern railroads and especially on the Pennsylvania system would be desirable but until the situation develops further and some limitation is placed on the traffic as a war measure it will be difficult to accomplish. The company has about the largest passenger traffic of any railroad in the country. The year 1916 was the heaviest traffic year in its history. The passenger revenue for the first nine months of 1917 has increased 18 per cent, over 1916, while later returns show that it is increasing at the rate of 30 per cent, over similar months of 1916. Any traveler on this system can see for himself on day and night trains the extraordinary increase in the passenger travel, including the heavy family travel to and from camps and to and from Washington on government business. I doubt whether slower and longer trains of coaches carrying full loads would reduce the number of cars and trains, or materially relieve the tracks and terminals. Therefore at this time I can see no other course than to continue making the abnormal demand for passenger transportation to the best of our ability."

taken as the girls composing one of the classes were enjoying some refreshments at the close of the class meeting. There are stenographers and clerks from the main and the shop offices; machine operators and bench hands in the small motor, the mica, the transformer and the meter departments.

ROTARIANS HAVE NOON DAY LUNCH

Addresses Made by Lieut. Fishing, B. A. Thompson and Dr. E. D. Baker.

The Rotary club held an interesting noon session Wednesday afternoon. Lieutenant Walter Fishing gave the opening address. His talk was enthusiastically received because of its smack of real military life. He dwelt long on the attitude held toward drafted men and said that all conscripted men became real volunteers as soon as they get into the trenches. P. A. Thompson followed this address by an outline of the work and purpose of the home guard units being organized in Fort Wayne. He not only asked all Rotarians able to do so to enlist in this unit, but also requested that every member of the organization do everything in his power to interest others. He especially invited the members to attend the meeting in the assembly room of the court house on Friday evening.

The session was closed by an interesting talk and demonstration by Dr. E. D. Baker, the noted mathematician of New York. A black board was pressed into service and some of the doctor's theories were propounded. An invitation was extended to all Rotarians to attend his lecture on Monday evening at the high school building.

INJURIES FATAL TO MERCER COUNTY MAN

Amos Marbaugh Dies from Hurts Sustained When Horses Run Away.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 28.—Amos B. Marbaugh, aged 43, prominent farmer of Center township, Mercer county, O., is dead following injuries received soon after dinner yesterday, resulting from a runaway of his team.

Mr. Marbaugh had gone to the field to husk corn soon after dinner. The horses became unmanageable and in trying to get them from his place on the ground, he was struck on the head and side by the wagon. Among other injuries inflicted, his right leg was broken. Physicians, one from this city and one from Monroe, made him as comfortable as possible, the leg being set and his other injuries attended to. Hemorrhage of the brain, however, ensued, and he lapsed into unconsciousness, death resulting several hours later.

HIT BY TRACTION CAR.

Frank Reffe Is Killed in Accident Near Linn Grove.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 28.—Jumping from an automobile truck on which he was riding and which he thought would be hit by a freight car on the B. & C. Frank Reffe, 43 years old, unmarried, was instantly killed. He jumped directly in front of the car and was cut in two.

Reffe was employed by Wes Hoffman, contractor, and had been working on the township schoolhouse near the scene of the accident, two and a half miles east of Linn Grove. The B. & C. traction line is being operated by Thomas Flynn, junk dealer, who recently purchased the property at receiver's sale. Motorman Firman Rose, Conductor Noah Lindsey and Brakeman Harry Marsh were in charge of the car.

TRIAL HALTED BY FIGHT.

Blacksmith and Ex-Puglist, Both Witnesses, Are Fined by Court.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 28.—John Price, a Montpelier druggist, was found guilty of selling liquor illegally and was fined $100 and sentenced to thirty days in jail. The jail sentence was suspended.

The trial was halted for some time while a one-round fight was staged just outside the court room by Dan Davis, ex-puglist, and Wiley Lawson, blacksmith, the former a witness for the state, and the latter for the defense. Lawson kept the fight going, but Davis had not told the truth while he was on the stand. Davis finally invited Lawson outside and knocked him down. When the fight was over several minutes had elapsed, and the court adjourned to look for the witnesses. Lawson was fined $25 for contempt of court, and Davis was fined for assault and battery.

AN EXPENSIVE HUNT.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 28.—It cost Charles Huff $32.50 and Ray Lucas $24.40 to come from their homes, near Van Buren, in Grant county, to Wayne township, Huntington county, to hunt. They failed to ask permission and the road supervisor of the district filed charges against them. That farmers who wish to blow out stumps, doing the work themselves and on their own land, must have licenses even to buy the explosive, is the statement of Glen Brown, clerk of the Huntington circuit court, who has been appointed explosives licensing agent for the county by the bureau of mines. The federal statute, which was passed at the last session of the congress, requires licenses to handle, sell or even possess any explosives except shotgun shells and small arms cartridges.

FIRE AT WARSAW.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—A fire that might have resulted disastrously for a considerable section of Warsaw, broke out in the basement of the Haymond building, in the part occupied by the Warsaw Candy Kitchen on Tuesday morning, about 2 o'clock. The fire took considerable fighting to extinguish. The blaze is shown by the fact that there was still so much water in the basement Tuesday forenoon, that it was necessary to have rubber boots to get around therein. It is reported that the fire originated from an electric motor wire, in the basement. The south end of the basement joists are badly burned and a hole burned in the floor, about four feet in diameter.

VAN WERT MEN INDICTED.

Van Wert, O., Nov. 28.—The grand jury in the United States court at Toledo has returned indictments against Joseph Balyeat and Walter Brown, of Union township, on charges that they threatened the life of President Wilson. The acts of disloyalty are alleged to have occurred last summer and since that time the men have been under $5,000 bond. The defendants are members of a socialist band that the county officials have been watching for several months.

APPROPRIATION FOR BAND.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—One of the main difficulties that the Warsaw band has had to face has been financial trouble. They haven't had enough money. Yet they have the material and ability for the making of one of the best bands in northern Indiana. Recognizing that fact the city council has voted that from December 1, 1917, and following the band should as long as they maintained an efficient organization be allowed $50 per month by the city.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—The city council has instructed the city attorney to keep in touch with the matter of the petition of the Warsaw Gas company for an increase in rate, and asked that he be prepared to represent the city at the coming hearing of this question before the public service commission.

CHEER UP! HERE'S A

Cranberry Sauce, "Stuffin'" and Other "Fixin's" Are Included.

Contrary to all expectations, after delving in the archives of the past, it is found that there is no occasion for a fit of the "blues" over Thanksgiving dinner prospects. So much has been heard about high prices that it had begun to appear to be impossible to have a real, old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner for anything short of a small fortune, such as a full week's salary. But it will be possible for the family of ordinary size to have a Thanksgiving dinner with turkey, cranberry sauce "stuffin'" and all the other "fixin's" for the sum of $4.95.

Sounds like a bargain sale price, doesn't it? But to show that there is nothing "phony" about it, a menu is given below that can be filled in every detail at any of the downtown groceries at the prices quoted.

The amounts given are intended to provide for at least four people.

Cranberries, one pint.....	$0.10
Potatoes (white).....	15
Sweet potatoes.....	10
Butter, one-half pound.....	25
Bread.....	10
Dressing (including sage).....	10
Salad (cabbage, 10c; lettuce 10c).....	20
Pie (pumpkin or mince).....	25
Fruit and nuts.....	25
Celery.....	15
Coffee, tea or milk.....	10

Total.....$1.75
Total with four-pound chicken 3.00
Total with four-pound duck.....3.10
Total with eight-pound turkey 4.95

Last year's Thanksgiving dinner would have cost just 50 cents less, and before the war, in 1912 or 1913, it would have cost $1 less.

KEEPS GIRL IN SILKS WITH STOLEN ARTICLES

Fred McCoy Starts in a 100 Per Cent. Profit Business Enterprise.

Fred McCoy, colored, has solved the high cost of keeping a "gal" problem. McCoy has been in the employ of the Paris ready-to-wear store for more than a year and confessed Tuesday to Sergeants Rundell and Junko having stolen various articles of woman's clothing continually during this period. Some of the stolen articles were sold at a low price, but a considerable amount of it went to clothe his "gal," a recent arrival from Mobile, Ala. The stolen goods found in McCoy's rooms have been recovered, but the colored girl refused to give up her gifts. McCoy claimed that the waists and skirts were sent into the basement in supposedly empty boxes by careless clerks, but most of the articles still had the price marked upon them, indicating that they had been in stock. The lot which included silk waists, and skirts, combination suits, etc., is valued at more than $50. Upon his plea of guilty he was given $10 and costs and 150 days on the Indiana state farm.

Roy Pollock's sympathy for having stolen lead pipe and copper scraps from the Herman Tapp barn, was let go. Pollock had his wife in court, and because of her sobs and the fact that the man has several small children caused the continuance.

James O'Neill, a crippled loiterer, was rather sullen and was given until December 4 to grow more genial.

Huntington Bound Over.

On his plea of guilty to the charge of passing a bad check on the Rich hotel, Ernest Huntington was bound over to the circuit court. Huntington with his wife had been stopping at the Rich hotel. Growing short of funds he cashed a check for $30 on a Detroit bank. Part of the check paid for board and room while he took the remainder in cash. Huntington claims that he will inherit money from his father's estate within a short time and give this as an excuse.

Shoots at Chicken Thief.

Roy Stapleton, living at the corner of Florence and Ethel streets, went gunning for chicken thieves Tuesday evening, and believes that he was successful. Stapleton discovered a thief in his coop at 6 o'clock and fired at him. He is positive that he hit the man in the leg, although he kept on running. None of the chickens are missing.

Believed Insane.

Police Matron Winch was called to 212 East Williams street Tuesday afternoon, where she found Sarah Ann Montgomery, aged 73 years, in a room filled with smoke. The aged woman had built a roaring fire in a cook stove and had removed all the lids. She was taken to the county infirmary where her condition will be investigated.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1917.

ENLIST FOR THIS WAR.

It should be remembered that even before the United States got into the war the progress of the campaign against tuberculosis in this country had been slow. From year to year it had been gaining headway, but the advancement of public sentiment toward a thorough understanding of the perils of the white plague and the economic cost of its ravages had not been rapid and the means for combatting it never had been adequate.

Now that the country is in the world's great war and daily brought face to face with new problems, new duties and new necessities, all of which require money and effort, the needs of the campaign against the white plague may be thought to make inferior claim upon the attention of the nation and the generosity of the people. This is not the case at all. As never before, the necessity to fight tuberculosis is upon the people. If there should be cessation of this great work in any particular much of the ground already gained will be lost and human life and economic waste will be the huge price of the negligence. The fight must be continued with more determination and with greater means than ever before.

The purchase of Red Cross Christmas seals will greatly advance the work to wipe out the white plague. This year should witness the heaviest sales in the history of the movement, for the coming year and the years that are immediately to follow will bring increased burden of work upon the organizations that are waging the war on the scourge. The world war will have the effect in many ways to multiply the dangers from tuberculosis. Vigorous counter attack must be made. More money will be needed. The people will have to see that it is provided.

Everybody can do something to aid in the financing of the work. If all the people were to purchase Red Cross Christmas seals according to their means—the poor as well as the rich, for all can do something—the war funds for the fight would be larger than ever. An average of ten cents a head for Fort Wayne's population would produce a great sum and impose a burden upon nobody. And that is what should be done here and everywhere in the land to promote this benevolent war against the worst of humanity's scourges of disease. The people of Fort Wayne ought to keep in mind that by far the larger part of the funds realized from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals in this city remains here to carry on the local work against tuberculosis. Great good already has been accomplished here, but even that is small as compared with the opportunity presented in this field.

No better Christmas offering can be made than a liberal investment in the Red Cross Christmas seals for the money so derived will go to help many persons who can in no way help themselves against the ravages of the white plague. We hope to see at the end of the year the greatest showing yet made by Fort Wayne in this work, notwithstanding this city stands alongside the three or four cities that lead the whole United States in the per capita volume of sales.

SUPERIOR WAR COUNCIL.

It took Great Britain two years to get herself settled upon a war basis that permitted the intelligent and efficient employment of all the resources of the empire in the great conflict. The United States has been in the war less than eight months and that period has sufficed for the doing of vast things, but for the doing of less than was possible.

That there is to be improvement and the enlistment of all the country's resources without waste of time and substance or failure of any possible efficiencies is seen in the plans now in the making to create a superior war council that shall have complete direction of all the nation's military efforts. This is the expedient to which resort was bound to be had sooner or later and it is well that it is to be employed before disasters may have opportunity to come for the want of it. There cannot be waste or confusion or delay or inactivity without huge and tragic cost. Whatever will prevent these untoward circumstances of effort in the war will spare the country woe.

It has become clear that the hardest work of the war is yet to come upon the allies. America's share of this burden will be the greater share. This nation must make victory possible and it can do so only by putting into the war every pound that it has which can weigh for success. There must be a military machine that will work. It must operate the army and the navy and all the related resources of the country to the single end of crushing the Prussian military machine. That cannot be except there be some matching of efficiency and order against the efficiency and order that constitute the greatest strength of the enemy against us. From the beginning of the war the superior efficiency of the central powers has been manifest. That is Germany's mighty contribution to the common cause. Her supreme authority and direction that control and guide everything pertaining to the campaigns of the central powers have given multiplied strength to inferior numbers.

That must be the emulation of the allies. The United States can discharge her own complete duty in this purpose only by establishing an efficiency that will not permit an impairment of any of her own resources. The proposed supreme council for the conduct of the war is the machinery that will establish and maintain thorough military efficiency. A republic does not give the latitude for supreme direction such as the autocracy of Germany lodges with the emperor and the general staff, but there is nothing to prevent this democracy from the most thorough employment of common sense. It is true that congress always constitute a problem in military affairs in this country and sometimes a very obstinate and troublesome problem, but it may by this time be clear even to an American congress that the nation is face to face with a task more huge and a peril more dire than it confronted when the country entered the war.

There can be no temporizing with traditions or trying to make the situation of today conform to the precedents of other crises. The nation is brought to the place in its history where it must stand up or go down. Its strength can be its only salvation.

There are fine chapters of thrills coming from the great battle for mastery of Cambrai. The work of the British airmen makes a rattling story that with a little more detail to fill it in would pass very well for imaginative adventure, but the exploits of the Canadian cavalry hark back to old days and the familiar heroism of the books and stir the blood to a fine fever. No doubt from the other side the line there would come if they could stories of German valor. There must have been something of the sort to spur the British to such pitches of daring.

The way Italy is holding the line probably is greatly disconcerting to the enemy, whose plans didn't provide for any such holdup. That was the case at the Marne, where the whole tide of the war was turned. And that may be the case on the Piave. For days Italy has held the line without aid and now that help has arrived there ought to be some variations of the story.

The day after the day of it a rabbit stew or a mock roast of beef is just as good to have had as a roast turkey—and two days after it is much better, for it is then all gone. Whereas—but why be harrow up the feelings to no good end? Turkey hash never was popular.

Conservation of food American fashion will have no worse consequence than improving the general health. Essential feeding and indulged stuffing are quite different processes, as the people of this nation will learn and appreciate if the necessities of war ever bring them down to a normal basis of eating to live.

The split in Russia gives promise of growing both wide and deep and if that isn't to the kaiser's liking the only thing else that could make it so would be for the Russian armies to come in with him. And that wouldn't be without precedent either.

Germans pay tribute to the valor of American soldiers. That is generous, but it isn't new. All soldiers who have faced them were ready to do that.

Buy Red Cross seals and swat a worse foe than the kaiser.

Next week congress will come back on the stage and it isn't response to any encore.

That has tangled the reeds on the shore where they grew.
Has it frozen the flute that you fashioned in spring?

What has happened to you?

Ere the autumn winds plucked the dry seeds where they hung;
Ere the mosses turned grey on the rocks where they clung;
Ere the birds had forgotten the lilt that you taught them—
The mating and love-songs they sung.
You were gone, when the faintest of breaths from the northland
Had scattered the leaves—ere the tern and her young Had cloft the fall sky with their cries of despair, Brown god—
You had left us—and gone—ah, but where?

That some of us who now turn up our aristocratic noses at cornbread will be glad to get it before long.
That the coal famine will drive us south.

Hurray!

To drape about my landlord's head.

Another Variation.

"Marry in haste" is fine I think,
But to fill out this rhyme,
You must "repeal at leisure" when
You can scare up the time.

Reasonable to Suppose.

New Arrival (finding himself short of change)—
Mose, can you get me some silver in the office?

Necessary Literary Equipment.

A. M. writes that a young friend desires to know what equipment is needed by an author, and gives the following excellent suggestion:

"A little meat.

A little drink,
A little bottle
Of good ink;
A pencil—pen,
And a typewriter—
Eyes blue or brown—
You sure need her!"

She Wins.

Official—Why do you wish a pension?
She—My husband and I have fought all through the period of the war.—T. B.

We Agree.

A correspondent tells us that the Germans got their idea of "drum fire" from the Wagnerian opera. Probably this is true, but we'll wager the spike off a helmet that most of their other ideas came from the dev—that is, from his Satanic majesty!

Music.

People who sing
For heaven's sake
Should not be so loud
About it;
Because there may be people
Somewhere in the next block
Who want to worship
More quietly.
Big guns make a noise—
But more men are killed.
By rifles.
The quieter music is
The better is.
The best music
Is just after
And just before
It has been taken!

Religion Enough.

Maudie—I can't make a mock of my religion.
Mae—Oh, you can, dear, they're wearing them out this season.

PULL DOWN THE SHADE

Cold Storage a Key to Control

(Christian Science Monitor.)

Now that the food administration has stopped the price fixing by a little group of irresponsible operators in Chicago, with regard to butter, the public may well be encouraged to believe that this same strong arm of the government of the United States may in time be used to correct the abuse of the cold storage warehouses in the handling of eggs, meat and fish. Some such action has for a long time been obviously desirable in the interests of the public, and the lack of any activity of this sort on the part of the food administration has been the cause of some murmuring already in the popular centers of the east. In New England, particularly, a public that has been forced to accept constantly increasing prices for all the necessities of life has been confronted at the same time with steadily increasing figures representing the quantities of food held in the cold storage warehouses. That the cold storage warehouses at this moment literally are jammed with food in the shape of meat, poultry, fish, and eggs, is small comfort in view of the fact that prices are already at an extraordinarily high level with prospects of going higher, even though the public has already made some progress in saving waste and cutting down the daily measure of food used. It is in vain that dealers and food handlers point out the wonderful advantage of the cold storage system as a means of preserving otherwise perishable food in such a manner that it can be used throughout the year irrespective of the time when it first became available. To the public this advantage becomes, after all, only doubtful when they consider, as they now being forced to consider, that the same process that conserves food until it can be advantageously used, also enables manipulators to hold it out of the market until it can be as they would put it, advantageously sold. Cold storage is not a natural process of spreading a season's food production over the whole round of the year, but cold storage is not a whit the less the great key to that sort of marketing of food products which enables manipulators to play upon the public almost, if not quite, without regard to the natural requirements of supply and demand. However the cold-storage idea may have originally implied a beneficial public service, it has come now to stand for something very like exaction and compulsion and not much else. And what this is not to blame one or another individual or to condemn the firms and associations that have engaged in cold storage as a business. They have no doubt undertaken to further the cold storage idea because they found a reasonable demand for reasonable and proper action. But it would be idle to deny that they, as a part of the great business system, have been used and are being used to work out the sheer will of a general business instinct in exaction from the buying public all that can safely be exacted rather than in giving that public a great public service at a reasonable price.

Business in these days is in danger of forgetting whatever ideal of service to the customer it may once have had. It is not so very many years since, in the United States, a retailer who provided the necessities of life for his neighborhood dealt with his customers on a basis of intimate and sympathetic regard for their abilities no less than for their wants. Now this relationship is assuming something more nearly like the relation between opposing armies. There is a contest involved. Each side feels that the other is out to get the best of him if such a thing be possible, and in the whole relationship of small trade and supply, there is an element of acidity. Small trade in general is now not so much friendly and sweet, as it is covertly or openly harsh and bitter. It may not be fair to say that the cold storage warehouse is responsible for this change, but it would not be any fairer to say that the cold storage warehouse has not been a much too big factor in about it. It is in this cold storage warehouse that the manipulation of the market has been carried on.

On the other hand, the largest class in the history of the Naval academy, registered at Annapolis this year, 740 embryos of midshipmen who enrolled with the other three classes, bring the attendance up to 1,453. The entering class this year was almost as large as the entire attendance in 1912. The fact that the navy is decidedly short of officers has unquestionably stimulated attendance in the academy. It is desirable, from every point of view, that there should be no lessening of educational activity, and this is being generally recognized by parents; it is one of the reassuring facts of the time. President France, of Brown university, urged the freshmen to greater industry, pointing out that they were "conscripted by their country as workers before the front."

fish dealer, pricing his wares too high in a present market, to stock them away for a future time when the public needs will have grown so acute that even a higher price can be successfully imposed. In the same way, it is the cold storage warehouse that has enabled the poultryman, cannot afford his stipulated price, to laugh at his customers and send his stock to be stored for weeks or months with the promise that the public will yet be made to pay not only what he first demanded but the cost of storage and a round profit on top of that.

All this, of course, is, at the moment, within the law of the state, regardless of how it stands with respect to the moral law; but the conditions in the cold storage warehouses at this present time, as well as the experience of the past year, call aloud for attention of the law-making bodies to the need of such public supervision and check upon cold storage methods as to keep the government, and not unscrupulous and unsympathetic business interests, in control of the conditions under which the people live. Only such a course with respect to the cold storage warehouses can preserve, with respect to food, the traditional idea of a government of the people, by the people, and for the people. Unless the cold storage warehouse is to govern the people, the people will have to govern the cold storage warehouse.

COLLEGES IN THE WAR.

(Detroit Free Press.)
A paragraph circulating through the press sets forth that more than 5,000 "sons of Eli" are in various branches of war service and direct attention to the generous response of the youth of the nation to the call of arms. The loyal answer of alumni and undergraduates is not confined to Yale. All the universities and colleges have given heartily of their men. Last summer more than half of Harvard's 2,585 undergraduates were enrolled in the army, ambulance and aviation services, bringing her honor roll up to the 5,000 mark. Of New England's score of colleges, with an approximate enrollment of 20,000 students, nearly half are in the war. It is estimated that only about 70 per cent of the average student body is physically fit for military service; we see therefore to what an extent the bone and sinew—and intellect—of the nation is rallying to the suppression of militarism. The losses are greater in the senior and junior classes and among those engaged in post-graduate work, the latter, by reason of age and attainments, being able to be of immediate service to the country.

College attendance has necessarily suffered because of the war, though not to the extent that was feared. The freshmen enrolled have, in many cases, been unexpectedly large. It is desirable, from every point of view, that there should be no lessening of educational activity, and this is being generally recognized by parents; it is one of the reassuring facts of the time. President France, of Brown university, urged the freshmen to greater industry, pointing out that they were "conscripted by their country as workers before the front."

a retirement. It is a retreat. It is not "strategic" except as the Italian Third army's retreat is strategic. It is not voluntary, but forced by French blows, the last of which yielded over 12,000 prisoners and 100 guns and filled the caverns of the Teuton position with German dead.

It is evidently the prelude to further "retirements" along up the line to the Flanders coast, for which the Berlin military newspaper critics have been preparing the German public. There is to be a new Hindenburg line back still nearer the Rhine. The first was to hold "while the U-boats did their work," but the U-boats have failed to do their work and that line has been broken. The next line is to hold how long and for what? Until her war-mad master succeeds in having several hundred thousand more of Germany's flaxen-haired youth put under the sod of covered foreign soil?

DIMMING THE WHITE LIGHTS.

(Toledo Blade.)

The coal administrator has laid it down that electric signs may be operated only between the hours of 7:30 and 11 p. m. While he has no control in this matter over merchants, theater owners and others who own the signs, he can gain his ends by regulating the supply of coal to the makers of electric current.

It has been stated that the amount of coal used in creating "White Ways" is less than one per cent of the total coal produced in the country. It may seem that little fuel can be saved by limiting the time when signs may flare to three and a half hours. But this is an instance where we must have respect for small figures. The country produces 458,000,000 tons of coal annually. If one-fourth of one per cent of that production is saved by Dr. Garfield's new order there will be 1,147,500 tons to use for other purposes than advertising. At a time when coal dealers must ration fuel to domestic users, this saving cannot be sneezed at.

FROM THE SENTINEL PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

W. H. Scheimann and Miss Marguerite Lang are spending Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Wells, of Huntington.

Tom Allen and George Louck this morning found the body of a child while skating on the St. Mary's river. It was found in the neighborhood of Bossier's gravel pit, west of Spy Run avenue. The body of the little one was frozen stiff.

Yesterday afternoon the stone work, with the exception of the cornice, was completed on the city building. The slate roof is now being placed, and with pleasant weather Contractor Bosker expects to have the building under cover in less than a week.

Walter McWilliams, a teacher of Kendallville, had a small bell sitting on his desk which began ringing and it continued to ring until it was removed to some other part of the house. McWilliams could not trace the cause, and therefore settled to the belief that the ringing foretells the downfall of the nation.

R. T. McDonald has completed arrangements for the purchase of the Aveline house property, the consideration being $115,000. Only about one year ago T. B. Shoaff purchased the property of Messrs. Miller & Morris for $80,000 and ever since Mr. McDonald has been trying to purchase it.

The Philley families are holding a reunion today at the Summit farm, a few miles south of the city. There are over forty representatives of the original family present. The pleasures of the day consist of a grand dinner at 3 o'clock, followed by a musical and literary entertainment, in which Miss Anna Philley will take an active part.

Thanksgiving day is being generally observed all over the city. Many stores are closed and all the machine shops and foundries shut down. As early as 10 o'clock this morning, James Geary, of the World's Museum, had disposed of his supply of six dozen chickens and 600 loaves of bread. Any poor family who failed to get their Thanksgiving dinner from him this morning will be supplied with a chicken and bread if they call in the morning.

STRONGER MEN TAKE THE LEAD

They Have Nerves of Iron and Real Red Fighting Blood

Vital force is the material from which leaders in all walks of life are made. It is well worth getting and holding.

The health and nerve of the athlete is what Nature intended every man and woman to have. The blood of an athlete is pure and red, a strong heart pumps and drives it through his body. No wonder that every inch of his system is filled with energy and health. His nerves like iron, spirits high, hard tasks a pleasure and life one song of joy.

A leading Doctor says, "Everyone should feel this way. That if you are not red blooded, are nervous, all run down and on your last legs, for you to build up your blood and nerves with exercise, fresh air, nourishing food and Nature's great prescription, Phosphated Iron, a real blood and nerve builder."

Then you will be there with vim and push to easily do the work that you now do on your nerves alone. He also says, "Phosphated Iron feeds the blood cells with iron and nerve force, and that leading specialists are now using it successfully all over the country, that it has sprung into almost instant popularity with the better class of doctors as one of the few remedies they can depend on to produce results."

Special Notice—To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we put up in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to substitute any pills or tablets. For sale in Fort Wayne by Meyer Bros., four stores, also D. & N. Pharmacy. Advertisement.

What Is Uric Acid?

Everyone has uric acid in the system, but naturally in small quantities. Excessive amount is caused by eating too much meat and foods that ferment in stomach. The kidneys, being the filters of the blood, are supposed to separate and throw the poisons out of the system. Weak, tired and overworked kidneys fail to do this, hence the poisonous uric acid and its associate poisons contaminate the blood, causing backache, lumbago, rheumatism, dropsy, drowsiness and tired feeling.

To overcome the trouble is only a matter of toning up the kidneys, and this is best done by a treatment with Anuric (double strength), three times a day. Anuric is a recent recovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., and can be obtained at any drug store.

Experience taught Dr. Pierce that Anuric is a more powerful agent than lithia in dissolving uric acid, as hot water melts sugar. Anuric is a regular insurance and lifesaver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints.

A WOMAN'S PAINS CHASED AWAY.

Laporte, Ind.—"For five years I suffered terribly with woman's weakness. The doctor said that only a surgical operation would give me any relief. I then wrote to the faculty of Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for advice (which was very freely given me) and I followed it just as closely as I could for about two months. The only medicine I took was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his Favorite Prescription, alternately, and I received most wonderful benefit in a very short time. My pains left me and I felt like an entirely different person. Recently I have experienced the discomfort of middle life. My first thought was of Dr. Pierce's remedies and I started to take the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Anuric' as rheumatism was added to my list of ailments. The results have been just as prompt as before."—Mrs. ALICE DEXTER, 114 Kingsbury.

PRESIDENT AT WORK ON ANNUAL MESSAGE

Stays Indoors to Complete Labor on Address to National Congress.

Washington, Nov. 28.—President Wilson continued work today on his address to the opening of congress, which will be delivered in person, as usual, next Tuesday.

As yet the address is in a rough draft and probably will not be printed in finished form until very shortly before delivery. On that account it probably will not be supplied very much in advance to the newspapers, as is the general custom.

The capital today lay under a blanket of rapidly melting snow and slugs, and the president abandoned his usual morning round of golf to remain in his study at work on the address writing it himself, as usual, on his own typewriter.

There have been no intimations from official sources so far of what subjects the president will emphasize. It has been his custom in a general way to confine his opening address to congress to the general state of the union and treat special subjects in special addresses. In view, however, of the many pressing subjects confronting congress it is probable that he may refer to some of them in a special way. Cyrus E. White, of the Kansas legislature, saw the president today to ask for army exemption for farm laborers. Class exemption of that sort heretofore has been denied.

BRITISH OFFICER TO SPEAK AT GARRETT

Methodist Sunday School to Hold Patriotic Service Sunday.

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Garrett, Ind., Nov. 28.—The Methodist Sunday school of this city have arranged a very interesting meeting for Sunday morning at the regular Sunday school hour. The day will be observed as patriotic day by the school and everything of a patriotic nature will be given. The main attraction for the Sunday school hour will be the address to be given by General Brown, a British soldier, who is acting in the capacity of recruiting officer for the state of Indiana, in behalf of his country. General Brown has won his laurels on the battlefields, having entered the army as a private soldier, and his splendid record shows him to be worthy of the title won. He will relate a very interesting story of the great world war and will tell us many things that our own boys would tell us if they were here. Special music will be given at this time also, and the morning program will be of such a nature that none can afford to miss it.

(Special to The Sentinel.)

Auburn, Ind., Nov. 28.—Dr. A. A. Kramer, a prominent physician of Butler and mayor of that city, has been made defendant in a divorce case filed Tuesday by his wife, Mrs. Dora Kramer. It is hardly a suit for divorce, but legal separation and separate maintenance that she is suing for. Mrs. Kramer claims that for the past six months her husband has been guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment and that he has a violent temper, and while in such a state struck her. She adds that the doctor has real estate valued at $15,000 and has a large income, while she has nothing but her household furnishings. The case has attracted a great deal of attention owing to the prominence of the couple. Mrs. Kramer's home was at Indianapolis before her marriage.

HER PHYSICAL ILLS TO BLAME

Mrs. De Saulles Had a Bad
Thyroid Gland and It
Affected Mind.

ONCE SHE HAD HER SKULL FRACTURED

That Also Contributed to the Murder of Her Gay
Young Husband.

Mineola, N. Y., Nov. 28.—What is expected to be a lengthy battle between medical experts over Mrs. Dianca De Saulles who claimed that her physical condition produced a relapse of accountability when she shot her divorced husband, was initiated in the young woman's trial on a charge of murder in supreme court here today.

Dr. J. S. Sherman Wiatt, Mrs. De Saulles' physician since the tragedy, testified that the patient's condition following the shooting indicated that she was suffering from encephalic functioning of the thyroid gland—from an inadequacy in the secretion of this gland. This brings about an inactivity of the vital processes. Dr. Wiatt testified, Mrs. De Saulles' attorneys claim, the condition outlined by the physician produces a brain and nerve center condition which eventually ends in a "complete mental infirmity." This disease, the defendant's lawyers terms hypothyroidism. This name, however, was not used by Dr. Wiatt.

An X-ray photograph of Mrs. De Saulles' head which Dr. Wiatt claims shows a depression of a portion of one of the skull bones just above the forehead was introduced in evidence. This portion of bone was discolored, the defense claims, when Mrs. De Saulles sustained a fracture of the skull years ago. It presses upon the brain, it is declared, and may have been contributory in blinding about the temporary loss of responsibility which, which she asserted she fired the revolver shots in her husband's home on Long Island the night of August 3. Flaws in Suzanne Lantier's version of the tragedy were developed during her cross-examination. Mrs. Montau is Mrs. De Saulles' maid and accompanied her to the "Box" at the Saulles' home, the night of the shooting.

The discrepancies in her story appeared upon comparison of her answers made today to those contained in a deposition taken shortly after August 3.

The witness clung to her assertions, however, that Mrs. De Saulles went to her former husband's home for the purpose of getting her son; that her mistress did not say, "I'm glad I did it; I hope he dies," just after the tragedy and that De Saulles was facing his former wife when he was shot.

National Council Will be Asked to Co-Ordinate
Money Campaigns.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 28.—Appeals for "funds or property to aid in or alleviate the consequences of the war" will be censored by committees representing the Indiana state council of defense on state-wide campaigns and county councils on local solicitations, as a result of the action of the Indiana state council of defense today.

The report of special committee headed by A. W. Brady, presented a suggestion that the council of national defense consider the matter of co-ordinating and consolidating national campaigns for money. The suggestion was indorsed and will be forwarded to Washington at once. "In the case of the broader movements, such as the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the camp recreation funds, approval is given by the president, the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy. In those cases no other approval is, of course, required," the report says.

"There is, however, another large class of appeals for direct contributions of different grades of worthiness and wisdom." The report provides for a committee of five from the state council and a similar committee in each county to have voluntary authority to pass upon all such enterprises except such as are limited to individual, fraternal or church societies.

This is to enable operators to employ itinerant miners who are qualified. The recommendation to operators and miners union officials for their consideration.

MILITARY NEWS NO MORE ENLISTMENTS AFTER CERTAIN DATE

Major Ryan Sends Communication Explaining the Enlistment Limit.

Postmaster E. C. Miller is in receipt of the following communication from Major Ryan on the recent draft measure:

"From and after December 15 all men within the draft age can not volunteer their services for the army. All those young men within the draft age who desire to volunteer must do so in sufficient time to permit them to reach Indianapolis some time on December 13, as the enlistment of an applicant must be entirely accomplished prior to midnight of the 14th, and in order to do this it is necessary for the recruiting officer to send the applicant to Fort Thomas, Ky., at which place the enlistment is accomplished, and if applicants do not arrive at Indianapolis before December 13 their enlistment cannot be accomplished by midnight of the 14th, and they will therefore lose their right to volunteer. From and after December 15 the only person eligible to volunteer for the army are those under the draft age, over the draft age, and those young men who have become 21 years of age since June 6, 1917. No person can be accepted in the army over 40 years of age. The family allowance, which is authorized in the war risk insurance bill recently passed by congress is effective for those who volunteer as well as others, and a married man with one child entering the service, his wife would receive $40 per month while he is away.

"Every branch of the service is now open with the exception of the cavalry. The army needs, in addition to fighting men, all kinds of tradesmen and mechanics for the non-combatant forces, together with the men who have no trade, and when a man is placed in the non-combatant force he will not be transferred to the combatant."

Frederick J. Thieme, Jr., together with a number of other Michigan university seniors, who have been stationed in France since June, has been called back to resume his studies. Thieme will graduate next June and will immediately offer his services to his country again. The summons was sent to the college seniors by the president of the university at the request of President Wilson.

The soldier is on his way back and is expected in Fort Wayne, Wednesday or Thursday. Aboard his ship, when coming over, was Admiral Fletcher and his staff, together with a number of other distinguished Americans, returning from the war zone.

After a short visit with his parents here, Mr. Thieme will return to Michigan university to resume his studies.

TRY TO OBTAIN LAND THEY ALREADY POSSESS

Improvement Company Discovers That Disputed Tract Was Never Deeded to City.

Both the mayor's veto and Samuel M. Foster's letter of protest were unnecessary in the Fort Wayne Land and Improvement company matter. In 1909 the improvement company deeded the city a strip of land along Edgewater avenue for park purposes. A short time ago the company decided that it had given away more land than it had intended to and requested the city to deed a portion of it back to them. The mayor vetoed this move and Mr. Foster, hearing of it wrote a letter denouncing the action.

Investigation proves that the entire controversy was unnecessary, as the disputed plot was not included in the deed. The land in question faces the Maumee river from the west. The improvement company has a building on this property and has been collecting rent, paying taxes and all extra assessments. The city, however, has a deed which proves that the plot facing the west is not included in the deed. "All unplatted tracts of land lying south of Edgewater avenue, between Edgewater avenue and the Maumee river, in Lakeside Park addition."

Pulliam, who was to exemplify the secret work, did not arrive and the work was given by the grand outer guard and division of Columbia City. Supper will be served to the guests by the Pythian Sisters.

The feature of the evening session will be the presentation of the third rank work by the famous Samson degree team of Butler. GIRL CONFEDERATE OF BANDITS IS HARDENED

Toledo, Nov. 28.—Without a trace of remorse, twenty-year-old Wanda Urbatis, a pretty telephone girl in the office of the Huebner brewery today confessed she knew of the crime and said that under pretext of going to a drug store for tooth ache medicine, she passed the bandits the street and urged them to perpetrate the robbery because the bookkeeper, Anton Camies, would not have as much money with him as the bandits expected him to have.

According to the police the girl told them she had informed her male companions it would be better for them to wait until some future time and the haul would be larger. She said her companions had promised her a new dress.

The national council has agreed to send a member of President Wilson's war cabinet to Indianapolis for the meeting. Secretary of War Newton D. Baker having found it impossible to be here, it is expected either Secretary of State Lansing or Secretary of the Interior Lane will come.

The conference will be featured by a mass meeting to be addressed by Minister Van Dyke on the afternoon of the 13th and by the cabinet member the same evening. Governor James P. Goodrich, under whose general direction all Indiana war is now being done, will issue invitations to work-workers in every county in the state to be present both for the mass meetings and the sectional institute meetings which will be held all day and be addressed by national figures with authoritative messages from Washington.

MILITARY FOOTBALL WILL BE SERVED

Ohio State Champions to Play Camp Sherman, of Chillicothe, Ohio.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—With the "Big Ten" season ended, military football—a brand of gridiron sport distinctly new to middle west followers of the game—will be served in appetizing combinations on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. Seven games will be played between inter-service, inter-camp and Western Conference eleven on the two days. As proceeds of the contests are to be donated to soldier funds more than $100,000 is expected to be raised. Here is the Thanksgiving day program:

Ohio State, champions of the "Big Ten," vs. Camp Sherman, of Chillicothe, O., at Columbus.
Great Lakes Naval Training Station vs. Fort Sheridan Officers at Stagg field, Chicago.
Illinois vs. Camp Funston at Fort Riley, Kan.

This is the schedule for Saturday: Washington & Jefferson vs. Camp Sherman at Toledo.
Purdue vs. Camp Zachary Taylor, at Louisville.
Camp Dodge vs. Camp Funston at Omaha.
Camp Grant vs. Camp Custer at Stagg field, Chicago.

Popular favorite of years ago, who made names for themselves playing on college teams, will be in the line-ups of the soldier and navy eleven, also the games promise to carry inspiring military settings. Military bands, society groups, generals and men in public will contribute to the scenes.
What Ohioans regard as the choicest football menu offered on Thanksgiving will be played at Columbus. Neither the strong Camp Sherman eleven nor Ohio State has been defeated this season, and it looks like an even money game, with the soldiers stacking individual prowess against Ohio State's machine work.

All reserved seats have been sold, boxes alone being auctioned for more than $11,000. Almost 20,000 probably will witness the battle, including crack platoons of drafted soldiers which will give exhibitions of progress of the national army training as a part of the afternoon program. Proceeds amounting to probably $30,000 or $40,000, will be placed in trust to be used as an emergency fund for the Ohio selectives when they go to France.

Camp Sherman's eleven is made up of many former college stars, most of them officers in the national army. Among them are Captain Edmunds, old Michigan star; Martine, Yale center; Monk, of Cornell; Goebel, Yale; Garfield, of Williams; Scott, Yale; Eichenlaub, Notre Dame; Overbaugh, Brown, and many others.

"Chick" Harley, the wonderful Ohio State backfield man and All-American player, is the stellar performer of the varsity team. The university eleven probably will take the field just as it did in games which won for it the "Big Ten" championship.

With both line-ups studied with college football luminaries of the last ten years, the Great Lakes Naval Training station and the Fort Sheridan Officers' eleven will battle on Stagg field, an important army-navy gridiron struggle. Judging from the advance sale and the general enthusiasm at both camps, thirty thousand fans will see the game.

The Fort Sheridan line-up sounds more like an All-American eleven than a training camp aggregation. The line-up will be made up of Benbrook, Michigan, and Allmendinger, Michigan, at the guards; Otfie, Wisconsin, and Hennings, Michigan Aggies, at the ends; Thomas and Ver Wiebe, Harvard, at tackles, and Paul des Jardins, Chicago, center. Wheaton, Yale, and Turner, Dartmouth, will alternate at quarter; Jimmy Craig, Michigan; "Dolly" Gray, Chicago, and Pliska, Notre Dame, at the halves, and Jesse Spalding, Yale, and "Ski" Sauer, Chicago, at full.

Benbrook was picked generally, as All-American guard in 1911 and 1912. Jimmy Craig earned the same honor a half back in 1913. Joe Pliska was an honorary all-western selection at Notre Dame for two seasons, while Paul "Shorty" Des Jardins was chosen by Walter Camp as center on his All-American teams of 1913 and 1914. Jesse Spalding captained Yale in 1912 and Wheaton coached the Blue in 1909.

The sailors will be led by "Pat" Smith, 1917 captain-elect of the University of Michigan team. Other Wolverines on the squad are Right Half Back Raymond, Tackle Hildner and End Loucks. Blackstock represents the Michigan Aggies, while Pottinger, center, upholds the Cardinal of Wisconsin. Other capable gridlers are Allen.

Eddie Rickenbacker Finds Autos Too Slow

EDDIE RICKENBACKER

They can't make 'em too fast for Eddie Rickenbacker, American speed demon now in France with General Pershing's forces. Rick went as an automobile driver and for a time was attached to Pershing's personal staff as his driver, but this was too slow for the speed merchant and he asked to be transferred to the aviation corps, where he could get some real speed.

The transfer was made and Eddie entered an aviation training camp in the south of France. It took him six weeks to complete the course which usually occupies four months of training and instruction, and Eddie is now a regular aviator.

Illinois; Cozleman, Washington university; Robins, Missouri, and Johnson, Pittsburg, and Proctor, Nebraska. The game will be a considerable military spectacle because Col. Ryan, of Fort Sheridan; Capt. W. A. Moffett, of Great Lakes, and their staffs, and thousands of sailors and soldiers will be present. The proceeds will go to recreation funds.

Camp Dodge and his Illinois eleven will meet their old gridiron hero, "Potsy" Clark, now an officer in the army, when the Illinois and the Camp Funston eleven clash at the Kansas encampment. Clark is quarterback of the army eleven.

The contest will be a tough one for Illinois, which went through a bruising battle with Minnesota last Saturday, but the men are anxious to make a good showing against the soldiers. The game will be a test of west and east.

The contest will be a tough one for Illinois, which went through a bruising battle with Minnesota last Saturday, but the men are anxious to make a good showing against the soldiers. The game will be a test of west and east.

In the backfield, collegiate stars abound. At quarterback there is Moss, former Ames, Iowa, star; Robertson, a freshman player at Dartmouth last year, has first claim on the fullback job, while at halves several men are about on a par, including Thomas, former Iowa star; Derr, old Pennsylvania luminary; Jones, an ex-Victorian player, and Sarff, late of Drake university.

Reports received from Omaha indicate that a record crowd will witness the game. Two auction sales of seats on the livestock exchange in Omaha netted $3,600, thirteen box-selling for $1,100, ranging in price from $40 to $600 for a box. Other seats sold brought in $2,600.

Business men of Omaha are pushing the seat sales, and hundreds of dollars worth of tickets are being sold through personal solicitation.

ANCIENT FOES WILL MEET ON THURSDAY

Valley Championship Reposes for a Year at Lincoln With Nebraskans.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 23.—Thanksgiving day will bring meetings of "ancient foes" in the Missouri Valley conference, with one exception, the Nebraska-Syracuse game at Lincoln. The end of the day, as far as the conference averages are concerned, will bring little except rejoicing where the "boys" won or disgust and a flat pocketbook when the "gang" failed to "come through."

The valley championship repouses for a year at Lincoln with the Nebraskans. Their selection of the Kansas and Missouri teams as the two eleven to be met in their 1917 conference games was opportune and their choice of Kansas exceedingly well taken. The Jayhawkers had the strongest team in the conference outside of Nebraska and four periods was enough for the Cornhuskers to annex the title after their gambol with Missouri on the preceding Saturday.

Missouri Valley conference football this year has attracted more attention than usual probably due to the fact that the sport was abandoned by several universities of the sport turned their eyes to the west. By comparison Nebraska ranks with the greater teams of the nation, being probably one of the fastest aggregations of football performers west of the Mississippi river.

Schellenberg, the star back, made a play for himself in Nebraska traditions and he was ably assisted by Captain Shaw, Cook and Dobson.

Turning to the Thanksgiving day contests, Nebraska hopes to win from Syracuse, although it will not be either eleven's game until the final whistle is blown. It will be the Valley's best offering for the day in the pastime. Reports from Lincoln indicate that the Nebraskans are not overconfident but that Coach Stewart will have his men in the finest fighting trim of the season. The teams have not played a common opponent so that there is no basis for a comparison on the points of scores. However, the Nebraskans have had a trifle the heavier schedule and are given the position of the favorite as a matter of sectional pride by Valley followers.

The Kansas-Missouri game, which each year takes on a civil war coloring to the older alumni of the two colleges is the fact that Kansas several times has completed successful seasons in its favor only to lose because of the "fight" of a weaker team. The cripples on Coach Schulte's eleven are all being groomed for the fray and Putnam, a back of last year, is out for the win-up. The Missouri coach is going to be pressed to the utmost to perfect a defense against the heavy Kansas drives.

Ames will meet the Drake eleven, whose entire season has been one of discouragement. The Ames team, on the other hand, has not reported any losses on her record, having been beaten by Kansas and the University of Iowa, representatives of the "Big Ten," and is tied in point of numerals with the Kansas for second place in the conference. Because of these conditions the heavier Aggie team is expected to win by a topheavy score.

The meeting of Washington university and the St. Louis university eleven is a renewal of hostilities between "ancient foes" and involves a city championship. Just who will come out with the long end of the score is questionable.

The conference before the Turkey day tangles now stands with Nebraska at the forefront, Kansas second because of her defeat of Ames, although both of the schools have the same basis, won two and lost one; Ames third, Kansas Aggies fourth, Missouri fifth, Washington sixth, and Drake seventh.

BILLIARD PARLORS OPEN TO PUBLIC

Low Shaw and George Sutton, Experts, Will Give Exhibitions.

The new Subway billiard parlors were thrown open Wednesday morning and exhibitions will be given the remainder of the week by famous experts of the game. The new rooms are in the basement of the Utility building, and are among the finest in the state. They are equipped with sixteen Brunswick-Balke-Collender tables, eleven pocket billiard tables and five carom.

Jim Lambrakis, proprietor, has secured the services of Low Shaw, famous Chicago expert, to give exhibitions this week. "Wizard" Shaw, as he is termed, is one of the greatest trick billiard players in the world. He has toured the country for number of years, and has made himself known as a master of the art of trick playing. The Windy City expert is the originator of the William Tell shot, in which his ball jumps the table and knocks another ball from top of his stiff hat.

Another shot which Shaw has perfected is the fifteen-ball shot. Here he places all of the balls on the pocket billiard table in such a manner that all fifteen are made on the same shot. This cannot be done on every occasion and the experts admit that eleven or twelve balls is his usual average.

Shaw gave his first exhibition Wednesday afternoon and will appear each afternoon of the week and in the evenings at 8 o'clock. Besides his fancy shots Mr. Shaw will also meet at corners in straight billiards. He plays opponents 100 or no count, which is quite a handicap for most players, but not for Shaw, for he can take as easy as he lights his cigar. The expert will also teach a number of shots to those who want to learn. The proprietor has announced that George Sutton, former champion of the world, is expected and will give exhibitions with Shaw.

WAGNER WILL PLAY NO MORE BASE BALL

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 23.—Confirmation that Wagner, whom he characterized as the "greatest shortstop of all time," definitely has retired from baseball comes from Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh Nationals.

"He really should not have tried last season," Dreyfuss said. "He found it impossible to play with the speed which the fans have grown accustomed to expect of Wagner."

"Honus quits the game, to which he has been a credit, with probably as many friends as any ball player ever had," Dreyfuss stated, adding that Wagner was a man of a competence and would live in retirement with his family in a Pittsburgh suburb.

"I have every confidence in Hugo Bezdek to get results as manager," Dreyfuss continued. "You probably know him only as a successful football player and coach. When he was signed to manage the team it largely was an experiment but he has shown that he has good ideas and he will be given ample backing and time to get results."

MAY ADOPT NEW SYSTEM.
St. Louis, Nov. 23.—The financial status of the Athletic association of Washington university may result in the adoption of a new system of student assessments. It generally is assumed that the football returns carry the burden of other sports, but to date this has not been the case.

The suggestion of a single tax was adopted at a recent meeting of the athletic council. According to the plan each student pays a stipulated athletic sum in addition to his tuition. There are about 1,500 students at Washington university. About 300 have purchased season football tickets at $2, making a total of $600. The alumni tickets are sold at $5 each.

VILLAGERS AND WABASH CLASH THANKSGIVING

Third Meeting Between These Teams This Season—Both Have Loaded.

One of the bitterest games of the season is expected when Pine Village lines up against the Wabash A. A.'s in the City of Hills Turkey day. That both teams have loaded for the contest was shown by the Villagers' win over Hammond Sunday, and the strength that Wabash had against the Friars. The dope is even for the game. In their former meetings each scored a win and this will be the deciding contest.

Pine Village will have two all-American backfield men in Johnny Mautsbech and King, of Harvard. These stars will be supported by a strong line and may be expected to make big gains. Another feature of the contest develops from the fact that two brothers will oppose each other. Arthur Bergmann will play right half for the Villagers and his brother will occupy a similar position in the Wabash backfield.

Wabash will be weakened somewhat by injuries to Tibbs, center, and Milner, quarterback, who last Sunday in the game with the Friars.

FRANKIE MASON MAY MEET "KID" HERMAN

Movement Started to Organize Athletic Club With This as First Bout.

The fight fans of the city have started plans for the forming of a new athletic club in Fort Wayne. These plans were started as the result of the announcement that several fight promoters of the city would no longer put on matches. Should the new athletic club be formed the first match would be a ten round go between Frankie Mason, local champion, and Pete Herman, holder of the bantamweight title. Herman has been exempted from service and has consented to give the local scrappor a chance at the title. Mason has defeated all comers at his weight in the flyweight class and has made a good showing recently among the bantams. From his showing there can be no question but what he would make the title holder go all the way to beat him and there are those among us who don't believe Herman has a thing on Mason. Should the match be made it will be a great drawing card.

TIGERS MEET HUNTINGTON.
Last Sunday's defeat by the Batchelors for the city amateur title has not stopped the Tigers a bit and they are practicing hard for their game Sunday with the Huntington A. C.'s. They will hold a practice Wednesday night at 7:30 in Swinney park. The Tigers hope to pile up a large score on the Lime City team and thus show local fans that they still have the goods.

AERIAL LINE PROPOSED.
St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 23.—Plans to organize an aerial line between St. Louis and Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., are being considered by officers of the aviation field and officials of this city. Aviation has arrived in this city to select a landing place.

The idea of the aerial line was proposed by officers of Scott Field as many of the officers and students are required to make daily trips to this city.

FAST QUINTET CHOSEN AT CONCORDIA COLLEGE

This Year's Teams Bid Fair to Lay Up the Best Record of Recent Years.

The Concordia basket ball team has been announced by Captain "Big Boy" Heine. The personnel of the team follows: Dorn and Trinklein, forwards; Schuessler, center; Heine and Polster, guards, and Matthies and Trautman, utility.

This team is one of the best that ever represented the local school and they hope to make the best record this season of recent years. Dorn, at forward, is the third member of his family to play on the college varsity and he bids fair to outstrip the glory of his brothers. Trinklein is a newcomer but he is one of the fastest passers and speediest players ever developed at the school. Schuessler, at center, was the star of the second last season and is now playing the best game of his career. Captain Heine is well known from his record in former seasons and his teammate, Polster, with his size, looks good to stop anything. Matthies and Trautman are both excellent players, and may be expected to fill a hole in a dependable manner at any time.

The local season will open December 7 when the Mennonite college team, of Bluffton, O., will appear. Each team has won a game, the locals winning two years ago and the visitors last season, and this third contest should be a battle royal.

At an opening Thursday, Dec. 13, the first game will be between the Knitting mills and the Bowser squad, and the second contest will be a match between Pennys and Dudio. COMMUNITY TREE AT COLUMBIA CITY Committee Meets to Make Arrangements for Annual Festivities.

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Columbia City, Ind., Nov. 28.—The members of the community Christmas tree committee met Monday evening in the First National bank and named committees to obtain money and complete the arrangements for the program to be given on the court house lawn Monday evening, December 24, for the kiddies of the city. A treat in keeping with the times will be given to the children, and the remainder of the Christmas tree fund goes for the primal purpose of providing clothing for the school children during the year. This practice has been kept in vogue here since the community Christmas tree idea was started, and has been the means of preventing humiliation to needy school pupils whose parents were unable financially to sufficiently clothe their children.

The case of Florence Watson vs. the Winona Bible conference, on breach of contract, was dismissed, the defendants standing upon the judgment rendered against them in the justice's court in Kosciusko county. The case arose over the taking of a ticket from Mrs. Watson by the officers of the Bible conference, who claimed Mrs. Watson was operating a boarding house and violating some of the license privileges. Charles Hoffer pleaded guilty to failure to pay a dog tax and was assessed $1 and costs. David M. Pence and W. S. Nicky were reappointed jury commissioners for the year 1918.

COUNCIL APPROVES ANNEXATION PLAN

Favorable Action Taken on Report of the Special Committee.

The regular meeting of the common council was held Tuesday evening. The committee of the whole, appointed to investigate the annexation ordinance, brought in a report approving the report of the special committee. The ordinance which annexes to the city certain territory in the Driving Park addition, Irvington road, Goshen road and various other tracts was postponed until the next meeting.

The report of the special committee granting a 10 per cent raise to all employees under the jurisdiction of the board of works who are receiving less than $100 a month also was approved by the committee of the whole.

Contracts to the Edison Lamp works for incandescent lamps, and to the General Electric works for furnishing transformers and Watt meters were approved.

An ordinance appropriating $10,000 out of the garbage plant fund to the account of the disposal of garbage was also referred to the committee of finance. The money is needed with which to buy motor trucks for the disposal of the garbage.

Foster Sends Letter.
A letter from Samuel M. Foster to the mayor's veto on the Fort Wayne Land and Improvement company matter was read. This company decided to the city a park strip between Edgewater avenue and the river front in 1909. Through a mistake more land was donated than the company intended, and this land was requested returned. The council made an ordinance to this effect, but a communication from the mayor was received to the effect that he vetoed the bill because the land might be needed some day to build a bridge to replace the Columbia street structure.

The letter from Samuel Foster denouncing the action of the mayor was very bitter. A part of the letter read as follows: "If a man went into a store and bought a bill of goods tendering a $5 bill in payment, and he was given change for a $10 bill, through mistake, he would be a thief for not returning the excessive change. The same rule applies to the mayor's action in vetoing the ordinance. If the mayor pursues such a course, the city can not have cause for complaint if employees of the city stole."

A motion to strike the letter from the files was made and carried.

CROP VALUES

crops $2,500,000,000 and animals and animal products, including butter, cheese and eggs, about $6,300,000,000.

This year's values are based on preliminary production estimates and prices paid to producers Nov. 1, as reported by the department of agriculture. An official estimate of the principal farm crop values will be made by the bureau of crop estimates on Dec. 11.

Corn Still King.

Corn, the country's greatest crop, accounts for about one-third of the increased total farm products value of this year. It is estimated at about $4,700,000,000, compared with $2,296,000,000 for the five years, 1910-14. In point of quantity corn this year saw its largest production, being 65,000,000 bushels more than 1912 record crop. Next in point of value comes cotton with a crop value at about $1,981,000,000, accounting for more than one-tenth of the year's total value increase.

Hay is the next most valuable crop, with a total of $1,600,000,000, compared with $1,162,000,000 last year and $1,056,000,000 in 1915.

Wheat, the fourth crop in point of value, and worth more than a billion dollars for the second time in American farming history. Its value is estimated at $1,920,000,000, compared with $1,025,765,000 last year, and $629,929,000 the average value of 1910-14 crops.

No other crop has reached the billion dollar total, although oats comes within $25,000,000 of that figure, being valued at $975,000,000, compared with $636,000,000 last year.

Potatoes Worth Half Billion.

Potatoes passed the half billion dollar mark, with a total of $562,000,000, as compared with $447,063,000 last year. Flaxseed is valued at $29,000,000, and rice at $33,000,000, compared with $1,025,765,000 last year, and $629,929,000 the average value of 1910-14 crops.

Striking increase in value is shown by the beans, onions, kaffir and broom corn crops, all of which more than doubled last year's value. Beans are estimated at $120,000,000, compared with $45,000,000 last year, and $27,000,000 in 1915; onions at $19,341,000, compared with $9,882,000 last year and $7,281,000 in 1915; kaffirs, $128,000,000, compared with $34,269,000 last year, and $51,137,000 in 1915, and broom corn at $13,300,000, compared with $6,549,000 last year and $4,789,000 in 1915.

The peach crop is valued at $68,500,000; pears, $13,500,000; apples, $208,836,000; sugar beets, $54,000,000; cabbage, $14,900,000; hops, $12,000,000, and cranberries $2,400,000.

Was No Fun For Her In Russia Any More

TATIANA ROMANOFF

She's tired of Russia, is Tatiana. And who can blame her? She's been beaten it too, even if you had to stage a mock marriage to escape, as she says he did.

She's a princess, rather—she was until her daddy, Nicky Romanoff lost out.

Then she became a prisoner, forbidden to leave Russia.

But she got away, she did, so the news dispatches say, and now she's coming to America to give lectures to aid a Russian relief work. If the vaudeville don't wave big bills in her face and persuade her to change her mind.

The picture shows her in the palmy days before the big event in the uniform of the Fourteenth regiment of Cossacks.

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

Meanwhile Gen. Kaledines, hetman of the Don Cossacks, who is reported to control the grain producing territory of southeastern Russia, is growing in power.

Many army officers, opposed to the Bolshevik regime have joined his forces, including members from the front. Government employees in Petrograd have refused to recognize the Bolsheviks and have been dismissed from office.

As the British press toward Cambrai from the west they encounter more stubborn German resistance. Heavy fighting is in progress toward Fontaine Notre Dame, less than three miles from Cambrai, and near the village of Bourlon, about one mile northwest of Fontaine.

Both these villages were occupied by the British last week only to be lost in the face of strong German counter attacks.

Gen. Byng's men, however, are making progress against the strongly reinforced enemy from whom more than 500 prisoners were captured Tuesday.

Undismayed apparently by the losses sustained in their fruitless efforts of the past two weeks to break the Italian line between the Brenta and the Piave rivers the Austro-Germans continue to hurl fresh troops against the defenders of the passes to the Venetian plains. The latest attempt was against the left wing along the Brenta valley. An entire division was used in an attempt to break the Italian defenses. The Germans attacked in mass formation but was unable to break the defense of the Italians.

A fear of a German thrust that she would seize a base in Denmark should Norway permit the allies to obtain a base in her territory is reported to be behind the conference of the three Scandinavian kings in Christiania.

From Copenhagen two weeks ago it was reported that the kings of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark with their premiers and foreign ministers would meet in the Norwegian capital on Nov. 28. It is not disclosed that hostility to Germany in Norway has reached such a stage that Germany believed Norway was about to give aid to the allies and to counteract such a possibility informed Denmark that if such a step was taken Germany would occupy Denmark as a counter measure.

This is said to have brought about the recent conference between the kings of Sweden and Denmark as well as the present meeting.

Closed Thursday, "Thanksgiving Day."

doubtedly be in concert and the result of a general agreement.

German propaganda in Russia is increasing in intensity according to information received at the embassy here from the Russian ambassadors at Paris and Rome. Every effort they reported, is being made to misrepresent the attitude of the entente powers and that of the United States and misleading announcements of policy being spread in Russia and in other countries. In some circles it is believed that the influence of the allied powers now in Paris may have already served notice on the Lenin faction that any intercourse with Germany would be looked upon as severing relations. It was not apparent here if any such message had been sent.

side and entered into negotiations with the German military authorities.

GO TO JOIN KALEDINES.

London, Nov. 28.—The military cadets and virtually all of the officers of the anti-Bolshevik troops in the Moscow district, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post, have gone to join Gen. Kaledines, leader of the Cossacks, who is reported in control of most of southeastern Russia. Many hundreds of officers from regiments stationed in the rear and numbers from the front and virtually all the officers of the guard regiments, it is said, also have gone over to Gen. Kaledines.

Owing to the general disorganization and interruption of railroad, telegraph and postal service the correspondent says, it is extremely improbable that the elections to the constituent assembly will be held except in Petrograd and some other places. Interest in the election in the provinces is lukewarm.

ELECTIONS WERE QUIET.

London, Nov. 28.—Little excitement has attended the elections to the constituent assembly now being held in Petrograd, says the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Mail in a dispatch dated Tuesday. He thinks that less than 50 per cent of those entitled to vote cast their ballots, but perhaps another 10 per cent would vote before the polls closed Tuesday afternoon.

News from the army fronts, the correspondents, is contradictory, but apparently the vast mass of soldiers support the Lenin government.

Ensign Krylenko, the commissioner for war, has gone to Pskov, where he has dismissed Gen. Tchermissov, and given him command to a commissioner for the northern front.

The general army committee has dismissed Krylenko, advising him not to go to Pskov, and has appointed as it cannot hand over the command to an irresponsible person, but will itself continue in authority until the question of government is settled. The correspondent declares that it is impossible to say whether this is the resolve of the army itself.

General chaos, he adds, is spreading steadily and the extremists undoubtedly are gaining ground among the soldiers and the masses.

AMERICA WILL GIVE AID.

Petrograd, Monday, Nov. 26.—In response to representations that members of the railway union and their families were suffering from want of shoes, American Ambassador Francis in speaking to the supply commissions of the ministry of communications and of the northern railways said that he was urging the immediate shipment of shoes contracted for in America.

Six hundred cars of provisions and equipment, congested at Moscow, are being rushed to the front. It is reported that enormous quantities of foodstuffs have been discovered in Petrograd where they were being hoarded by speculators.

FIFTH ARMY GOES OVER.

Petrograd, Nov. 27.—The Russian fifth army announced today that it purposes choosing parliamentarians to be sent to Germany. This is the second instance of an announcement of definite support of the Bolsheviks by the military, the first being the second army whose action was previously reported.

SMALL PERCENTAGE VOTED.

Petrograd, Monday, Nov. 26.—It is estimated that from thirty to thirty-five per cent of the voters entitled to vote for delegates to the constituent assembly cast their ballots yesterday. Among the voters many women were noted. The balloting was conducted in an orderly manner and apparently there were no attempts at coercion. The most active campaigners were the Bolsheviks, who employed play-carded army motors, but the campaign was chiefly one of posters and house to house distribution of lists of candidates.

DETERMINED TO HOLD LINE.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Tuesday, Nov. 27.—A visit made today on the fighting ground at Monte Tomba, Monte Monfenera and other mountains in the fighting zone in the north and the Piave line where it joins the mountain front, afforded opportunity to see this central point of the present huge struggle and obtain from officers at several division and brigade headquarters direct information in regard to the condition of affairs. The tour was made with a staff officer from headquarters and covered about one hundred miles with stops at the main points of fighting. General Garibaldi, commander of the famous Alpine brigade, declared the fighting had shown that the Italian troops could hold the line beyond any question. Speaking of the spirit of his men, he added: "If the enemy ever does get past, owing to superior generalship or superior strength of guns, it will be only over the dead bodies of our troops, or they are determined never to yield."

The roads leading to the battle front showed increasing masses of troops being brought up for concentration on the threatened lines. Much artillery was coming in. The men and horses seemed to be in good condition after the hard drive.

Miles of infantry moved forward, the ranks showing fresh and youthful troops. They wore steel helmets and were getting ready to go into action. Many had little pink boxes in their hands which looked like packages of candy, but when they were opened it was not candy which was seen, but long thin bullets which fit into the Italian rifles. Every cartridge belt was full of these pink boxes.

Passing headquarters of an fourth army, which holds the vital line between the Brenta and Piave rivers, a staff officer of Gen. Robilant, commander of the army, summed up the general situation as "satisfactory," the reports showing that the enemy was being held.

While the pressure of the Austro-German forces is still impetuous, at the same time they seem to have been worn down by heavy losses and the unexpected strength of the resistance they have encountered. This staff officer estimated the enemy losses as fully two or three times those of the Italians, as the defensive lines always have afforded greater shelter.

PREPARING NEW OFFENSIVE.

Rome, Nov. 28.—On the Asiago plateau, in the Primolano basin, at the north of Col Della Beretta, and on the middle Piave," says today's Italian official statement, "our batteries in co-operation with bombardment flights have carried out concentrations of fire on enemy troops massed and in movement."

RAILS DEPRESSED BY GOVERNMENT PLANS

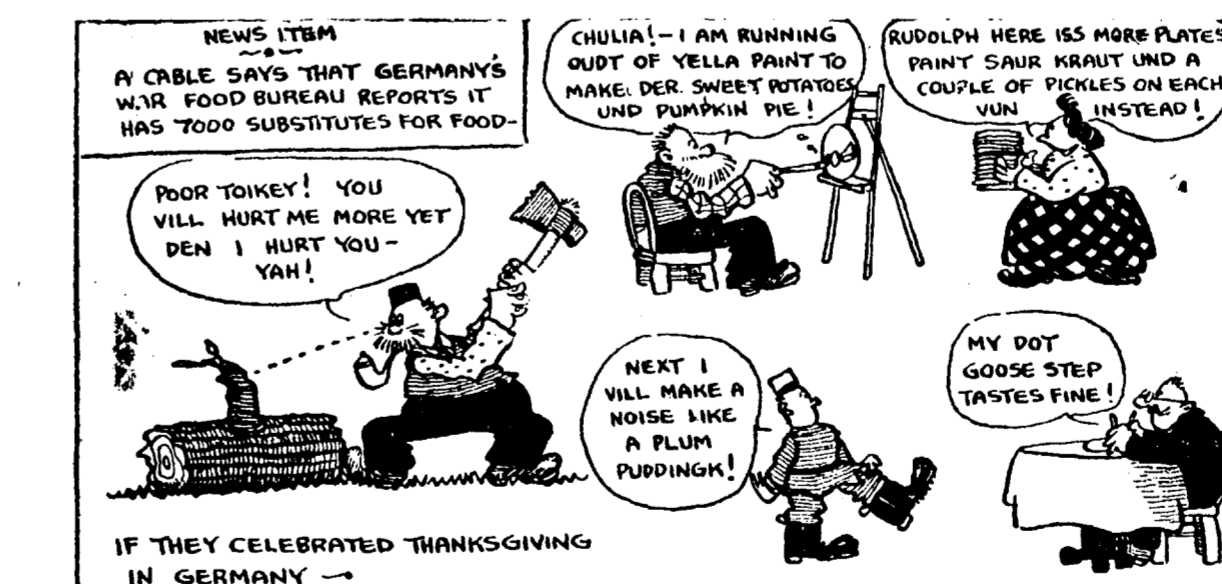

Prospect of Federal Regulation Makes Stocks Very Heavy.

New York, Nov. 28.—Heaviness marked the course of today's early trading on the stock exchange, standard issues tending toward lower levels.

The proposed governmental regulation of transportation companies and overnight developments abroad prompted further selling. Recessions in active rails extended from substantial fractions to two points. United States Steel and other issues reacted 1 to 1 1/4 points. Liberty bonds were steady.

Industrials and shippings improved materially during the sluggish forenoon, but rails became increasingly heavy on nominal offerings. Pennsylvania duplicated its recent minimum of 46 and Baltimore & Ohio made a new low under 50. The strength of a few specialties, including Studebaker, was attributed to professional interests. Bonds were dull with Liberty 4s at $7.92 to $8 and the 5s at $9 to $9.40.

PRICES AT MARKETS SHOW SLIGHT ADVANCE

Corn of Past Few Days Has Commanded Good Returns Because of Quality.

The prices at the various city markets showed a slight advance Wednesday. The hay and corn which have been reaching the markets during the past few days has been of exceptional quality and therefore gets a better price. Some corn has dropped as low as 90 cents a bushel because it did not have the quality. There are still a number of loads of baled hay reaching the markets, which are shipped to the Government.

At the city scales Wednesday twenty loads of hay were received, ten loads were baled hay. The prices were $20 and $22 a ton. Seven loads of fine new corn brought top prices of $1.12 and $1.18 a bushel. Seven loads of oats brought prices ranging from 65 to 68 cents a bushel.

Seat Sale Opens for May Robson.
The seat sale opens today at the Majestic for the engagement of May Robson in a new melodramatic farce "A Little Bit Old Fashioned" who will be the attraction at that play house.

The unconsidered wife of a successful New York attorney who has earned the sobriquet "old-fashioned" through her whole-hearted devotion to others and consequent neglect of self, is the central figure in this delightful play of domestic life. How her despised and rejected assistance proves to be the moving factor which saves her husband's reputation is the main theme of "A Little Bit Old Fashioned" and it provides a succession of scenes which for their mirth-provoking quality have rarely been equalled.

May Robson, as the neglected wife, is at her best and makes the character so human that none can resist its appeal. Her manner of delivering the fanciful tale of "Three Bad Men" keeps the audience in a gale of laughter and her scene as a pseudo maid is a comedy jewel.

Augustus Pitou, who is presenting Miss Robson this season, has provided an exceptional cast of clever players to support the comedienne and furnished a beautiful production.

AT THE PALACE

"One Girl's Experience" the Thanksgiving Attraction.

As a play "One Girl's Experience" is acclaimed by the theatergoers as a tremendous success. It is fascinating mainly because the unexpected always happens. The big thing about the play is the character of Lucy Fairweather admirably played and wonderful in its childlike simplicity and trust. Her love for Taulso true and pure and so forgiving and reasonable, is in itself enough to commend the play to thinking people, especially to the people who love a love story sweetly told.

One of the striking features of this gripping story of a girl who works is conceded to be the finest lady saxophonist in the world, coming to the Palace with Farrel Taylor & Co. Thanksgiving, on the big Keith fall festival show.

Kalman and the story was written by the well known Rida Johnson Young.

The theme is a martial one dealing as it does with an episode of the world war. In a thrilling prologue a group of soldiers are shown holding a jolly entertainment in a ruined chateau just back of the trenches. An enemy's shell demolishes the building and in the glare of the explosion the hero can be seen supporting his wounded comrade. The succeeding scenes are located far from the battle front, and the individuals most concerned are a blind mother and her pretty daughter who are expecting the son and brother, from whom they have been separated for many years. The hero appears and is mistaken for the son in question, and it is only the eventual love which develops between the sister and the officer which brings about a disclosure of the truth. The providential return of the wounded son solves the difficulty in which the lovers find themselves. The fun of "Her Soldier Boy" is contributed by Teddy McLane, an American war correspondent, who has nothing to write about, owing to the big "blue pencil" of the horrid censor, who deletes all of his dispatches to America.

Veteran Black Face Funnies on Thanksgiving Day Bill at Palace.

Farrell Taylor, the veteran black face comedian, whose negro dialect and stories have made two generations laugh, is bringing a brand new idea in vaudeville to the Palace for the Thanksgiving day bill opening Thursday afternoon. He is bringing two girls with him, a harpist and saxophonist, whose musical drill has been deftly woven into a little medley with Taylor's inimitable skill as a delineator of dandy characters.

Tom Davis and company in the skit "Checkmated" a little story with in a story that will keep any audience guessing until the last minute for the answer, is another promising number on this bill.

The girly, girly act, The Fascinating Flirts, in which Harry Evans and a bevy of charming lassies are seen to good advantage; Chief Little Elk and his company of red skin vocalists; the Kremka brothers, knockabout comedians; Nate Leipzig, the card trickster in some brand new illusions with a deck of ordinary playing cards and Davis and Moore, some song singers are others on this bill. NEW UPHEAVAL BREWS IN RUSS CAPITAL

FRESH REVOLUTION IS FORECASTED BY RENEWED TURMOILS

Betrayal of Allies by the Bolsheviks Will Bring Punishment to Russia by Loss of Supplies.

SITUATION WATCHED BY WASHINGTON

Washington, Nov. 29.—Out of the maze of Russian complications there emerged today word of renewed trouble at Petrograd, with a hint of another revolution to arrest, momentarily at least, the interest of the Washington government.

What proportions the movement assumed was a matter of conjecture, the early reports telling of firing and wounding of several persons and an epidemic of political turmoil. No official message has come on the outbreak and Ambassador Francis is presumed to advise Washington promptly of any disturbance that reaches such dimensions as to be at all significant.

Like the other entente allies, the United States government is reserving formal expression of its attitude toward the Bolshevik regime pending further developments, and its concern is focused largely on the conference set for next Sunday between the Bolshevik leaders and the Germans regarding armistice and peace.

From American and British sources warnings have gone out for the information of the party in power at Petrograd of the serious consequences of its movement for separate peace.

Lieut. Col. Judson, head of the American military mission at London, let it be known that the logical outcome of the movement would be the cutting off of the American supplies, and Washington officials unofficially conceded that his statement "summarized the situation accurately."

That the British contemplate issuing, in conjunction with the allies, a "reasoned statement" for the guidance of the Russians as to the serious results likely to follow conclusion of a separate peace, was disclosed to the British parliament yesterday by Lord Cecil. That plan is in line with the attitude of this government.

DISCLOSURES A FICTION.

Stockholm, Nov. 29.—At least one of the alleged diplomatic documents being published by Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevik foreign minister, is a fabrication, according to the Swedish government, which has received word from the Swedish diplomatic pouches and protesting against it on the ground that it might alienate the new Swedish government. M. Goukitch, authorized the statement that this dispatch as published in the Petrograd newspaper Pravda by the Bolsheviks is a deliberate fabrication. He adds:

"I never sent such a telegram to anybody. Any non-partisan reader can understand how absurd it is in view of the fact that I could not possibly have been in Petrograd at the time."

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

Efforts of the Russian Bolshevik government to arrange an armistice have met with the approval of the German authorities on the eastern front. The Germans have set next Sunday as the date for a conference to negotiate an armistice. The Germans received the Russian proposition within a few hours after Bolshevik emissaries had visited the Teuton side.

The allied diplomatic representatives in Petrograd, it is reported, while not recognizing the Bolshevik government, will acknowledge receipt of the proposals from the Bolshevik leaders as though they come from individuals. Speaking for Great Britain Lord Robert Cecil declares that the allies are considering the issuance of a "reasoned statement" for the guidance and warning of the Russians as to the serious results that are likely to follow if a separate peace is concluded.

Pope Benedict is not preparing a new appeal toward peace. This is announced by Cardinal Gasparri, the papal secretary of state, who says that the pope's desire for a just, Christian and durable peace remains unchanged.

On the Bourlon-Fontaine Notre Dame line the British and Germans continue their desperate struggle, the allied line remains unchanged.

THE DAY IN WASHINGTON

Thanksgiving Generally Observed in Nation's Capital.

PRESIDENT SPENDS THE DAY QUIETLY

Attends Public Worship and Later Goes Out for a Motor Ride.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Prosecution of the war was temporarily laid aside and while Washington observed Thanksgiving day and made it an occasion for city-wide hospitality for thousands of soldiers and sailors. Hundreds of private homes were thrown open to the uniformed visitors from neighboring camps and many religious and fraternal organizations held entertainments in their honor.

President Wilson spent the day quietly. He made no engagements during the day, except to attend union services in the morning at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, where Bishop Wm. E. McDowell preached. The president planned the usual motor ride later. After the church services the president, surrounded by members of his household, enjoyed a Thanksgiving dinner at the white house, prepared, it was stated, in accordance with the rules advocated by Food Administrator Hoover. The president's turkey this year, a forty-pounder, came from the Kentucky farm of South Trimble, clerk of the house.

All the cabinet members were in Washington today, except Secretary Wilson, who is in the west, and they observed the day quietly at their homes. Diplomats including those from North and South America and high officials and jurists, attended the annual pan-American mass at St. Patrick's church at which Cardinal Gibbons gave his blessing. American Flier in British Service Escapes from German Captors.

LEAPS FROM TRAIN MAKING HIGH SPEED

Cleverness Aids Thrilling Escape from the Land of the Kaiser.

London, Nov. 29.—Lieut. Patrick O'Brien, of Monmouth, Ill., south of Chicago, the first American member of the British flying corps to escape from Germany, has arrived in London. O'Brien eluded his captors by jumping from the window of a speeding train. He then became a fugitive for seventy-two days and, as his goal was within sight, narrowly escaped electrocution from the charged wires along the Holland frontier.

After cabling his aged mother, Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, at Monmouth, to expect to see him soon, Lieut. O'Brien called upon American Ambassador Page to seek advice regarding his desire to be transferred to the American flying corps. Last night O'Brien was dined by a group of admiring fliers, who, like scores of friends along the front, had believed he had been killed when he was reported missing on Aug. 17 last.

Wounded and Captured.

O'Brien, who is a sturdy young man of 27, was flying in the American aviation squadron at San Diego, Cal., when he went to Victoria, B. C., and obtained a commission in the Canadian army. Going to France the next year he distinguished himself by his great daring over the German lines. On the morning of Aug. 17 enemy gunners forced him to descend, but fortunately he landed behind his own lines.

Later in the afternoon of the next day saw him up again over the Ger-

American Military Authority, After a Visit to Front, Sees Invaders Weakening and Italy Stronger.

WINTER POWERFUL ALLY OF DEFENDERS

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Wednesday, Nov. 28.—(By the Associated Press.)—Brigadier General Scriven, of the United States army, accompanied by an aide and the American military attaché at Rome, has arrived at headquarters to study the Italian situation and make a series of reports to the American government. Major G. P. Murphy, head of the American Red Cross in Europe, also is here to co-ordinate the work of his organization. General Scriven was received by King Victor Emmanuel, who invited him to dinner, where the situation was discussed at length.

Reports from the front show that the enemy is still persistent but that little is left of his former vigor of attack and he is resorting to the old device of cunning. The Germans have posted placards in Italian reading: "Italians, we have crossed the defenses of the Piave. Your defense is useless. Let us pass without further bloodshed. We shall be in Vicenza in three days."

The exercises were concluded with a patriotic program of songs by the pupils. One of the features of the exercises was a patriotic address by Gilbert Meyer, son of Morris Meyer, the clothier.

"I have been in the army since I was a boy," he said. "During that time I have observed many American and many foreign soldiers, but never in my life have I seen anything equalling the men now here. Annual Thanksgiving Dinner Will be Followed With a Social.

A. G. Porter lodge, No. 141, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, will enjoy the annual Thanksgiving feast and social this evening at Unity hall. The proposition to pass the event this year, because of the conditions brought about by the war was submitted, but when it came before the membership for a vote, the sentiment was almost unanimous in favor of the dinner and it will be given at 5:30 tonight to all the members and the members of their families. A. G. Porter lodge is one of the greatest of the brotherhood organizations in the country, in a numerical and financial way. Its membership is also very patriotic as indicated by the vast number of firemen who are now in the army and navy, in defense of our country. Preceding the supper there will be a business meeting of the brotherhood and following the feast games and dancing will be introduced.

UNCLE SAM MOVES TO STOP WORK OF ENEMY

Government Gets Busy to End Fires Set by Aids of the Kaiser.

Special Dispatch from Our Washington Bureau.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—"Stop the fire in America and win the war in France!"

For some time this has been the slogan of the fire insurance companies of the United States whose officials were alarmed by the tremendous increase in fires due to incendiaries and to explosions caused presumably by enemy agents who desired to destroy American foodstuffs and supplies.

The president has issued a proclamation barring enemy aliens from certain districts and cities, and now Secretary of War Baker proposes to have piers wharves and other essential points on the Atlantic seaboard guarded by armed forces.

The government, at last aroused by the danger, is going to do all it can, but here are two things that the ordinary citizen can do.

First—He can help save food, because millions of dollars worth of foodstuffs have been destroyed, thanks to German incendiaries.

Second—He must not only be careful himself to prevent fires, but he can aid his government by being on the lookout against incendiaries and plotters who would like to destroy food and munitions.

The danger is not an imaginary one. Since this country entered the war about $25,000,000 worth of food has been destroyed. This is at the rate of $5,000,000 per annum, or enough to feed an American army of one million men for about a third of a year.

The food losses by large fires are estimated as follows: April $2,000,000; May, $2,500,000; July, $1,500,000; August, $2,000,000; September, $1,500,000; October, $10,000,000. This is a total of $19,500,000 and the smaller fires will swell this to $25,000,000, of which three-fourths is supposed to be due to incendiary fires.

The total fire loss due to incendiary causes in this country in 1915 was about $10,000,000.

The total due to the same cause in 1916 was about $25,000,000, but this loss was largely in munitions.

The total due to the same cause in the present year is already over $18,000,000 and two more months—November and December—are yet to be heard from.

That the widespread occurrence of fires is due to pro-German plotting is evident from investigation of the causes of fires and also from the character of the places destroyed.

Here are the principal fires of 1917 that have aroused Uncle Sam:

January 2—Brooklyn—Robbins Dry Dock and Repair Co.—$100,000.

January 6—Palo Alto, Pa.—Eastern Pennsylvania Railways Co.—storage houses destroyed—$750,000.

January 11—Lexington, O.—Cockley flour mill—$100,000.

January 24—East Aurora, N. Y.—Griggs & Ball flour mill—$100,000.

Brand Germans Put on Sailor's Hand

These photographs show Elias Laiho, Finnish sailor, and his branded hand. The Germans did it. Laiho was put in a German prison camp when the Russian ship on which he was working was taken by the kaiser. He was branded to prevent his escape. The tattoo says "Kr. Gef. 1914," an abbreviation for "Krieg Gefangen" (war prisoner). The Germans finally released Laiho and he signed on a ship bound for America.

November 2—Phillipsburg, N. J.—Northwestern Milling Co., warehouse of flour, other buildings and ten freight cars—$2,000,000.

This does not include about 50 fires along the water front of New York city and Brooklyn since the country declared war against Germany. Most of these fires were in food warehouses, flour mills and piers. The largest took place in a Brooklyn sugar refinery last June, causing a loss of $1,500,000 and costing twelve lives.

WHAT BELGIUM HAS DONE TO INCREASE STRENGTH

Army of Little Nation Is Much Larger and Is Now Well Equipped.

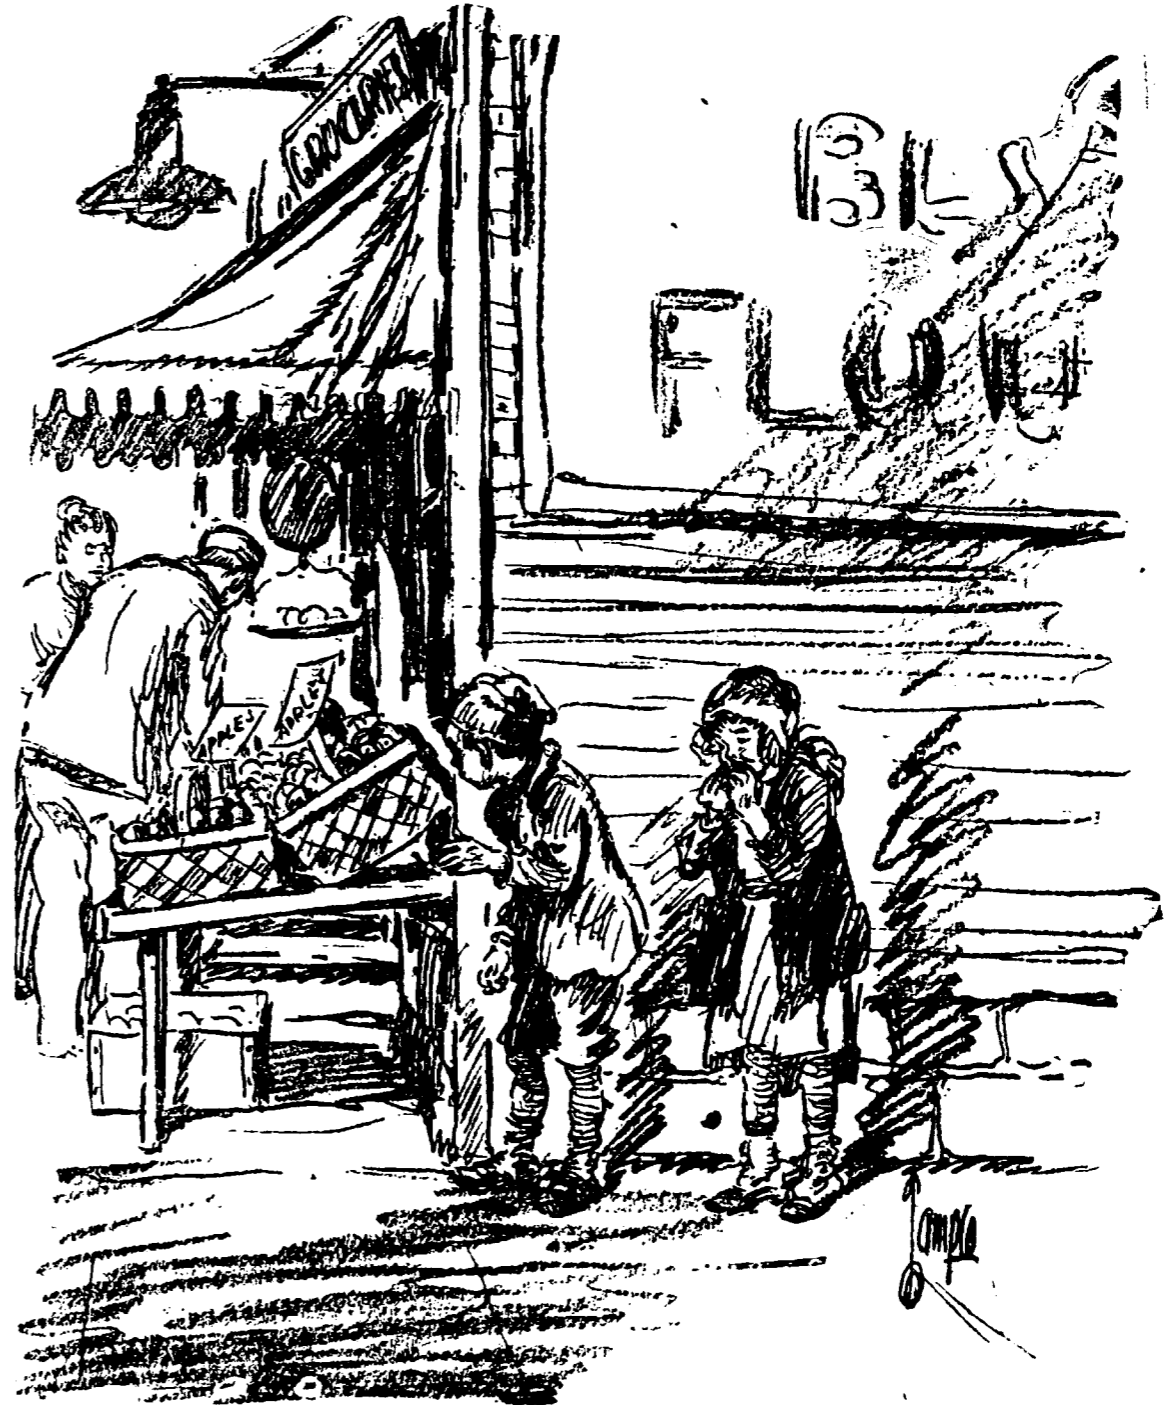

Havre, Nov. 15.—(By Mail.)—Ten divisions strong, the Belgian army is ready to take its part in the offensive in Flanders whenever the word is given. The Belgian minister of war today told the Associated Press that the Belgian army was composed of 117,000 men at the beginning of the war, increased by 20,000 volunteers. In August, 1914, and reduced to 60,000 men after the battle of the Yser. Since then by the enrollment of Belgian refugees and the enlistment of volunteers, who have braved the live wire barriers on the Holland frontier it has been brought up to ten divisions of well trained troops.

"If our army has not undertaken operations of a wider scope up to this time," said the minister, "it is because it does not devolve on it to decide the moment when these operations should begin. The army is only a part of the combined allied forces, acting in union and in accordance with carefully developed plans. The army had valiantly filled the roll that has been assigned to it. It has just proved by its brilliant participation in the last offensive in Flanders that it is ready to attack with fervor and awaits impatiently the hour."

Summarizing the work of the Belgian army during the war and referring to its difficulties in lack of equipment the minister recalled that in August, 1914, the army had only one machine gun for each 1,000 men, only three field guns per 300 men with ammunition for only about 800 shots for each piece. It had no light mortars, no heavy artillery, no grenades, no trench equipment, no ambulances, no pontoon crews, not a single motorcycle. It had only 1,000 bicycles, two captive balloons, a few superannuated airplanes and a few posts of wireless telegraph.

"We had only 32,000 infantry after the battle of the Yser," said the minister, "and its equipment was in a pitiable state. Munitions were lacking and all of the different organisms were deformed when the army base was transferred to foreign soil. This remnant of an army not only barred the way to Calais, but which doing so was organized and reinforced until it now counts three times the number of men that the battle of Yser left. The front held by the Belgian army has been gradually lengthened from about twelve and a half miles after the battle of the Yser to seventeen miles in January 1915; eighteen miles at the beginning of March, and about nineteen miles in June, 1916.

Sketches from Life :: By Temple

The Eternal Temptation

The Belgian army organized this front and held it alone, until the middle of this year, when as a consequence of the operations of the allied offensive in Flanders it was reduced, enabling the army to dispose of considerable reserves. The gigantic task of organizing defenses in this part of the front where water appears as soon as the ground is scratched has been frequently described. Other lines of strong defense were not only built there by the Belgian army but all of the necessary communications with the rear with barracks and shelters.

"In August, 1917, the army had twelve times as many machine guns as in 1914, seven times as many field guns and heavy pieces with five times as much ammunition as was on hand at the outset of hostilities.

"The impression that has gotten abroad that the Belgian army was reorganized and re-equipped entirely by its allies is an error," he added. "Belgium, exiled and deprived of all her resources, received generous hospitality and powerful aid from her glorious allies. It was on French and British soil that all was to be done, but the Belgians themselves took up the work of reconstructing. The Belgian army created by its own efforts the greater part of what was indispensable for it to live and fight. It is building its own cannon, making its own powder and its own projectiles."

ROCKEFELLER IS A MOTORMAN! HE'D RATHER PLAY A SAXAPHONE THAN HAVE MILLIONS OF DOLLARS

(Special Dispatch.)
St. Louis, Nov. 29.—Sherwood D. Rockefeller, motorman, would rather play on his saxophone than have to worry about stocks and bonds.

He is a cousin of the world's richest man. Anyone familiar with the features of John D. can note the marked resemblance between him and his cousin, Sherwood D. Their photographs tell the story of relationship.

But that doesn't mean much in Sherwood D.'s happy life.

"My aunts, back east, have told me that John D. is kin to us, but I have never bothered about it," he explained as he stepped off his United Railways car and hung up his switch iron. "The oil king comes from the same stock, but I have never tried to get acquainted with him or any of the rich branch of the family. I'm just as happy as they."

For seventeen years Sherwood D. has been going to work six and sometimes seven mornings each week. For as long he has kept one hand on the controller, the other on the air brake and a foot on the gong. He has hauled hundreds of thousands of St. Louisans to and from work and never a one thought that it was a Rockefeller of the House of Billions guiding the destinies of their street car.

"Sherwood D. is as good a motorman as John D. is a financier," asserts the street car superintendent. "And he's a better saxophone player."

In fact, Sherwood D. can play on the saxophone in neater style than his billionaire cousin can play with the golf sticks.

The motorman-saxophonist not only is a cousin, but he is a double cousin of the oil magnate because his mother also was a Rockefeller, his father having married a third cousin in New York. Sherwood D. was born on a Hudson river steamer, September 16, 1867.

He is a member of the Rockefeller family association.

"No, I've never written to him," Sherwood D. said. "That might look as though I wanted some of his money. I don't. I make all I need running a street car, and I get all the joy there is in life with my family, my home, my friends and my saxophone."

AT THE MAJESTIC

"One Girl's Experience" Matinee and Night, Today.

The new drama, "One Girl's Experience," which is one of the rare plays not depending upon a season's run in New York City, is proving by its marvelous success to be the most interesting drama of the past quarter of a century. It is full of interesting action throughout the four well staged acts. Situations rapidly follow one after another and the act endings are especially strong and lively in dramatic value. Every character is splendidly drawn from life by the author, who gives them abundant opportunity for effective work. "One Girl's Experience" is the story of a poor girl who went to New York to work for her living—comes to the Majestic matinee and night today.

MAY ROBSON SATURDAY.

"A Little Bit Old-Fashioned," a new melodramatic farce in which Augustus Pitou is presenting May Robson this season, will be at the Majestic Saturday.

This offering is composed of those ingredients that make the very best of theatrical fare to tickle the palate of a theater-going public. It is humorous, wholesome and thrilling and provides an evening of rare entertainment. The principal function of this bright piece is to win the tired mind away from every-day cares and it is warranted a successful gloom-chaser.

May Robson brings all of her buoyant, cheerful personality to the role of Mrs. Gordon-Smith and the character provokes tears and smiles in quick succession, while the feeling grows that somewhere we have seen this sweetly old-fashioned woman, so natural does the portrayal become through the artistry of the comedienne.

Mr. Pitou has chosen a cast of unusual distinction to support Miss Robson and the production is artistically staged.

"Her Soldier Boy" at the Majestic Monday Evening.

The latest musical comedy success entitled "Her Soldier Boy" will be the Majestic theatre's attraction on Monday night, Dec. 3rd. In the brilliant cast will be seen such as Edwin Irwin, comedian, Mabel Weeks, prima donna, Forrest Hart, tenor, Cyril Chadwick, character comedian, Marjorie Gieson, Lucille Gardiner, Elz Gergly, Selma Robert, Tim Pany, the Italian Dancer, Charles Derrickson, Drake Warner, Harold Vizard, Charles Burrows and Little Clarice Snyder, the most marvelous child actress on the stage. A chorus and orchestra of grand opera proportions and a super-sumptuous production will be in evidence when "Her Soldier Boy" is sung at the Majestic theatre next Monday night.

"THE AFRICAN DUKE."

Farrel Taylor, Black Face Character, at the Palace.

Farrel Taylor, who as "The African Duke" is known wherever black face comedy is loved, is bringing a shining new act to the Palace on the big Thanksgiving day bill opening this afternoon for the remainder of the week. There will be two performances this evening at 7:15 and 9:15 o'clock.

Mr. Taylor in his act is presenting two handsome girls, one a saxophonist and one a harpist, as well as another black face character.

"Checkmated" is the snappy little mystery novelty in which Tom Davis and company will be enjoyed for the last portion of the week. Phil E. Adams is presenting a miniature musical tabloid with his fascinating "Flirt," a lively, girly act produced with novel scenic effects and an elaborate costume investiture. The American Indian in white man's ways will be exploited by Chief Little Elk and company in song, instrumental numbers and dancing stunts. Nate Leipzig, the card wizard, the "Kremka Brothers in eccentric comedy acrobatics, and Davis and Moore, some song singers, are others on this bill.

PUBLIC INSPECT THE NEW SUMMIT CITY

Thousands of people passed through the new Summit City restaurant Wednesday evening in the Utility building. No restaurant in the state compares with it. Probably nothing claimed the attention of the public, however, quite as much as the huge pile of turkey, which were being prepared for today's feast in the kitchen.

The pool room in the basement was the stellar attraction for all pool players. T. Sutton, champion of the world, played a 200 point game with H. Shaw, the most distinguished fancy shot of the world. Spectators watched the almost magic manipulation of the balls with great interest, and when Mr. Sutton ran 105 without having the balls more than five inches apart throughout the game, they loudly demonstrated their enthusiasm.

Sergeant Urban, Arnold, of Fort Benjamin Harrison, is here to spend Thanksgiving with his relatives. He called at the Pennsylvania offices to see the boys this morning. Urban spent several years as a stenographer and clerk in that office. He is now employed in clerical and stenographical work in the office at the fort.

SEVENTY-FIVE ENLIST IN NEW MILITARY UNIT

Seventy-five names have been enrolled on the registers of Fort Wayne's new home guard unit. Major John E. Miller and Captain Richardson are sparing no efforts to give Fort Wayne a good showing in this new unit. All Fort Wayne organizations have been asked to help the unit either by the enlistment of its members or by gathering other recruits.

The fact that guard members will never be required to leave the state and probably not even the city, makes the unit a desirable one to business men who are exempted from draft, but still desire to perform a patriotic duty. Headquarters have been established in the west corridor of the court house.

THE RED CROSS—A BLESSING.

Among the vouchsafed blessings of heaven for which America may today give solemn expression of thanksgiving with no danger of overdoing its gratitude is the Red Cross. As in no other land this noble organization has become an institution in the United States. Today its work in the war is second only to the activities of the general government itself. As the war goes on its usefulness will increase and its mercies will expand. It will be with the armies in the field, with the recruits in the camp, with the helpless at home and with the destitute, oppressed and suffering wherever ruthless autocracy has thrust the multiplied horrors of an unsparring strife upon the innocent and weak.

It is three-score years since Florence Nightingale became the "Angel of the Crimea" and set such an example of mercy in war as became the foundation of what the world today knows as the Red Cross. To no one more than to our own Clara Barton is mankind indebted for the spread of this noble doctrine of humanity. Wherever there has been pestilence and disaster and humankind was crushed by its woes the American Red Cross has been first in the fields of affliction to succor the bruised and starved. Since the great war began it has been the support and the salvation of Belgium and parts of France and other regions of war-torn Europe. Now comes to the American Red Cross the greatest of all its opportunities and the heaviest of all its burdens.

The Red Cross society has been splendidly financed by the generous and patriotic spirit of America. It has enlisted the services of millions of men and women. It has performed a prodigious labor to organize its forces for the war, to send its battalions of mercy to the firing lines and into the hospitals back of the battle fronts. Under its direction and by its work immense hospital supplies have been prepared and the work goes on steadily and increasingly. Preparation for labor in the great theater of the war and in the broad field of necessity at home are under way and well advanced in all details. The American Red Cross is ready to do and is doing its immense part in the war for liberty.

So it is that on this day, set apart to render to the Almighty the thanks of a greatly blessed and grateful people, we should count among the best of the vouchsafements of a benign providence the gift of the American Red Cross and render gratitude to the Giver of it. As the war goes on and its afflictions multiply and its woes become blacker and heavier and we find ourselves sore stricken as other peoples already have been in the world's welter of strife, we shall appreciate to the full, if we do not already, what the American Red Cross is to us and to each of us.

THE SITUATION IN RUSSIA.

The conditions that have arisen in Russia are a disappointment and an embarrassment to the allies, but they do not constitute a disaster. Russia's loyalty to the cause that in common with the allies she must see triumph if she would be free and safe would have brought the war by this time to a stage from which its finish might be viewed. Russia, however, has merely crippled her friends. She cannot betray them for their strength within themselves increases as she backs farther and farther out of the work to make the world secure for democracy.

Nor should the oburgations of the world's democracies be launched on all Russia. The elements now in control in the capital do not stand for the whole mass of the people. There are moderate and sane elements in that great country that after awhile will come to the front when the corrupt and the madmen who are led by the corrupt have completed the hell-broth they now are brewing. That Russia could come through the political and social revolution that last spring destroyed everything with which they were familiar and set up completely a freedom of which they never even had dreamed, and escape the upheavals, turmoils, clashing rivalries and hare-brained undertakings that are the concomitants of all great convulsions of the sort was more than could be expected, although the Russians did start out as though they meant to accomplish that unprecedented achievement. Added to the conflicting stirrings within themselves have been the diligent labors of the German propaganda. That for the time has come to something of a triumph. We do not believe it will be long-lived. The elements that are directing Russian relations with this propaganda are much distrusted by their countrymen and will be repudiated when the saner counsels of saner men have prevailed, as ultimately they must if Russia as a great nation is not doomed to wreck and ruin.

The armistice that the Bolsheviks is now negotiating with Germany to obtain and the peace that it professes to seek will have no influence upon Russia's allies in the war. We doubt if it will find even a spirit of tolerance, much less an acceptance, among the larger mass of the Russian people. It may result for the time and perhaps permanently in getting Russia out of the war, but if it should do that it most probably will create complications the Bolsheviks is not looking for. The allies—and the United States is here included—will hardly submit to such betrayal without taking measures to fend themselves from the most dangerous of its consequences.

All this, however, is merely speculating upon uncertainties in the greatest field of uncertainty on the planet today. It is a more reasonable conclusion than any other abstract opinion as to Russia can be that the greater body of the people there want to save the revolution and to see its fruits crystallized in a constitution and administered by law. If this is so there will be a stamping out of anarchy and anarchists after awhile and the setting up of the bulwarks of order. With this will come along measures for the national security against perils from without. There can be no free and safe Russia with Prussianism triumphant and rampant on all her borders, as it will be if the allies lose the war.

THANKSGIVING.

It may be conceived that a nation plunged into the greatest, bitterest and most perilous of all the world's strifes has not great vouchsafement of blessings for which to be thankful. America is in no such case. The blessings that have been the constant portion of this nation from its beginnings are still of its abundances. The greatest of them will abide and in no time of its history have they been greater or clearer than in this day of trial by fire.

The freedom that the forefathers sought here and for which they battled is the increased heritage of their children. The soil that they made the foundation of the world's greatest and best democracy still yields its riches. The institutions that they established and made perpetual are our own to cherish and enjoy if we will but do it. The ideals that animated them and guided them are our ideals and today we have a finer vision of them and a higher aspiration from them than ever before. Americans on this day of annual Thanksgiving have more than in any other year for which to be grateful. It is a privilege to strive that the world may enjoy the freedom and security that have been ours for near a century and a half.

If grosser souls can think only of the material benefits that have come, then the record of a year's harvest almost without precedent for abundance will serve to make them feel that they have been well treated by a providence from whom no doubt they expect much. Employment is abundant and if the cost of living is high, the means of meeting it are not wholly incommensurate. The materialist has indeed a great deal to be thankful for.

We note with misgiving that the counsels to the man to "lend the furnace do not in all things agree. The experts should get together and formulate the regulations. Either a "thin" fire is the way to practice conservation or a deep fire is. We fairly question that it can be both. Something perhaps depends on the furnace, the coal and the fallible human tender.

Some day the world will thrill to read the chapter of history that tells how the soldiers of Italy held the line on the Piave. It has been glorious and it has been almost as great a shock to the Germanic powers as the Prussian defeat at the Marne.

Considering the variety of strange things that have been discovered to be afflicting Bianca de Saulles the wonder is that after killing him she did not also eat him.

It's a barber's job to spit hairs—the captains of industry split the difference.

A good many people in this world are contented with a crust—and all the rest of us have to be contented with it or go hungry.

We'd rather be a bankrupt dude with a bogus title than a slant-topped commercial thief who made his gold looting the pockets of the poor.

What do the infusoria in a drop of water know of the minds of Caesar and Socrates? And then, on the other hand, what do the minds of Caesar and Socrates know of the infusoria in the drop of water?

This universe is a grand old puzzle—or, a game of euche, say—and the devil is playing the right bower just now.

We'd rather be a microbe on the rotten skirts of a doubtful respectability than a sleek pro-German lounge browning on the greasy beard of Prussian super-kultur.

Thanksgiving day should mean more to us this year than ever in the past—Haig has jarred the Kaiser on his uneasy throne, and Russia has placed herself definitely where she has belonged ever since she bred the first anarchist.

To the Lady With the Broom.

Fair student-cousin, in thy chintz-y room,
Thy study bower, (with its chafing dish—
That magic caldron, that cooks cheese de-lish),
I ask thee, cousin, does thy hand-maid's broom Invade thy sacred precincts, bringing gloom
And deep despair with each destructive sweep
That scatters all thy papers? "Thy wish That never shall a biddy thus assume
To dust, to sweep, to garnish, or to groom
Thy desk and tables, till they look ka-tish.
Ye gods? My countless verses that have fled
Before the onslaughts of a chamber-maid!
And legion are the papers that she shook
Into the furnace, that I ne'er had read!
And after she hath done her daily raid,
It taketh me two hours to find a book!"

Where Names Don't Count.

We observe that the "November Public Auction Sale of Indiana Lands" will open a lot of new territory. For instance James M. Walkingslick and Charlotte Sixkiller will offer their homes to paleface. Henry Dredguth and Sarah Hair and Sampson Backward are also billed to let loose of their farms. In Rogers county, Okla., Luck Waterfalling and John Noisewater give up choice allotted lands. But it is dreadful to think that Akie Batt, Darkey Dry and Ollie Flinx must also lose their homes.

To George Creel.

I was a news-censor,
Who used thousands of blue pencils.

I sat at a huge desk
And read many papers.
People brought it some job,
But it was not facile with Daniels
In the navy.

The papers printed my stuff;
It looked good—
Only next day it proved all wrong.
Why, I wonder,
I called it nice writing.

But something went wrong with the Bureau,
And I got all mixed up.
War is an awful mess
Of cables and things.
I didn't like it at all.

Ah, Woodrow—the public is cruel,
Even if I WAS Creel!

Our Daily Tip to the Kaiser.

Test for Honesty.

"That man," remarked an admiring friend, "is so honest he wouldn't steal a pin."

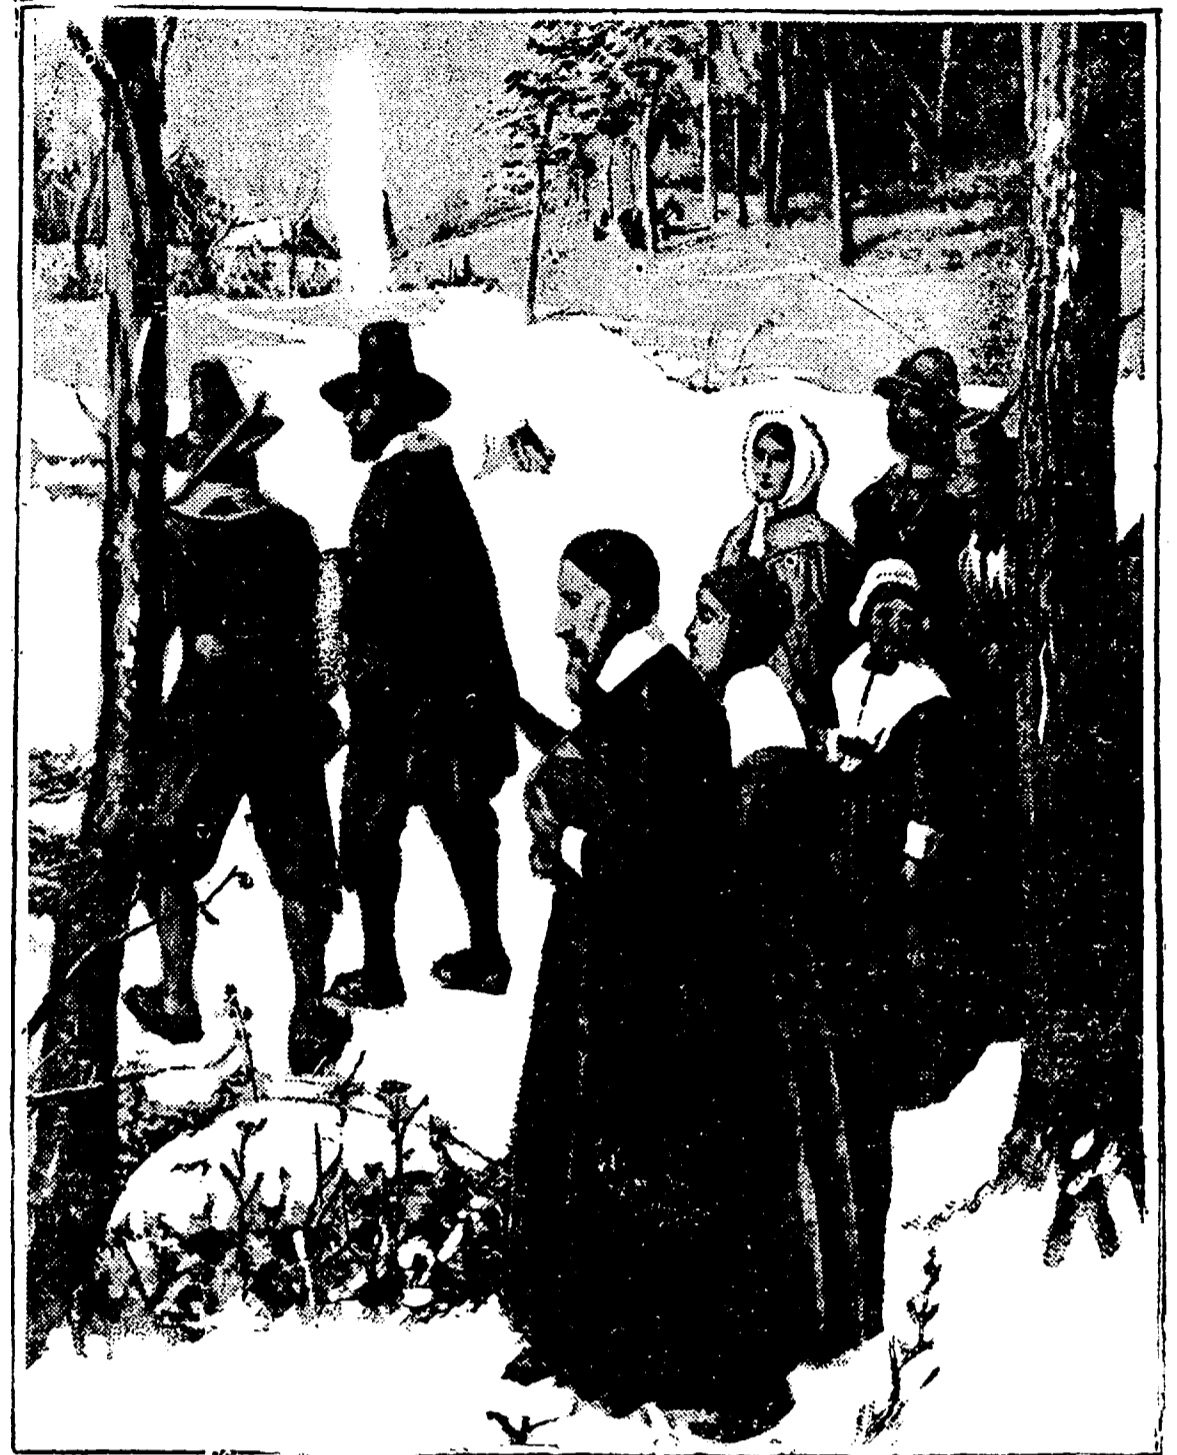

"That so?" inquired the skeptical acquaintance. "Did you ever let him use your lead pencil for a few minutes?"

"Why, no."
"I thought as much, I did."
"But, what does that prove?"
"Well, he has my pencil yet."

THANKSGIVING—THE BEGINNING OF IT

"PRUSSIA."

By BOOTH TARKINGTON.
Prepared for the Indiana State Council of Defense.

There are, no doubt, many good people in Germany—kind and intelligent people—but they are not the people who are ruling Germany. The men in control of the German empire are those with whom we have to do. We are making war upon them, and necessarily upon all who obey them. For the sake of convenience we call them "Prussia."

George III of England was a German, and in disposition he was what we call a "Prussian." We fought the Prussianism in him. Prussianism is merely that "imposing-our-will-upon-others" of which certain Germans have loved to write and talk with such relish. The Prussian ambition, as Prussians not only confess but proclaim, is to impose the Prussian will upon the world—that is, to make the world Prussia's hired man without salary.

We are now fighting the Prussianism of Germany as we once fought the Prussianism of England. America has consistently hated Prussianism, but the reason it is necessary for us to fight Prussianism is that if we didn't fight it, there would eventually be no America; the world would consist of Prussia and Prussia's servants. The Prussians are already planning their next war, in case this one doesn't get them so far as they planned that it should. They are willing to make no peace which does not put them in an advantageous position for their next war upon what portion of the world remains unmastered by them. And making peace with them is for us a dangerous business, because, by their own declaration, their word of honor is merely a word to be used in trickery for their own advantage.

They have declared their faith in the beneficial use of lies, and have built up for themselves a tribal deity, a Prussian ideal of a god—merely an invisible Prussian. They say they believe in this god, who necessarily, from their point of view, approves the use of oath-breaking and loves a good slaughter in which his chosen people triumph. They are willing to make to them (particularly in his demeanor toward the western front) either a god in difficulties or one of insupportably whimsical eccentricities. Nevertheless, his bloody and ironic ideas are their own, and will be those of our descendants, if Prussia "imposes its will" upon us.

You see a child—a boy in the school yard—"imposing his will" upon others, any day you care to look. He takes a weaker boy by the back of the neck—or twists his wrist—and "imposes his will." The weaker boy finds the pain stronger than his own will. That is the whole case of "imposing our will." The imposer—that is, the Prussian—makes pain. He makes the pain of others take the place of their will, of their freedom. The Prussian means to make the world suffer until it gives up its freedom and serves him.

He began the war, he said, because the Teutonic will had been imposed upon Serbia. Therefore Austria, with Germany backing her, began killing Servians, knowing that this involved general European war. Prussia wanted such a war because Prussia meant to impose its will upon Europe as a step before imposing its will upon the world. So far, Prussia has imposed its will upon Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Turkey, Serbia, Belgium, the inhabitants of northern France and lower Roumania. The imposition of the Prussian will has been removed from certain lands in Africa and from the surface of the sea, but it threatens all the rest of the world. No threat can be deadlier, for it is the threat of death, pain and slavery.

Nothing has been more difficult for America to believe than that such a threat not only existed, but was a threat eventually to be as ominous to America itself as it has been to Belgium. America could not believe that such a thing as the Bernhardi soul really lived, or "amounted to anything." But all America that is not asleep knows now.

There are still some Americans who sleep on, in a sleep of illusions. They will be awakened.

Prussianism is not drowsy, it is awake—and, like all predatory things it is most awake in the darkness. Thus, wherever there is greatest darkness in America, Prussianism is most awake. It plays upon the uninformed, upon the ignorant, upon the dull, upon the venal, and makes them its agents. It plays upon the gentle, upon their shrinking from blood, and makes them the unwilling agents of its bloody self. And, that it might deceive later into being its agent, it raised the cry, "The Rich Man's War."

No lie so grotesque that the care not poor human minds ignorant enough to believe it. Cartoons in German papers represent Morgan commanding the president of the United States to attack Germany in order to save Morgan's money, lent to England. Consider the fact that millions of Germans believe this. Consider the fact that it is believed by thousands of persons who have the legal right to call themselves American citizens. We who write of Prussianism as I am writing now—we get fierce and sincere ill-written letters from readers of our articles; letters demanding to know how much "gold" we get from "Capitalists" and "Munition Grifters" for writing in defense of the "Rich Man's War."

Who put that phrase in the mouths of these poor people? Who raised that cry? Who started the lie? And what manner of creature is it who would thus play upon ignorance to make it a traitor? Go, feel an evil creature here, a foul opponent that we trust we would trust an Apache. It is Prussia.

We are talking of peace. We can make peace with Germany, but we dare not make peace with the danger we have come to call Prussia. When Prussia is crushed, or when Germany has Prussianism under control—or exercised out of Germans and Germany—then we can begin to think again of the peace that Prussianism set out to destroy forever. It is not peace to let the vagrant shifting ingredients into the yard. The wolves will be hungry again when they have finished the chickens.

THE AMERICAN SOUL

"No matter how great the cost may be, this country's participation in the world war will bring a reward immeasurably greater. When the smoke of battle clears away and the prayed-for peace is established, that great, intangible, but mighty thing which may aptly be called the American soul, will have assumed the strength and flawless proportions to which it was destined. It has been great and strong and virile, but it has lacked much of the element of oneness. War will weld the vagrant shifting ingredients into a great single unit, and when the great American soul comes fully into its own, the dreams of the forefathers—the founders of this nation—will be realized."

Felix J. Streyckmans, chairman of the foreign languages division of the liberty loan executive committee of the seventh federal reserve district, thus expressed himself when the recent campaign in the interest of war bonds was at its height. Mr. Streyckmans was born in this country, but his parents came from Belgium.

"The war will mean the permanent passing of the hyphen," he went on. "There will be no more hyphenated Americans; there will be no more divided allegiances, although the natural motherland sentiment may burn as brightly as ever before. But America will be the land of Americans. America will be as hospitable as in the past, as wholesome in her desires to extend the helping hand, but it will be a more united America—a America whose flag can have but one meaning to all. War is a great leveler of caste, and the time is not far distant when there will be but one class in this great land of ours—and that class will be known by no word—"American."

"Victory has not yet perched upon the banner of free America, but it must perch there eventually. The more wholehearted and earnest we do our part in the great struggle, the sooner will the peace of the entire world be assured and that peace will prove a blessing to friend and foe alike. The organizations of American citizens of foreign birth or extraction which resulted in connection with the recent campaign to raise war funds must be maintained and strengthened for future work. When another loan is authorized by the government at Washington, the foreign-language division of our people must be in a position to do even greater work than it did in the last campaign."

Mr. Streyckmans and his associates will labor throughout the interim between campaigns to strengthen the various foreign-language organizations for work in the next liberty loan drive in the seventh federal reserve district.

VICTIM OF FOOTBALL.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—Harry Da Loff, 26 years old, died in a hospital last night from injuries received in a football game recently. He is the second Detroit to succumb to football injuries this fall.

FROM THE SENTINEL, PAGES 25 YEARS AGO

Jerome Cook, the inventor of the Cook automatic boiler cleaner, moved from Huntington to this city yesterday.

Elijah Robinson, 168 Hoffman street, who severely injured his shoulder a few days ago is improving and will be able to resume work within a few days.

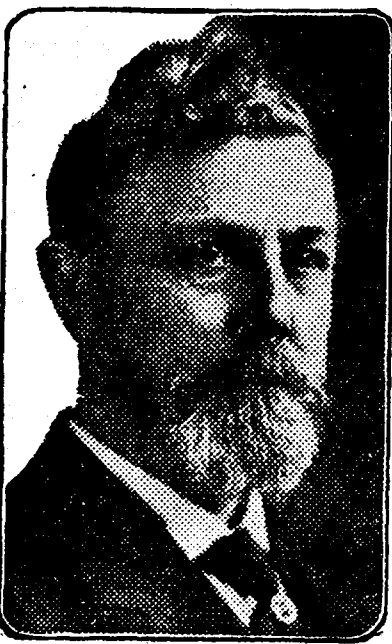

Prof. and Mrs. T. L. Staples are now pleasantly settled in their new home, 168 East Jefferson street. Mrs. Staples is "at home" on Wednesday. A frame barn on the farm of H. J. Havel, three miles east of the city, burned to the ground the other morning. The loss is $1,500, mostly covered with insurance.

The city today is filling up with delegates to the fifth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor societies of the state of Indiana, which is being held at the Princess rink.

Frank Poirson has purchased the livery stable known as the Barnum stable on East Columbia street from Mrs. Barnum, who has conducted it since the death of her husband. Mr. Poirson is well known in this city and his brother, Peter Poirson, of the post-office, will be associated with him in the enterprise.

D. W. Zintsmaster left his gray pony, harnessed to a light buggy, standing unhitched on Broadway last evening. The horse took fright at an electric car and dashed down Broadway to Wayne, and turning east, started down the asphalt at a high rate of speed. The animal was caught by Officer Siebold near the Temple.

The festive burlgar was at work last night, thinking, perhaps, that people would be sleeping soundly after Thanksgiving turkey. They visited the residence of Urban S. Hoffman, salesman for Root & Co., who resides at No. 8 Riverside avenue. The burglars entered the house about midnight by the dining-room window. Mrs. Hoffman had a stand full of choice potted plants sitting in the front of the window, but the thoughtful burglar set them down on the floor and walked in. A fine overcoat, a suit of clothes and an elegant gold watch were stolen.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature. Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

and women all over the country now use it regularly.

"Laura" says: "Some time ago I contracted a very severe cold and cough. I have tried many remedies, but they do not seem to help me at all. I wish you would advise me what to do."

Answer: What you need is a laxative cough syrup, one that will give relief from your system. The following prescription will check your cold and cough: Get a 25-cent package of concentrated essence mentho-laxene and make according to directions on the bottle. Take a teaspoonful every hour or two until your cold is better. This will relieve you in a very few days.

Miss C. W. R. asks: "I have tried for two years to diet so as to increase my weight and improve the quality of my blood, but in vain. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: Thin, scrawny, bloodless people need assistance in absorbing nutrition from the food eaten, and for this particular purpose I always prescribe three-grain hypochloride tablets, a most effective preparation if regularly and persistently used, as it seems to increase the red and white corpuscles of the blood, thus affording health, strength and increased weight.

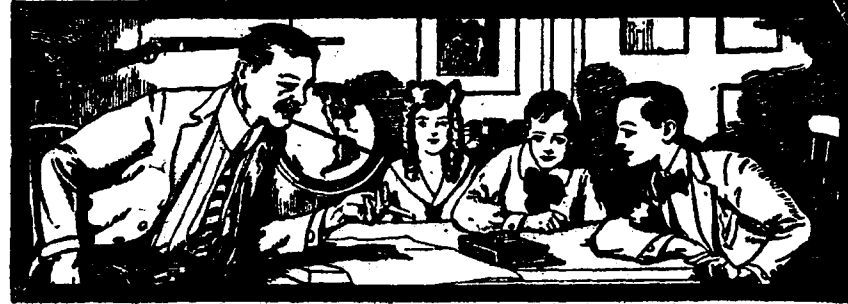

Geo. V. G. writes: "Perhaps you can prescribe for me, as I am at a loss to understand my condition. For the past year have suffered extreme nervousness, trembling and extremities are cold. Have poor appetite, am weak, listless and no ambition to work or seek recreation. Am tired all the time and in no sense the strong, capable man I was a few years ago."

NOTE: For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press and the radio. His advice has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands of him expressions of gratitude and confidence.

NEW HAVEN NEWS.

New Haven, Ind., Nov. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Copeland, Miss Virginia Jackson and Asbury Hurling, who had been spending Sunday at the H. Jackson home at New Haven, met with an accident Sunday evening on their way to their home in Fort Wayne. Mr. Copeland, who was driving the machine in which the party were riding, took his hand from the wheel to put on his gloves, when the car jumped from the road into a ditch, striking a telephone pole. The occupants were pretty well shaken up and received some cuts and bruises, but fortunately no one was seriously injured. The car was considerably damaged.

Dr. Morris, accompanied by Dr. Smith, of Hoagland, left Tuesday for a visit in Georgia.

UNCLE HARRY TELLS WHY AMERICA SHOULD BE THANKFUL TODAY

"Well, as long as today is a national holiday, who can tell me our national bird?" asked Uncle Harry, as he stood with his back toward the blazing logs in the open fire place.

Joe was already with a reply when he noticed Uncle Harry was smiling.

"The eagle," said Jimmy, quickly, seeing that Joe was hesitating.

"How about it, Joe, is Jimmy right?" asked Uncle Harry.

"I thought it was the eagle, but there's some joke about your question," said Joe. "You're smiling and I saw you wink at father."

"The eagle is a fine big bird," said Uncle Harry, "and for 364 days out of the 365 he reigns supreme, but to-year as it has been in past years. But it seems to me that we should be thankful that our farms have been able to produce even as much food as they have, when so many of the lands throughout Europe have been turned into battlefields and the peoples reduced to want and suffering."

"I guess the people of Europe are very thankful to America," said Joe.

"I know they are," said Uncle Harry. "And if they can be thankful to us, it seems to me that we should be thankful that we have been able to feed and help them."

"This new kind of a Thanksgiving seems to me to be the best kind—a real, genuine Thanksgiving," said Helen.

"I know they are," said Uncle Harry. "Then everybody laughed, and after a moment, Uncle Harry said: "On Thanksgiving Day the turkey is THE national bird. But I guess Mr. Eagle doesn't mind for one day, at least, because he'll be alive and well on Friday and then he'll be the National Bird for 364 days, and poor Mr. Turkey will be all gone, except one drum-stick and maybe a wing and the neck, and by Saturday mother'll finish him up in the soup kettle."

And after every one had had another good laugh, Uncle Harry continued: "But folks, there is a more serious side to Thanksgiving Day and we mustn't overlook it, this year of all years."

"Did President Wilson issue the regular president's Thanksgiving proclamation?" asked Helen.

"Yes, he did," said Uncle Harry. "And he pointed out, in his proclamation, that even in the midst of the tragedy of a world shaken by war and disaster, and in the midst of all the sorrow, our country had reason to give thanks, because in entering this war, the United States pledged itself to fight for those principles of freedom and down in our Declaration of Independence. And what makes it even finer is that our country has gone into this great conflict not for its own sake, but for the sake of all the peoples of all the nations. So it seems to me that Thanksgiving Day is the National Bird for 364 days, and poor Mr. Turkey will be all gone, except one drum-stick and maybe a wing and the neck, and by Saturday mother'll finish him up in the soup kettle."

Editor's Note—Uncle Harry will be glad to answer inquiries, either in this column or by mail, provided letters are signed with the full name and address. Letters without names and addresses will not appear in the articles. Copyright 1917 by The M-C Syndicate. Philadelphia, Pa.

SOUTH BEND HAS LIVE

WHITE SLAVE MYSTERY

Drugged Woman Found With Acid Brands on Body and a Strange Story.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Branded on her breast and neck, apparently with acid and dazed as if from drugs, Mrs. Ida Browning, aged 24, of Somoanauk, Ill., was found semi-conscious in the Union station last night. She revived two hours later at a hospital and told of having been kidnapped at a railroad station in South Bend, Ind., and held by a man and woman, who, under the pretense of helping her, had enticed her into an automobile.

The mystery surrounding the woman was intensified when she was undressed at the hospital. Pinned under the front of her waist with a crudely made dagger was a note reading: "We mean business. Beware. Conspired in the dress was a note, apparently written by Mrs. Browning: "Notify my husband, Jim Browning, at Somoanauk."

On her back the physicians found a small patch of skin reddened as from an acid with the letter R burned distinctly into the flesh. On her breast, a crudely drawn butterfly had been burned with the same acid.

Mrs. Browning said she had left the train at South Bend to check her baggage into Illinois, when a man and woman informed her she was at the wrong station and offered to take her to the right place. She said she remembered nothing after entering the car until she awoke confined in a room. The police of South Bend and Three Rivers, Mich., which the police believe is the town in which she was held, have been notified.

Several times, Mrs. Browning said, she remembered having been given something to drink after which her mind would become a blank. She said she was unable to tell how she escaped from her captors nor how long ago it was, nor how she reached the station in Chicago.

POPE IS PREPARING NO NEW PEACE PROPOSALS

Firm Denial Made That His Holiness Aided Italy's War Disasters.

Rome, Nov. 27.—(Tuesday)—The papal secretary of state, Cardinal Gasparri, answering the numerous criticisms regarding the vatican's peace attitude issued to the press today the following statement:

The holy father is not preparing any new appeal looking toward peace. His earnest desire many times manifested for a just Christian and durable peace, is unchanged and cannot change. Who can crave anything else and call himself a Christian?

"To say that his holiness favors, or has favored or will favor an unjust, un-Christian and undurable peace, is not only false, but also absurd. Any propaganda for such a peace, alleged to be conducted at the vatican's inspiration, especially in certain nations is the product of pure maliciousness."

"A chain of prayers has always been reprobated by the Holy See and bishops and priests in the United States of America and elsewhere are warned against them particularly those having any such propaganda behind them."

"Also, American Catholics and others are cautioned that such practices are a species of superstition."

"The Catholic church has always regarded true patriotism as a Christian duty and a Christian virtue and still so teaches. The fact that the Italian parliament has just voted

RED CROSS RELIEF FOR ITALY.

Washington, Nov. 29.—American Red Cross relief for Italian families driven from their homes by the Teutonic invasion came just in time. Dispatches to headquarters here tell of the plight of the refugees and of energetic relief work carried on by the Red Cross. Edward T. Devine, Ernest P. Bicknell and Paul V. Kellogg, who are making a tour back of the Italian lines, telegraphed Major Murphy at Rome that their visit to Venice was most opportune and that $20,000 had been given to the American consul there to meet emergency demands.

When the disruptive propaganda began to effect the morale of the Italian army, the clergy in general and also the army chaplains following the instructions and the example of the chaplain-in-chief labored to counteract it and elevate the morale of the troops. More than once the army chaplains informed the chaplain-in-chief who informed the preventive civil authorities that the disruptive movement that was creeping in—and all that long before the publication of the papal note.

"The true causes of the recent Italian reverses are perfectly well understood in Italy and the shoulders on which rests the responsibilities for the reverses are well known, a responsibility which certainly does not touch Catholics, the clergy, and least of all the August person of the sovereign pontiff."

"In one case the Holy See ordered the suppression of a newspaper containing imprudent observations."

"Finally it is necessary to repeat that the pontifical appeal, which some have ignorantly criticized, was addressed to the chiefs of the government for consideration in the official chancelleries. The government authorities first gave it to the press and the public. The Holy See published and commented on it in the Osservatore Romano, the vatican's official organ, only when the false interpretations of others, whether innocent or willful, necessitated such action."

The children so interested in this good cause were Virginia Ropi, Elizabeth Newell, Louise Newell, Helen Hilgeman, Elizabeth and Virginia Hackney, Mary and Hester Meek, Robert Coar, Richard Pichon, Thelma Birely, who gave the play. HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR PLAY.
Annual Entertainment to Be Given Two Evenings by Pupils.

As usual the senior class of the Fort Wayne high school gives a play for two evenings on Thanksgiving week. The first performance came off last evening at the Majestic theater, that auditorium being selected this year instead of the hall of the high school building. The play is a farce comedy, "Who's Crazy?" and thanks to the ability of the cast and the efficient aid of Mr. Franklin who directed them, the performance was a credit to amateurs and a genuine entertainment. Everything went off very well, indeed, with little, if any, appearance of being ill at ease on the part of the cast. The play will be repeated on Friday to a still larger audience, as there will be more of the students at leisure. In the cast were Helen Stopher, Mabel Hart, James King, Jean Dobler, Howard Shambaugh, Ralph Miller, Joseph Underhill. The High School Orchestra furnished the music.

Moose Charity Ball.
The Loyal Order of Moose gave their fourth annual ball last evening in their handsome hall and over four hundred people enjoyed the party. Roemke's orchestra furnished music for dancing. Members of the committees who planned the affair and aided in carrying them off were James E. Ford, chairman, C. W. Kroemer, vice chairman, and R. J. Stetter, secretary. The floor committee consisted of Val Fwig, C. H. Kroemer and M. Minter. Music committee, George A. Kress, Charles E. Miller and John M. Clinton. Reception committee, James E. Ford, C. Ross Lindemuth, R. J. Stetter, Eugene Potter, Frank E. Offner, William Albrecht, James A. Major, Arnold Reuther, W. C. Mills, Fred Sorge, all of Fort Wayne; Will C. Miller, of Bluffton; Harvey Raub, Kenilworth; George W. Stults, Huntington; and Fred L. Whitehead, of Columbia City.

THE KID ON TOP

The recently published reports of the Fort Wayne Banks and Trust Companies reveal the fact that in ratio of surplus and undivided profits to Capital Stock the German-American National Bank stands at the head of all the financial institutions of the city.

These statements show the book value of the stock of the German-American National Bank to be $174.36 per share, which is $2.25 per share higher than its nearest competitor.

Distinction should be made between the book value of stock and its market value. The book value is determined by the ratio of surplus and undivided profits to capital stock. The market value depends upon the earnings of the institution, the rate of dividend which it pays and the opinion of the public regarding its future prospects.

It should also be stated in this connection that three years ago the Tri-State Loan & Trust Co. distributed to its stockholders in the form of a stock dividend $200,000.00 of its surplus, thus increasing its capital and decreasing its surplus by this amount, and reducing the book value of its stock in proportion.

In view of the age and size of our competitors, the experience and ability of their officers, and the manner in which the right hand of fellowship was extended to us when we entered the field twelve years ago, the German-American National Bank feels keen satisfaction at what it has been able to accomplish.

Far be it from us to brag. God forbid that we should boast save in that which the facts proclaim.

We cannot brag of our age, for we are the youngest financial institution in the city. We cannot boast of our size, for we are the smallest bank in Fort Wayne. There is nothing left but our success to which we may point with pride.

Our youthfulness will be remedied each year as time goes on, and as to our size we are big enough to care for the largest accounts and small enough to appreciate the smallest ones.

Besides, as the old ditty said, "What's the use of having a big trunk if you've got nothing to put into it."

Our motto has always been, "Serve the Public First, Then Serve Our Stockholders."

We have not done business for glory as the value of our stock and the dividends paid proclaim. But we feel that we have demonstrated that service and profits go hand in hand.

We have given force to the slogan, "ONLY HE WHO SERVES SHOULD PROFIT."

Let Us Give Thanks.

SHE QUILTS MUSICAL COMEDY FOR CAREER ON THE DRAMATIC STAGE

Ina Claire, long a favorite on the musical comedy stage, is now appearing in dramatic work. The reason—David Belasco, whose remarkable genius has once more proved correct, for Miss Claire has made the hit of her career in the New York production of "Polly With a Past."

In response to the greetings of the students Bishop Aldering congratulated the young men on the perfection they had attained as well as the marked success which is attending their work.

MRS. BARR ARRIVES.

Gives Interesting Talk on "How to Have a Revival."

Mrs. Daisy Douglas Barr reached Fort Wayne last evening and was met by Rev. Boyer and taken directly to the church, where she was received most cordially by the people. Many of her former friends in Fort Wayne were there and cheers were given and handkerchiefs waved. She gave a short message on "How to Have a Revival." Tonight Mrs. Barr's subject will be, "Does Prayer Change Things?" The evangelistic party has made great plans for factory and shop meetings. Every day next week has been arranged for a meeting in some business place in Fort Wayne.

Will Give It Again.

So much success was accorded the Blackface minstrels at their former performance at the Christ Lutheran church recently that the members are contemplating a return performance. The large audience which was present at the former entertainment thoroughly enjoyed the songs and jokes. The quartet as well as all the soloists received great applause. Arthur E. Geller was forced to repeat his song, "Somewhere in France is Daddy." He went into the audience to get a baby doll and carried it on the stage for several songs. Kay Pallas proved a most interesting magician. The audience of Christ's church will seat 600 and it was crowded.

Will Give Party.

The Emmaus Mutual society will give the party "Pro tem" at Ellis hall, corner of Creighton avenue and Broadway, on the evenings of December 10 and 11. The play is one of the best the society has produced and for this occasion special effort is being made to have in the cast the best talent in local Lutheran circles.

SHE IS AMERICA'S FIRST "GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME" IN PRESENT WAR

Manila, Ark., Nov. 28.—Miss Louvicia Sutton, 19, is the first "girl I left behind me" in America.

James Bethel Gresham, the first Sammy to die on the European battlefield in America's great war, fell in love with her picture. They never met, but exchanged letters for two and a half years.

Not seeing her hero didn't make Miss Sutton's affection less, for, she says:

"His letters reflected his personality enough to make me care for him."

"She didn't hear of her soldier's death until notified by his sister, Mrs. Nola Lowmy, who lives in Private Gresham's home town, Evansville, Ind."

"I opened the letter and read a few lines—then dropped it. Mother read the rest of it to me," said Miss Sutton.

"I asked her what her unknown sweetheart's death meant to her."

"How can I tell—it has hurt me as much!" she answered.

PAST WEEK BRINGS ADVANTAGE TO ALLIES

BAKER'S REVIEW OF WAR SITUATION HAS ENCOURAGING TONE

On the West Front the Allies Made a Vital Gain and Developed a New and Important Strategy.

ITALIANS HAVE HELD BACK INVADERS

Washington, Nov. 27.—"The week just closed has been one very favorable to the allies' arms," says the war department official communique issued today. "The success of the British offensive in the region of Cambrai and the steady resistance of the Italians in the face of the repeated attacks of the Austro-German forces are two factors which may be considered as relative elements of one and the same movement.

"It is evident that the enemy took the offensive in Italy, hoping thereby to extricate himself from the increasingly difficult position in which his forces find themselves in the west. The German higher command were apparently confident that in order to save Italy from invasion, such important contingents of French and British troops would be detached from the western front as to render any further allied offensives in this theater impossible. Though the French and British have dispatched large contingents to Italy, this has in no way hampered the continuance of their offensive operations.

"Wastage of the Enemy. "It is the wastage of the enemy forces, the slow, yet relentless sapping of his man power by continued and sudden offensive thrusts, which must eventually result in the softening of his line in the west. This is the ultimate objective of the series of intensive offensives so successfully pursued by the allies during the past six months, and is even more important than the gain of terrain.

"The military situation is dominated by the spectacular success gained by the British in their thrust towards Cambrai. By adopting new tactical methods, by evolving a strategy daringly conceived and brilliantly executed, the British forces have been able to record a greater success when measured by captured terrain, than any hitherto achieved by either belligerent in the same space of time along the western front. While seemingly continuing his offensive engagements in Flanders by an intense artillery bombardment in the sector stretching from Ypres to the North sea, Field Marshal Haig was able to make successful his plans for an offensive thrust between the Scarpe river and St. Quentin.

"Surprise the Big Factor. "The usual preliminary artillery preparation was dispensed with. The elements of surprise so essential to victory played a large part in the successes gained. The British, by a preponderant numerical superiority in men and mobile material, by improvising the skillful tactical maneuvering of an unusual number of tanks and by co-ordinating with precision the deployment of cavalry made use of these arms to bear the brunt of the encounter. Infantry then was called upon to hold and consolidate the terrain gained. Thus the British were able to record a decided success with very great economy of munitions and slight casualties. Three successive German trenches in offensives on a front of six miles, astride the Cambrai-Bapaume road were captured and the Scheldt canal in front of Cambrai was crossed.

"During the first day of the battle dull, dry weather greatly facilitated operations, which began at dawn on Nov. 20. Later bad weather set in and torrential rains accompanied by flurries of snow held up the attack. The capture of the village of Fontaine Notre Dame, two and three-quarter miles west of Cambrai, marks the present limit of the advance. The British forces while still pressing forward, are meeting with increased resistance. So far fighting continues and we may expect desperate attempts on the part of the enemy not merely to prevent any further British advance, but to regain, if possible, some of the lost ground.

Cambrai Under British Fire. "Cambrai, the center of very important railroad and canal lines of communication now comes under the immediate fire of British field guns, while the large calibre high velocity and naval guns can readily search out the countryside for miles in the rear, harassing hostile parties and making operations for the enemy difficult. On a front extending approximately thirty-two miles, the attacking forces have penetrated various strong points. The number of prisoners enumerated hitherto is over ten thousand, which exceeds the total British casualties.

"While the battle for Cambrai has resulted in so rapid and sweeping an advantage for the British forces apparently without extensive preliminary preparation, it must not be forgotten that it was only made possible by the continued pounding of the German lines in Flanders. In the meantime the British have not ceased to keep the enemy busy in the Ypres salient and gains of terrain are noted to the southeast.

"Along the front held by the French forces, the latter have achieved a successful coup d'main south of Havincourt, Champagne, resulting in the capture of some elements of enemy trenches and the taking of numerous prisoners. Lively artillery duels took place north of the Chemin des Dames and in the Verdun sector where, as for several weeks past, the enemy continued to bombard the French positions in Chaume wood.

Americans More Active. "In the sector where our troops are training, increased artillery activity is noted. Small detachments, while on patrol duty, have gained some useful experience.

"The Italian armies now completing their reorganization, have been able to withstand the assaults of the numerical superior forces of the Austro-German divisions engaged against them. They have hitherto prevented the further invasion of the Italian plain. The enemy is continuing its efforts to break through. The line of the Piave has held firm. Along the lower Piave, where hostile forces gained a temporary foothold on the right bank of the river they driven off with great loss thus rendering the Italian positions more secure.

"Along the plateau of the Sette Comuni, heavy fighting is going on. The enemy has been successfully contained. In the mountain regions between the headwaters of the Brenta and the Piave defensive operations have been well conducted, and the enemy has been unable to make any further progress. Strategic reserves, strengthened by allied contingents, have been constituted.

Summary of the Day's War News

(By The Associated Press.) New German attempts to drive the British from their positions in Boulton wood and the high ground dominating the Cambrai region have failed. Gen. Byng's men have repulsed another enemy counter attack at the northeast corner of the wood. There was much severe fighting Monday around Moenvres, west of the Boulton wood, and the outskirts of Fontaine Notre Dame, immediately east of the wood and toward Cambrai. German artillery has been active in the Ypres and Verdun sectors.

In Flanders the positions at Passchendaele, the northern portion of the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt ridge are being bombarded heavily by the enemy but Crown Prince Rupprecht, of Bavaria, has not attempted infantry attacks. On the right bank of the Meuse, where the French gained the first and second German defenses on a two mile front Sunday, German efforts to attack have been checked by French artillery while the enemy guns have been bombarding the new French positions. The activity of the big guns also have been violent in Belgium and north of Chemin des Dames.

French and British soldiers have reached the fighting zone north of the Venetian plains to aid the Italians in their brave defense against the invading Austro-German forces. Between the Brenta and the Piave the Italians are withstanding successfully massed enemy attacks. The invaders attempted to rush the defending lines on the left in the center and on the right of the short front between the rivers but were crushed everywhere by the Italians.

British cavalry is now three and one-half miles west of Jerusalem and is closing in on the Turkish defenses from the southwest. The Turks are offering some resistance and are holding the Jerusalem-Jericho road to the north in strength. North of Jaffa British planes have a double allowance Yesterday's sales of anti-tuberculosis seals were 32,160, making the total up to the last mail last night, 47,760.

Last year's record to the same date was 89,000 but then the solicitation for the big sales had been started and was well on its way. The solicitation for the big sales begins today. It is believed that the seals will be "stylish" this year beyond any previous year.

So many have "TB" that it might be said to be the vogue but so many have been arming the society for its suppression that it is armed with hundreds of thousands of bullets, each of which nails its "objective."

The society has been gradually encroaching on the bugs ever since the war began. There were a less number of cases of tuberculosis in "kitten club" last year per thousand of population than ever before.

But eternal vigilance is the price of success in this battle. Seals spell eternal vigilance.

The society has sent to the city drug stores this year a quantity of seals to be disposed of as far as there is a demand for them. The drug-gists are in this way requested to sell what they can and return the balance. As soon as their supply is exhausted they are requested to phone headquarters for more. The society was compelled to send for 25,000 more this morning to keep pace with the increasing demand. It is the fashion to commit no package to the mails or to the express companies, that show no Christmas seals.

BRITISH HOLD THEIR GROUND

And Are Also Boring Their Way Farther Into the German Lines.

GERMAN ATTACKS ALL DRIVEN BACK

Byng's Men Are Still the Winners in Greatest Fight of Year.

British Army Headquarters in France, Monday, Nov. 26.—(By The Associated Press.)—British troops, including some from London, last night continued to bore their way forward through the Hindenburg support line west of Moenvres. There was vigorous fighting at close quarters in this region and as a result the British today were in possession of a further section of support trenches 2,000 yards long running east and west just south of Pronville and Inchy-en-Autois. The British advance in the last few days had made this section of the line virtually untenable and the Germans were forced to withdraw when pressed by a new attack.

Fighting was renewed today between Boulton wood and Cambrai about Fontaine Notre Dame, where the Germans were still installed and continued to work machine guns from roofs and windows. West of here at Boulton wood Boulton village the situation remained much as it was last night after the Germans had forced the British out of most of the village in a fierce counter-attack which involved still more furious hand-to-hand

BASEBALL WILL HELP TREASURY IN NEXT SEASON

New York, Nov. 27.—The federal war taxes on railroad fares will mean an average extra cost of $1.10, a season to each team in the major baseball leagues, according to estimates just compiled by John B. Foster, secretary of the New York National league club. The 16 travelling clubs will, therefore, enrich the national treasury to the extent of about $18,000 next season. The average mileage of each of the major league clubs is about 11,000 a season. Mr. Foster is of the opinion that the additional cost of baseball through taxation and the increased hotel expenses can be met by cutting the player limit to 18 of 20 players.

MUST MAKE A PEACE WE CAN KEEP SAYS COLONEL

Roosevelt Receives Great Ovation in Toronto at Big Meeting.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 27.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt received a tremendous ovation here last night when he spoke in support of Canada's victory loan. Thousands of Canadians waving Union Jacks and American flags filled the hall and when Colonel Roosevelt appeared on the platform the crowd arose and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Save the King." "Colonel Roosevelt," declared Sir Thomas White, the chairman, "has been of incalculable service in mobilizing the moral forces of the world against Germany and its iniquities. We welcome him as a statesman, a gallant soldier, as a humanitarian and, above all, as a man, for he is every much a man."

Universal military training in time of peace was advocated by Colonel Roosevelt as the means of maintaining a permanent peace after the close of the world conflict. "As regards certain nations," he said, "I am sure that it will prove entirely possible both to provide for permanent peace among them, and also to provide for common and disinterested action along certain lines and within definite limits, to secure a betterment of general international conditions, to diminish the likelihood of future wars, and to restrict their limits if they break out. As regards Canada and the United States, I think the time has come when we should declare that no possible

RADICALS WILL NOT LONG RULE THE RUSS LAND

Gen. Kaledines and His Don Cossacks in Control and More Conservatives Will Soon Have Upper Hand.

KALADINES HAS GOLD AND FOOD SUPPLY

London, Nov. 27.—The Russian revolutionists have made a "ghastly failure" of their attempt at administration according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post writing under date of Saturday. He adds: "But behind or beyond all this apparently hopeless chaos the forces which made Russia an empire are not idle and those who know Russian history understood perfectly how matters will end.

"Even as I write, the situation is becoming clear. The elections to the constituent assembly will take place but the constituent assembly will not meet with success for the Bolshevik movement, whatever that movement may really mean, already has damned the constituent assembly.

"Meantime I would call attention to the facts. The vast gold reserve of the Russian empire, which was removed from Petrograd to the Kremlin in 1913, was later carried still farther into the interior. It is in safe hands.

"General Kaledines, hetman of united Cossackdom, is in secure possession, with trustworthy and disciplined troops of all arms, of all those regions of European Russia that produced a harvest this year and is rapidly capturing these remaining territories upon which Russia relies for its daily bread.

"A vast union, under the name of the Southeastern union, has been formed. It includes the Don territory, a great part of Little Russia, the lower Volga provinces and Turkistan—the area which feeds all Russia. This union is extending and promises to cover the Siberia corn land.

"Gen. Kaledines, holding the gold reserve and the bread supply, is master of the situation and those he serves will accept dictation neither from Kerenky, Lennin nor anybody else, least of all from Germany.

"The allies may safely admit a bowing acquaintance with the curious individualities thrown up from the depths by internal disturbances, but for intimate friendship and future partnership they must look elsewhere and in the meantime they must wait unconcerned until their old friends appear above the present turmoil."

NEW GOVERNMENT IN CAUCASUS

Washington, Nov. 27.—The American consul at Tiflis today reported establishment of the new government in the Caucasus as a protest against anarchy in Russia. His report contained few details, but indicated that the men in the new movement were of the conservative element and were determined to do what they could to hold back from their part of Russia the waves of disorder. The governing power has been placed in an assembly of thirty-six men.

No direct news comes from Petrograd today, but from Sweden reports were received that indicated conditions have manifested their sympathy for Gen. Kaledines. Conditions in Finland are reported threatened with new complications with the probable renewal of a general strike. The food shortage is becoming more acute.

No special instructions have been sent to Ambassador Francis and it was indicated at the state department that his acts in Petrograd would be governed largely by his own judgment and that even his departure from Petrograd, in case of emergency, would not be a question of instruction from Washington, but one for his own decision.

SMALL FIRE

The fire department was called to the residence of William Talmage, 121 East Pontiac street, shortly before 10 o'clock Monday night. Sparks from the chimney had ignited the roof, but the damage was slight, amounting to about $15.

FRENCH WAR CROSS TO MEN WHO FACED FIRST GERMAN RAID

With the American Army in France, Monday, Nov. 26.—(By The Associated Press.)—An impressive ceremony marked the presentation of the French war cross to the American soldiers who withstood the first German raid early this month. Fifteen officers and men cited with their company by the French general commanding the sector, were decorated today.

It was late in the afternoon when the regiment to which the company which suffered the casualties is attached, marched to the top of a big grassy hill. There under skies threatening rain, and with the cold, windy wind blowing, they formed three sides of a hollow square. At the base of the square, the regimental colors and the Stars and Stripes cracked in the wind. The regiment was called to attention as the general commanding came up and took his position in the open side of the square.

The general first read the citation for the whole company, which was standing near the colors, breaches in the ranks showing where the men now prisoners in Germany or in hospitals had formerly stood. The general congratulated the company, saying: "Occasions arising frequently in war, and will arise frequently again, when clear headed coolness and courage are necessary. This company behaved on one occasion as it was expected to do, and as every other company of American soldiers is expected to do under similar circumstances. The French general commanding the sector considers these men have earned war crosses, and I here declares them and the citations.

"You must understand that you must not wear them, but must keep them in your possession until congress authorizes the wearing of them."

He then presented the company's citation and crosses to the lieutenant commanding. Next the three lieutenants stepped from their positions, saluted and received their individual crosses. The general congratulated each. Next the non-commissioned officers and men marched up, were congratulated on receiving the honor, and then returned to their places in the ranks.

The company lieutenant was given the cross and citation for a corporal who was unable to leave the hospital because of a severe wound. To the regimental colonel the general entrusted the decoration awarded the three men killed in the raid asking him to see that they were sent to the next of kin in the United States. As the regimental band played the "Star-Spangled Banner" the regiment came briskly to the salute, remaining in the position until the last notes had been blown away across the valley by the wind. The regiment then marched back to the nearby town where it is billeted, with a little more snap in every step.

RUSSIAN ARMY STARVING AND WILL DISBAND

London, Nov. 27.—The Russian army on the northern front has had no bread for several days, according to reports received in Petrograd and transmitted by the correspondent of the Daily Express, and only two or three days' supplies of army biscuits on hand. The army delegates are reported to have recommended the withdrawal of the troops in order to prevent a general flight with its consequent excesses. Instead of a hundred cars of food arriving daily at the Dvinsk front only twenty have been received. Large numbers of troops being moved to different places have been stopped by the removal of sections of railroad track to prevent their reaching Petrograd.

Meter Department Force of the General Electric Eighteen Years Ago.

The above picture, which is supposed to represent the entire force in the laboratory of the General Electric company eighteen years ago, will be of interest to the readers. It will also help the reader to a realization of the wonderful expansion of the meter department of the big plant. When the above picture was taken, the entire force in the department did not exceed fifty; today it exceeds 400. Of the seventeen men represented in the picture, nine are still employed at the works. Though some are not now connected with the meter department. The personnel of the group is as follows: Reading from left to right, those standing are J. A. Stover, F. O'Connell, W. S. May, C. Stevens, F. Whelan, P. Murphy, J. Smith, D. McNeill, C. Kern, N. G. Bucher and W. F. Lageman. Those seated are F. McCarty, J. Haberly, J. B. Mills, E. J. King, A. Trentman and J. L. Bireley. Those still on the pay rolls are Messrs. Stover, Crighton, May, Wellman, Smith, Bucher, Lageman, Mills and J. L. Bireley. The picture was taken eighteen years ago, in 1899. The department today is under the supervision of P. C. Morgenthaler, under the title of managing engineer of the meter department. Mr. Morgenthaler commenced work at the plant in 1897, in the meter department, but a short time previous to the taking of the photograph from which the picture was made, he was temporarily transferred to another department, which accounts for the absence of his portrait in the group. James H. Haberly, whose portrait is in the group, is now the secretary and treasurer of the Fort Wayne Engineering and Manufacturing company. J. B. Mills is a member of the city council, representing the Sixth ward, and an appointee on the board of public safety by Mayor-Elect W. Sherman Cuthall. The meter department of the General Electric works is most progressive and recently organized for mutual advancement and social purposes the "Meter and Instrument society," which meets twice a month to listen to lectures on subjects of especial interest to the technicians of the department. At a meeting of the society Thursday night there were over 100 members present. J. L. Bireley was the speaker.

ENTIRE FAMILY IS FORCED FROM BELGIUM Story of Cruelty by the Germans Told by Mother at Roanoke.

In a small but neat home near the Wabash station in Roanoke resides Mr. and Mrs. Colpanert and their two children, Martha and Kelsey, a Belgium family whose home in their native land was destroyed when the German soldiers swept into the Belgian territory in which they resided.

The husband had served his bit in the Belgian army, leaving that country just a few days before the war broke out.

In the few words of broken English that she has picked up since coming to the little town of Roanoke from the stricken country of Belgium, Mrs. Emma Colpanert tells with tears in her eyes of the cruelties heaped upon the citizens of her native land by the Kaiser's soldiers. She saw one little Belgian boy, just the age of her own, his hands severed at the wrists by a sword in the hands of a German officer. She saw the body of one of her neighbor women after death came from wounds inflicted by a bayonet hurled by a savage Hun, and just a short distance from her home ten little ladies were buried under a pile of straw in which they were playing, coal oil poured over them and the match touched that caused terrible deaths. These are just a few of the acts as related by one who was there and is now glad she is in a land of peace, although hoping and praying that the war will end that she may return to see the remains of what was once the happiest home on earth to her.

For two days Mrs. Colpanert and her children, Martha, six, and Kelsey, four, dodged the German bullets, and they stole away in the night time while the flames from burning houses and barns were lighting up the sky.

Little Martha, now able to speak excellent English for one of her years in spite of her short stay in the states, doesn't want anything to do with the Germans and she expresses herself in no mild terms. Even though a child, she realizes how close she came to be a victim of one of the savages. Stood away from her mother's watchful eye for a minute she ran in front of a Hun rifleman. She looked into the barrel of his gun and crying, "Don't shoot me," fled to her mother's arms and out of sight of the trooper.

The Colpanert family lived in the rural district of Belgium, just a short distance from Ypres, where some of the fiercest fighting of the world struggle has been waged. Living with Mrs. Colpanert and her children were her father and mother and brothers and sisters, the father conducting a country saloon. The German army swept into the territory on Saturday evening, taking possession of everything.

In the Colpanert residence they carried away all of the potatoes, other eatables in sight and some of the furniture. In other places they looted the homes and then set fire to them. Belgian soldiers resisted the invasion but were not equal to the task. Just outside the door of her home, Mrs. Colpanert saw five of the Kaiser's men killed by the Belgians. Until Sunday evening the Germans held full sway, shooting the inhabitants, including little children. One sister of Mrs. Colpanert's happened outside the door and in an instant a rifleman pressed his gun against her body. Without words she dared him to shoot, not moving a muscle. For some reason, he turned and walked away, allowing her to go free. On Sunday evening the French soldiers arrived on the scene and bullets filled the air. The Germans were forced back slightly, allowing Mrs. Colpanert, her children and other members of the family to gather up a few belongings and start for safety behind the French lines. It was 1 o'clock in the morning when they started to walk and as they went they could see burning buildings in every direction. Their own barn was in flames a few minutes later. In straw stacks they hid from German pickets, not tarrying long, however. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon they reached safety among French people, having had practically nothing to eat from the time they had started. One of the first acts was an effort to buy bread, but this was refused them, the storekeeper telling them all he had was for the soldiers. The family, like many others, had no friends or belongings that would fit them up in a home, but they were taken care of by the French living at Basmaup for five months and then moving into the interior of France, where Mrs. Colpanert received the joyous word to join her husband in the states. They sailed from Bordeaux, landing in New York after a nine days' trip.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN TO EXTERMINATE PEST Air Guns in the Hands of Children Are Prohibited by Chief Lenz.

Drastic action in regard to the airgun menace is promised by Chief of Police Charles Lenz. A trophy in the form of a boy's cap with two bullet holes is hanging on the wall of the chief's room as a constant reminder of just what these supposedly harmless guns can do. The cap was on the head of a small boy riding a wheel on West Jefferson street Wednesday morning. As the lad passed the corner of Fairfield and Jefferson he let a hot streak over his scalp. Investigation proved that a small bullet from an airgun had pierced the cap, cut a small groove across his scalp and left through the other side of the tough material. The shot was purely accidental, and outside of the confiscation of the airgun, no action will be taken.

Chief Lenz made the following statement: "Anyone found outside of his yard with an airgun in his hands will be promptly arrested and brought to the station. Parents who permit their children to play with this dangerous type of toy will be held responsible, and action will be instigated against them more than against their children. A shot from an airgun is sufficient to blind a person or to inflict a painful flesh wound, in some cases death from blood poisoning have even resulted from a lodgment of the little pellet. I will spare no efforts to exterminate the airgun menace."

CANADIAN OFFICER ADDRESSES THE ELKS Sergeant Flahiff Tells of Experiences While With Army in France.

At a patriotic meeting and dinner given Friday night at the Elks' temple Sergeant John Flahiff, of the Canadian army, gave an interesting talk of his experiences along the western front. A chicken pie supper, following the talk, was attended by over 200 members. Claude G. Dowers gave a short talk on the principles of the order. Another feature of the program was the act of vaudeville obtained from the current bill at the Palace theatre.

In his talk, Sergeant Flahiff told of the different great battles of the war along the western front. He spoke particularly of the fights along the Somme sector which have been the most desperate of the war. Interesting references were made to the various methods of modern warfare. He praised highly the work of the Y. M. C. A. and the Red Cross.

Sergeant Flahiff was a member of the famous "Princess Pat" regiment, and won his shoulder straps for bravery in battle. At present he is on leave of absence as the result of a severe case of trench fever, but said as soon as his health would permit he was willing to re-enter the war under the Stars and Stripes.

STOUT'S DEER STOLEN FROM HIS AUTOMOBILE The deer which David C. Stout, county clerk, brought back from the woods of northern Michigan after a week's hunt in the dense woods of that section of the country, was stolen Friday morning from his automobile while he left standing opposite the north entrance to the court house. At first Clerk Stout was very much excited and immediately reported the theft to Sheriff George Gillie. Late Friday afternoon he had reached the opinion that the deer had been taken as a joke. Of that, however, he is not certain.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON (By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE, Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute.) (Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 2 NEHEMIAH BUILDS THE WALL OF JERUSALEM.

LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 4:1-14. GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is my helper and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.—Hebrews 13:2.

The lesson of November 18 spoke of Nehemiah journeying to Jerusalem. After his arrival he spent three days in looking over the work; then he told the priests and other leaders his plans. Enthusiasm was awakened, all classes were aroused, the work of the building of the wall of the city was apportioned among the people, and soon half of the wall was completed "for the people had a mind to work."

1. The Wrath of the Enemy, vv. 7-9. The progress of the work kept up the anger of Sanballat the Horonite and his friends who formed an alliance to hinder the wall being built (vv. 7, 8). When God begins to work through his people, Satan is aroused and tries to interfere. It is no sign that a Christian is out of the will of God when opposition is felt. The enemy will always be on hand to try to hinder whenever a real work for God is going forward. Dead formal Christianity runs smoothly and with deadly monotony and Satan lets it alone, but as soon as some results of real work are seen, opposition is at once felt. Thus it was when God sent his Son into the world, and so it has been in every movement for God in the church, and so it will be in the individual Christian life. From the next verse (10) we would almost think that Nehemiah had heard our Lord's injunction to "watch and pray." Many do much watching and fail; many do much praying and fail; but none ever turns to watching and praying without finding victory. Prayer alone means sloth; watching alone means pride; but watching and praying victory.

11. Internal Opposition, vv. 10-14. Sanballat and his friends were not the only ones Nehemiah had to contend with. Among those that worked on the wall were some shirkers and grumblers. They had become discouraged in the work and began to say they could never complete it (v. 10). If Satan fails to hinder the work from the outside, he will attempt to create dissatisfaction on the inside. Internal confusion of the church is more to be dreaded than open opposition from a known enemy. Dissension and confusion in the church can usually be traced to workers becoming discouraged. The plot of the enemy to make a surprise attack was discovered by the Jews who lived outside the city. They reported it not once, but ten times, with the suggestion that the work on the wall be stopped, and safety sought by leaving the city altogether (vv. 11, 12). When the enemy's open opposition fails and discouragement has been tried, an attempt is made to bring fear upon the workers. But the Bible is full of exhortations for Christians to "fear not." Could these workers on the walls of Jerusalem have seen the unseen, it would have made little difference to them whether the enemies were numbered by tens or thousands, and could Christians today realize that God is for them, all opposition would be as nothing. (1 Cor. 10:13; Rom. 8:31; Phil. 4:13). Nehemiah at once proceeded to allay the fears (13, 14). Armed forces were arranged about the walls to guard against the reported surprise attack. The warriors were placed so that in the event of battle they would be protecting their own particular families. Then Nehemiah made a short speech of encouragement to the people, the heart of which was "Remember the Lord which is great and terrible." Remembering him would drive the fear away. They who are on the Lord's side are already victors even before the battle has begun. Someone said to a great general before a certain battle began: "The hope the Lord is on our side." The reply was: "I trust we are on the Lord's side." When this is true, there need be no fear whether the enemies be few or many. Nehemiah then exhorted them to fight for their families and their homes. This two-fold secret of the victory is presented to us over and over in this book of Nehemiah, and nowhere is so prominent as in this lesson. Victory for the Christian depends on two things: We must trust in the Lord as though all depended on him, and we must work and fight as though all depended on us. This is the secret of the success of Nehemiah.

111. The Progress of the Work, (vv. 15-21). The speech of Nehemiah having quieted the fears of the people and the enemy having heard that their plans were known and that God had brought their counsel to naught, all the people returned to the work with renewed enthusiasm and purpose (15). There was a rearrangement of forces (16-21). Half of the people worked; half, full armed, stood guard. A trumpeter was beside Nehemiah, so that at the first alarm from outside all the workers and warriors could be called to the threatened spot. Then they went ahead with building of the wall.

An opportunity has been offered to the school teachers of Allen county and Fort Wayne to assist the government in the present crisis. The call has been made by both the president and the government and all teachers who can give an hour or more of evenings and on Saturdays between December 1 and 15 in assisting the various exemption boards are asked to call D. of Court House.

The Rabbit and Pet Stock association was formed in a meeting held Wednesday night in the assembly room of the court house. A large attendance of over a hundred pet stock fanciers were present at the opening meeting. This organization will be a branch of the National Breeders and Fanciers Association of America. H. N. Ashton, national president, was present at the meeting and gave an interesting lecture on the pet stock organization.

Twenty-nine charter members were taken in at this meeting but the charter will be extended for a short time. Al Lamont was chosen president; J. R. Harris, vice president; E. S. Evans, secretary, and Homer Irven, treasurer. Theodore Berberich was elected superintendent. A board of directors five men and six honorary vice presidents were also chosen. The latter will arrange for any special program planned by the organization.

The first Sunday of each month has been chosen as the regular meeting night but the place of meeting has not yet been decided. A special meeting will be held some time this week to discuss the annual show. It is thought that the organization will have a show this winter but if they decide it will probably be held in conjunction with the poultry exhibit, which will be held soon.

REMEMBER THE CHRISTMAS SEALS.

Don't forget the Red Cross Christmas seals. Never was there a time when the warfare against the white plague had need of stronger support than now. There will be increased draft against the resources of the anti-tuberculosis societies everywhere as the war goes on. There must be adequate means with which to meet it.

In a multitude of activities that relate to civic duties in the war—things that appear to relate more intimately to the actual prosecution of the war itself—the claims and the necessities of the anti-tuberculosis movement may be slighted and in some cases overlooked altogether. This would work a serious injury to a great labor that is just as essential as any other war work and in some of its aspects vital to the future welfare of men in the army and their families at home.

The annual campaign for the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals is now on. For a number of years Fort Wayne has specially distinguished herself by the generous measure of her support and it is hoped that, notwithstanding the great sums that have been contributed here to other imperative concerns since war was declared, this city will not relax its support of the war against the white plague. It has been the experience of the allies of America in the war that trench life greatly promotes the ravages of tuberculosis. France, Great Britain and Canada specially report great inroads of the scourge among their men. The return of those so afflicted from the front creates a new and large field of work for the anti-tuberculosis organizations.

While it is hoped and believed that the plans evolved for sanitation in the cantonments here and in the camps and trenches on the other side, together with the greatest medical organization and the most thorough preparations for proper feeding that ever have marked the care of large armies by any nation will have the effect of keeping the invasions of the white plague among our troops less serious than among the troops of any other country, it cannot be questioned that many of the soldiers of America will be stricken with the disease. They must be cared for when they are sent home. To these must be added that increase of cases which here at home will come as one of the consequences of war. Altogether, there will be more for the anti-tuberculosis agencies to do than ever before.

The purchase of the Red Cross Christmas seals should be more extensive this year than at any time heretofore. Everybody ought to buy them and use them.

AFTER THE PROFITEERS.

Federal regulation of food by authority of statute appears to have failed of gaining the respect of some of the profiteers. It is announced from Washington that National Food Administrator Hoover is preparing to inaugurate measures that will improve the situation.

Under the law passed last summer by congress the dealers who do not keep the statute may be prosecuted. The penalties of conviction are severe. Director Hoover is said to be getting ready to start prosecutions and, from what is known of Hoover, it may be taken for granted that appeal to the law in behalf of the national safety and the public welfare will be no mere nominal recourse designed to bluff the speculators and profiteers, but a determined purpose to correct evil and punish those who perpetrate it.

Federal intervention in private business is a strange proceeding in this country, save in the instances of the great trusts and combines that now and then have been prosecuted. The ordinary channels of merchandising have had uninterrupted courses and no attention has been paid to what they did or the fashion they did it. Now comes a critical time. The nation is in a great war whereof the outcome depends vitally upon the way in which we produce, conserve and distribute our food supplies both for our own use and for the use of our allies, whose success or failure in the war completely invests our own destiny in the conflict. The food statutes are purposed solely with a view to enhancing and maintaining our national strength for the struggle. That is all there is to the food conservation program and the laws enacted to secure it.

Certain factors in our business life do not yet understand that this war is a fight for national existence and not a field day for extortion and rapacity. Profiteering and conservation do not mean the same thing, strange as this may appear to the profiteers. To make this clear, to teach the wholesome lesson that the extremity of the people is not the opportunity of the predatory, to breed in the popular mind that the law is for the good of all and not the joke of lawmakers, and to establish now and to keep uppermost that the government is not engaged in the sorry business of asking the people to deny and save and give that the government may be strong for its task while it permits them to be plucked by the rapacious, it may be necessary for Mr. Hoover to make drastic examples. Mr. Hoover will belie his whole good repute if he does not do just that which only it will serve. If this war is to be won it will be won by the whole people working together. They cannot work together and they will not if the predatory elements are given field to scourge the people with extortion and rapacity. Not many prosecutions will be needed if the first of them are of the right sort and proper spirit to chasten the speculators and profiteers.

MAY DECLARE WAR AGAIN.

It probably adds nothing to the force of the argument that "Gumshoe Bill," of Missouri, acquiesces in it, but it nevertheless is true that certain considerations of the war will be improved by declarations of belligerency against Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. Nominally we are at peace with those nations, yet actually at war with them. They can have no interest in and execute no act of the war that is not hostile to the American cause. They are fighting America's allies and sooner or later their soldiers will be fighting American soldiers. It is a situation of singular anomalies, as has been frequently pointed out.

There are perhaps better reasons here at home for making declarations of war against the allies of Germany. The country is harboring hundreds of thousands of subjects of Austria-Hungary and many thousands of subjects of Bulgaria. These ought to be regarded as enemy aliens quite as readily as are the unnaturalized Germans in this country. There is a good deal of nonsense in barring from certain prescribed zones men of German blood and birth, while men of other nationalities who are in all respects as essentially enemy aliens are permitted to go and come as they please.

The war we are in is with Germany and with Germany's allies. What advantages one of them advantages them all in common and what weakens one one weakens them all together. The hope that by avoiding an actual break with Austria and Bulgaria there might be some political gain that in the outcome would cripple Germany and make her allies more anxious for peace, promises to have no realization. Germany completely dominates her allies and will until she herself has been beaten. They dare not detach themselves. They ought to be treated by America as the belligerents that they are.

There should be no patience with those who scoff at and defy the regulations purposed to conserve food, but there should be some spirit of toleration for those who do not yet know just how to make the saving. The most abundantly supplied and the most wasteful people on earth with their foodstuffs, Americans have never before felt the tooth of necessity. Most of them do not yet feel it and a great number of them do not believe they ever will feel it. Those who are not disposed to take the admonitions of the food administration seriously will know their mistake later. It is more than the work of a day, however, to teach the people of this country that they can live better on less than is their wont, but the lesson will get home in due time.

No Accounting for Tastes.
A correspondent lamped in an over-sea publication the following curious ad: "We could have met this by substituting inferior oil, but we chose to safeguard the food of the people, and especially of the farmers for whom skippers are precious as a food."

Nutrition.
(Again we present the Denver bard, Norris C. Spriggs, in a poem which should appeal to our New Thought friends. We feel that Mr. Spriggs has never been more happy in his selection of figures.)

She prophesied the raw me
A prosperous condition,
"For her, I love her,
One than love can tell,
It happened at a time,
I was short on nutrition,
For a fact (she's a maid)—
Me fell mighty well.

(This is the Narrative of a Red Triangle Man Who is Working With That Section of the American Army Now in the Trenches.)

When our American troops started for the front we fed them every four hours for forty-eight hours. They came in cold and tired and thirsty. We had six hundred loaves of bread for them, twelve cases of jam with twenty-four cans in a case, and three hundred pounds of coffee. We had two cheeses, weighing one hundred and eighty pounds each. We took a location on the Quai, set up stoves, a boiler and served real American coffee. We gave the coffee away. For sandwiches we charged twenty-five cents. They cost us thirty-four cents. I went thirty-six hours on four slices of bread and a coffee.
Then I started off with the men-artillery, they were. We left at 8 p. m. on a Friday. Twenty-nine of us were in a boxcar with a bale of hay. When the wire came off the hay we needed a gas mask for the dust that shook out. There wasn't room for all to sleep. We were saddlers, shoers, mechanics, the ninth section of a battery.

We woke to a foggy morning. The men thought they were on the way to Paris. But we had come to the city of —, in a corner of France. We took the guns off the wagon, and marched seventeen kilometers to the town of —. We slept that night in the loft of a barn. Men had been billeted there before us, and by morning I had a ring of white welts around my ankle from lice. We lived there for three days with those visitors that didn't appear on the roll-call. And for nine days we never took our clothes off.
The boys were advised to slip off their revolvers. We rented a kitchen as a storeroom for the guns. In renting that kitchen I wore out my twenty-two words of French, but we got the kitchen and slept there in the room with the guns. We stayed five days in the place with the main horse line of the battery. The horses had large appetites and ate up caissons and any other leather stuff. One man came in and reported with his overcoat in rags. He said he was sorry, but his horse had got hungry in the night.
I thought I would go further up, so I got a horse. He was thin. I give you that for background, so you will be sympathetic to my next. The orders were to ride bareback, and I had to ride him bareback razorback. For the next nine days I ate my meals standing up.

Then I went to the brigade commander, and he let me go to the front. We came to the first village this side of the border. It was full of men billeted. I said I was tired enough to give seven francs for a bed. An old woman gave me a room in a house with the end blown off. She was caretaker. The family had fled. She seemed to feel this way about it: "I'm about at the end of the line, anyhow, and I'll stay by the stuff."
Two colonels walked me up to the dugouts, and that was where I parted friendship with my long overcoat. It slapped mud every step.

Thirty men were in the dugout in fetid air. The Germans were one hundred yards away. In between looked like a lot of country anywhere. Shells were coming in casually, landing in a field about one hundred yards away. When we came back along the communication trench we found the ceiling of it (what we call the sleeper in a mine) shot through with a shell.

Then I went to find our battery. Out along an old Roman road we came to a farmhouse located where a wise farmer would place it. The house was in ruins. All through this section men had been buried where they fell, batteries were dug in on the hillside, and villages were billeted in the ruins of villages. The fields around the farmhouses were shell-pitted. The Germans threw in one mine at the house and killed two cooks and an assistant. Somewhere along the road a sawy was dug in on the roadside. You saw gun-pits and gun-pits. There were chicken wire with glass tied in for camouflage, a wooden hill and a maze of barb-wire. I went into the mess kitchen for American soldiers, got the loan of a mess-kit, and had prunes, potatoes, meat and bread. I slept on the mountainside in my half of a pup tent, with my head copped in a trench shovel. We went to bed at six-fifteen. Life is a blank after the active hours. In the morning we dug emplacements for the guns. We were supposed to wait till the four guns were dug in. But when the first gun was nestled the boys couldn't wait to get the rest ready. They had to let the Boches know they had come. At 4 p. m. on October 24 they sent the first shell fired by an American battery from an American-dug emplacement. It was Battery — of the — Field artillery.

"Here's the first shot we're handing to the Germans," they said, and they all agreed it had to kill at least thirty-six men.
One man said our aim was bad.
"In about fifteen minutes," he claimed, "you'll see a German pop over the hill asking, 'Did we throw them something?'"
We took four shrapnel for range, and took the distance at six thousand yards.
"Minus five to the left, same range, same elevation," came back on the telephone, and then.
"She's on her way."

They gave me the case of the first shell. I carried it on my belt, where it kept rubbing the spine. The boys fired five rounds before supper. They used French Seventy-fives.
"Mark all your data and go home," was the order, and they chalked the gun shield.
Another battery fired sooner than we did, but not from an American-dug emplacement. They fired from an orchard. The case of that shell went to President Wilson.

The purpose of my trip was observation and laying out an organization for Y. M. C. A. work. So I went with a purpose containing a tooth brush, socks and underwear. But I managed to smuggle in writing paper and games.
I came back by mule team, walking to —, flagged a Ford for the seventeen kilometers to —, and so down to Paris.

While we were at the front the soldiers spent their spare time in getting up a good American meal in their minds—beefsteak, peas, and crisp celery. Some of the fellows slept in old dugouts, but most preferred pup tents. They liked the experience.
"This is Jake," they said.
For Red Triangle work with them we are using two Fords, a motorcycle, and a truck. In the base towns we are putting a double-walled tent and a fire so they will have a warm place to sit and write. We shall sell them socks, chocolate, malted milk, and coffee. For our men at the front we will carry stuff in a Ford as far as we can get, and then go the rest of the way to the emplacement on foot. We are starting work with five Red Triangle men. We shall visit the outpost dressing stations and bring them supplies. Three of the men working at the front are Henry Crane, the nephew of the Rev. Frank Crane the son of Dr. Robert Speer, and Shaw, the old Columbia center rush.

This experience in the trenches has meant a lot to two armies. It has cheered up the French, and it has solemnized our men.

MANY MARRIED MEN MUST SERVE IN THE ARMIES OF LIBERTY

The new draft regulations will not apply to men now in the cantonments. The regulations apply only to candidates for the second selective service army about to be raised.
"The men who have been selected are selected," said Colonel Gullion of the provost marshal general's office. "They are members of the first selective draft army. These new regulations have nothing to do with them. It makes no difference if some of them would have escaped under the new regulations. These matters cannot be forever litigated. Therefore, the old regulations will not be applied to old cases."
The new regulations appear to make it almost impossible for a married man to serve.
"I predict," said Colonel Gullion, "that there will be a good many married men in this second army. It has been suggested that the first classification will number two million men, and that the army will be mostly recruited from class one. Even if this were true, these are married men in class one. The married man who does not actually support his family is subject to draft. A married man dependent on his wife is among those to be first called on. Married men not usefully engaged, but living on incomes acquired independently of their labor, also are in class one.

"Class two begins to take in married men very quickly. It includes cases in which the wife or children are not mainly dependent on the man's labor for support, because of other sources outside the wife's earning power, also the man whose wife earns nearly as much as he, by special work she would have a prospect of continuing if the husband left her. In other words, the husband of a business woman earning a good income is in class two, and likely to be called.

"Only when a man has a wife or children mainly dependent on his labor for support, does he get into class four, far from conscription."

UMBRELLA CARRYING ANTS FOUND IN MEXICO

In Mexico there is a variety of ants that carry little green umbrellas, made from bits of leaves, to protect their bodies from the fierce tropical sun. Sometimes, writes a contributor who has lived in the turbulent republic across the Rio Grande, I have seen two ants walking together while one politely carried the umbrella over the two. At other times, she says, I have seen them, when going in opposite directions, stop and salute each other before they passed on.—Youth's Companion.

RELIGION, TEMPERANCE AND HEALTH

(Christian Evangelist.)
"I want to make a big Thanksgiving dinner this year," said Mrs. Hamlin, "one that we will long remember, and one that our friends will keep as a bright spot in their memories."

"But, wife, we are invited to the Creightons."

"Yes, I know that, but while I appreciate the opportunity, I would prefer to send our regrets and issue some invitations myself."

"All right," said the doctor, "I am willing."

Doctor and Mrs. Hamlin were comparative newcomers in the little city of Ogden.

In their early married life they had started at the foot of the ladder and had worked their way upward a step at a time, by strict economy and modest living. Instead of beginning where their parents left off, or living beyond their means, they had bought the oldest house in Ogden, a building surrounded by a nice plot of ground, and were occupying it until such time as they were able to build a new home. It was a roomy old brick structure, with open grates and deep windows.

Mrs. Hamlin was a teacher in the Sabbath school, and in studying the lesson, had her thoughts turned to the direction of Jesus in Luke 14:12. As she told her husband about it she gazed into the glowing coals before her with a far-away look in her eyes, which suddenly grew soft and luminous as she murmured softly, "It shall be in His name."

So society, which is ever ready to worship success, was sent the regrets of Dr. and Mrs. Hamlin.

Dr. Hamlin thought he knew his wife, but like many another man, he found himself often mistaken. However, to please her fancy, everything good, wholesome and luxurious was provided for the Thanksgiving feast. The rooms of the old house were made to look like a chrysanthemum show. The table was resplendent in its best china and snowy cloth. Mrs. Hamlin was charmingly dressed in a new bright, but inexpensive gown, which she thought befitting the occasion.

The hour had arrived for the coming of the guests. The coachman had received his orders, on the sly, from Mrs. Hamlin, and had started forth, with the family carriage, to bring the guests to the feast. First came a woman accompanied by a young, timid girl, who were ushered in by the door maid.

"Mrs. Sheldon, how good of you to come early. I know of no one who could assist me today so well as you. I certainly thank you."

"No thanks are necessary. I am only too glad to lend myself to such work."

Mrs. Sheldon was a preacher's widow, one of God's noblewomen—a woman whose life had been lived for the Master, and whose lot had been cast among the poor and lowly as well as with the rich and arrogant. Her heart's training had been along sympathetic lines, and her mind's training qualified her to grasp the mental heights of the most learned. Her daughter was one of God's earthly creatures that, like a tender plant blighted by frost, had been impaired by the blight of disease, until the mind that remained was that of a child in a woman's body. She was bright and cheery in her way, with a trustful love which only angels know, and was the one great comfort of her mother's lonely life.

The carriage drove up and two people were assisted to the door. For the door maid, driver and cook almost carried one of them. She was an old woman with white hair and a face which had a look of bitterness in it—a face that had not grown old gracefully, which was not softened by suffering, and which aroused pity. She was richly dressed, and was also her daughter, who was an imbecile. They were rich in this world's goods, but poor in their stock of love and friends and kindness. Dr. Hamlin had once said to his wife, "My dear, go visit them, for while they are wealthy, they are poor in all that goes to make life bright and sunny," and she often went.

The next arrival was an old lady, who had a face as bright as the noonday sun. Her step was quick and firm, for one as old as she, and her hair was black at sixty-five. Her face had a sweet expression, as though something within was at work manufacturing sunshine. Her eyes—sad as it is to say it—were sightless. She had windows, but the shutters were drawn. It was a light that came from above that made this aged face so bright and attractive. For years this Christian woman had lived in darkness; but the light of the sun of righteousness yet illuminated her life.

Mrs. Hamlin led the blind woman to a place by Mrs. Sheldon and said, "Mrs. Winston, here is one who will anticipate your every wish, and you will find in her kindred thoughts and feelings Mrs. Sheldon, I place this guest in your care."

Many others came, some rich, and some poor, but all were of the "alone" class. There was a music teacher who kept bachelor's hall, and a young carpenter who was far away from home and friends. The last arrival was an old soldier, who came in an invalid's chair, attended by his daughter, a sweet and faithful slave for her ailing father.

Then the doctor came in, his face aglow in anticipation of coming festivities. As he looked, he thought some mistake had been made—then he knew all. A hearty welcome was given to each by a warm handshake. They knew that this man was their best friend and wise counselor. The gladness of look and bright faces and the loving exclamation of blind Mrs. Tison made the doctor's eyes moist with suppressed feeling. He looked for his wife, and when their eyes met, she was made the happiest woman in the world.

Dr. Hamlin, half carrying the cripple, led the way to the dining room, followed by Mrs. Sheldon with the blind woman, the others following. Mrs. Hamlin herself wheeled the soldier's chair. Such a dinner was never served before. When all were filled and merriment reigned supreme, the doctor proposed a toast to "The chief of entertainers—my wife." All agreed to this and the doctor himself responded in a manner becoming the time and place.

Then they returned to the parlor to hear the musician play the sweet songs of old. The tongue of the old soldier was loosened and tales of war and heroism delighted the listeners. The time of parting came, and one by one the guests were helped into the carriage by loving hands. The joy of the occasion was reflected in the face of the young hostess, who realized she had not only given pleasure to a few of the unfortunate of earth, but she knew she had the approval of her heavenly Father, who says something in His book about the "cup of cold water" given in His name.

WHAT AMERICANS RESENT.

(Philadelphia Ledger.)
It can be said without denial that the American people, in this war to win, are too patriotic to resent the high prices made imperative by extraordinary conditions. What they do resent are the inequalities, so manifest and unfair, in prices, weights, qualities of their food. They object to wartime impositions, not wartime prices. They will pay the prices willingly enough if they are assured that others are doing it and that the average is unfavorable, buying "plum torts" are not augmenting swollen profits of manufacturers, who as sellers and dealers whose patriotism vanishes before the prospect of commercial gain.

UNSELFISH THANKSGIVING.

How many on Thanksgiving day have a time of merriment at home with their friends and loved ones and make a feast for them? How little they think of those who are in poverty and in suffering, of those shivering from the cold, and weak with hunger! Jesus said, "When thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind; and thou shalt be blessed, for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just."—God's Revivalist.

THE HEROIC AGE

(By RICHARD WATSON GILDER.)

He speaks not well who doth his time deplore,
Naming it new and little and obscure,
Ignoble and unfit for lofty deeds.
All times were modern in the times of them,
And this no more than others. Do thy part Here the living day, as did the great
Who made old days immortal! So shall men,
Gazing long back to this far-looking hour,
Say: "Then the time when men were truly men;
Tho' wars grew less; their spirits met the test
Of new conditions; conquering civic wrong,
Saving the state anew by virtuous lives;
Guarding their country's honor as their own,
And their own as their country's and their sons';
Proclaiming service as the one test of worth;
Defying leagued fraud with single truth;
Knights of the spirit; warriors in the cause
Of justice absolute 'twixt man and man;
Not fearing loss; and daring to be pure.
When error through the land raged like a pest
They calmed the madness caught from mind to mind
By wisdom drawn from old, and counsel sane;
And as the martyrs of the ancient world
Gave Death for man, so nobly gave they life:
Those the great days, and that the heroic age."

There's No Power in the World So Strong as the Power of Love

(Apoc. of Gold.)

A good Christian lady, we are told, once opened a home for crippled children. Among those who were received was a little boy three years old, who was a most frightful and disagreeable looking child.

The good lady did her best for him, but the child was so unpleasant in his ways that she could not bring herself to like him.

One day she was sitting on the veranda steps with the child in her arms. The sun was shining warm; the scent of the flowers, the chirping of the birds and the buzzing of the insects lulled her into drowsiness.

So in a half-waking, half-dreaming state, the lady dreamed of herself as having changed places with the child, only she was, if possible, more foul and more disagreeable than he was.

Over her, she saw the Lord bending, looking intently and lovingly into her face, and yet with a sort of rebuke in it, as if he meant to say, "If I can love you, who are so full of sin, surely you ought, for my sake, to love that suffering child."

Just then the lady awoke with a start and looked in the face of the little boy who lay on her lap. He had waked up, too, and she expected to hear him begin to cry; but he looked at her—poor little mite—very quietly and earnestly for a long time, and then she bent her face to his and kissed his forehead more tenderly than she had ever done.

With a startled look in his eyes and a flush on his cheeks, the little boy, instead of crying, gave her back a sweeter smile than she had ever seen before.

From that day forth a perfect change came over the child. Young as he was, he had hitherto read the feeling of dislike and disgust in the faces of all who had approached him, but the touch of human love which now came into his life swept all the peevishness and ill-nature away, and woke him up to a happier life.

Do you know that there is no power in this world so strong as the power of love? As someone has truly said, love is the greatest thing in the world.

Face Your Troubles; They May Be Lighter Than You Think Them

(Advocate)

"I had plowed around a rock in one of my fields for five years," said a farmer, "and I had broken a mowing machine knife against it, besides losing all of the ground in which it lay, all because I supposed it was such a large rock that it would take too much time and labor to remove it. But today, when I began to plow for corn, I thought that by-and-by I might break my cultivated against that rock; so I took a crowbar, intending to poke around it and find out its size once for all. And if it was one of the surprises of my life to find that it was little more than two feet long. It was standing on its edge, and so light that I could lift it onto the wagon without help."

"The first time you really faced your trouble you conquered it," I replied aloud, but continued to enlarge upon the subject all to myself, for I do believe that before we pray, or better, while we pray, we should look our trouble squarely in the face.

Imagine the farmer plowing around that rock for five years, praying all the while, "O Lord, remove that rock," when he did not know whether it was a big rock, or a little flat stone!

We shiver and shake and shrink, and sometimes do not dare to pray about a trouble, because it makes it seem so real, not even knowing what we wish the Lord to do about it, when, if we would face the trouble and call it by its name, one-half of its terror would be gone.

The trouble that lies down with us at night, and confronts us on first waking in the morning, is not the trouble that we are faced, but the trouble whose proportions we do not know.—Advance.

MADE OVER.

I am not thinking of garments, but of souls. There are, I suppose, people whose pride would not permit them to wear a made-over suit; but if we should refuse to wear our souls made-over suits of old sin, we would be made over. Groceries, modes of thought and conviction alter as we mature. "The old order changeth, giving place to new." We also must change. We must have the old garments of thought recut. Some one says that the best violin is an old Cremona, and that the best of the old Cremonas is one which has been smashed and put together again. If this be true of violins, shall it not be still more true of souls? God's speciality, if I may say so, is to remake the soul.—George Clarke Peck.

NOT SO WONDERFUL.

The merchant turned to the boy with the weak intellect and said, "What a wonderful thing! What a wonderful thing! You will be able to send a message through to Aberdeen, many miles away, and get an answer back in twenty minutes." The half-witted Christian lad, on hearing that, exclaimed: "I do not see anything wonderful in that at all." And on being asked by the merchant whether he knew of anything more wonderful, he remarked: "I should think I do." He then said to the merchant: "Did you ever hear of people getting an answer before they sent their message?" And on the merchant asking what he meant, he replied: "I only mean what Isaiah says: 'I shall come to pass that before they call I will answer, and while they are yet speaking I will hear.'"—The Gentleman.

FEELING AND DUTY.

We are responsible not only for the intensity of our feeling but for its quality. We are to see to it that our patriotic fervor contains no elements of vindictiveness, hatred or of lust for territory or domination over others.—Congregationalist.

EVANGELIST BILLY SUNDAY HAS HIT THE TRAIL WAY DOWN SOUTH

And now Billy Sunday himself has "hit the trail!" So did his wife, "Ma" Sunday, and their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Sunday. It happened down South—on one of the evangelist's "off days." Now for the "ketch"—it was the trail of the sawdust trail long ago. Aw-w! On the extreme left is "Ma," next to her (indicated by the arrow) is Billy; next, in the white shirt, is George; next to George his wife.

YOUR HEALTH AND HOW YOU CAN KEEP IT

Ventilate Night and Day if you Would Avoid Disease.

Proper ventilation includes not only a constant current of air to replace used up, but that air must be pure air, free from smoke, gases, dirt or germs.

Proper ventilation, however, does not mean that the doors and windows should be thrown open and that which has been kept so during the winter months without heating the rooms. Proper ventilation may be maintained in heated living rooms and the temperature kept at a comfortable degree.

It is best, however, to sleep in an unheated room and with the windows open. The burning of candles, lamps or gas is not conducive to good health, especially in places where proper ventilation cannot be maintained. Drafts should be avoided and a constant supply of fresh air provided to take the place of that which has already been used. The size and shape of a room may be a factor in proper ventilation. No matter how large a room be, if the supply of fresh air is not steady the air will become impure. On the other hand, no matter how small the room if sufficient ventilation is carried on the air continues pure.

A lofty, unventilated room will in a short time, if occupied, become filled with impure air. Floor space is more important to ventilation than height. With a modern system of ventilation you will breathe better air in many basement establishments than in stores and offices containing enormous floor space with high ceilings, but lacking in proper ventilation.

What One Man Did to Benefit the Public Health.

"Hygiene is the art of preserving health; that is, of obtaining the most perfect action of the body and mind during as long a period as is consistent with the laws of life."

So wrote a man who devoted all his adult life to the promotion of the public health and who died at the age of 56 of pulmonary tuberculosis. Edmund Alexander Parkes, born March 29, 1819, physician, surgeon, sanitarian and author, left perhaps a greater impress on sanitary science than any Englishman of the nineteenth century.

His work ranges from the theoretical consideration of the minutest details of chemical and physiological research to the practical consideration of the cleansing of a sewer or the lightening of the soldier's knapsack.

India, the Crimea and London saw his labors and benefited thereby. War brings some good things in its train. Just as the Napoleonic campaigns perfected the art of transporting the sick and the loss of life from preventable disease in the Spanish war quickened the sanitary conscience of the American people, so the horrors of the Crimean campaign made Parkes a professor of military hygiene.

He organized a complete course of instruction based on the principle that the student must be able to practically apply the lessons which he learned. Many of the sanitary reforms which he inaugurated are now bearing fruit in the improvement of the well-being of the community at large.

Hints for Those Who Can't Sleep and Those Who Can.
Don't take business to bed with you. Make your brain cells stop work.

Cultivate calmness and soon you will be in the land of slumber.

Taking your worries to bed is one of the surest ways of getting insomnia. Eye strain is another cause of it. If you are a "fretful sleeper" it will be well to eat only a very light meal in the evening. Avoid drinking water or other fluids several hours before going to bed. Over-indulgence in tea, coffee, or tobacco is also bad.

If you have the habit of waking with the first rays of morning light have your bedroom window fitted with black, opaque shades. Persons who sleep out of doors are frequently troubled in this way. To overcome the annoyance, tie a black bandage across the eyes or rub the eyelids with burnt cork.

Sleep during the early part of the night is considered best. Those who have trouble in dropping off to sleep promptly are sometimes benefited by munching a cracker or drinking a glass of warm milk just before they retire.

If you can't go to sleep at once don't get up and walk around or read. Once the habit of wakefulness has been acquired, it is particularly hard to break. If the body and brain are in normal condition there is no reason why one should not go to sleep easily. Don't worry over the fact that you can't. At the same time make up your mind that you are going to sleep. Learn to dominate your brain cells. It will not be long before they will obey you implicitly.

Life More Abundant; Narrow Life Cannot Be Close to Christ

(Rev. C. C. Albertson in the Christian Herald.)

People of certain temperaments are inclined to certain sins. The ambitious are in danger of pride. The acquisitive are in peril of greed. The volatile temperament is likely to be unduly elated one day, and unduly depressed the next. The strong-willed are disposed to "lord it" over others, while the weak-willed are apt to be too easily influenced. The ascetic type is blind to life's joy and beauty, while the esthetic type must guard itself against the tyranny of the flesh and of the senses. There are some sins to which we are all disposed. One of these is that of littleness. It is easy to be content to live narrow and to be content to be less and to do less than we ought; to let our lives be dominated by the low, plane, untouched by the motives which make high souls. The trouble with most of us is, we do not perceive that littleness and greatness are essentially of the spirit. A king may be a small soul. A peasant may be an ample soul.

The keynote of the Christian religion is the development of the individual to the utmost of his powers. No one of us can follow Christ closely, and live a narrow life. We may not be given great tasks, but life takes on new dimensions. Michelangelo, working on his statue of David, put a lighted candle in the visor of his cap, and so prevented any shadow of himself falling upon his work. Worldliness disqualifies us for spiritual greatness, for largeness of heart. False pride, social envy, wrath, ignorance, low ideals, immediate love of ease and pleasure, unbridled passion—all these are prison bars to keep our souls within a meager compass. We may get out; we may break the bars; our souls have a strong friend who opens gates of iron and breaks down thick walls, and leads us to high viewpoints and vast outlooks. God awaits only our prayer to deliver from bondage to little things, to make us comrades of his Son.

"YE HAVE DONE IT UNTO ME" A TALE OF THE WEST WHERE A GOOD DEED WORKS MIRACLE

It was an August afternoon. The hot winds were sweeping over the western prairies. Not a green thing was to be seen. The earth was parched and dried up, and the heavens were brass. Everything seemed to be crying, "Water, water!"

Rachel stood in the door of the rude cabin on the prairie, and shading her eyes with her hand, looked far out over the prairies. "Why don't father and mother come?" she said. "There, I guess they are coming now."

No, it was only an immigrant wagon, but it was following the trail that would bring it right by her door. Two half-starved horses drawing a dilapidated wagon, a drunken driver, a sick woman, and four children—these were what Rachel saw when they drew near. "Any water," asked the driver. "Whiskey ain't as cooling as some other things on a day like this."

For an instant Rachel hesitated; a pall of water stood on the bench behind the door, but it was the very last they would be able to draw from their well, and when that was gone, where was more to come from? A thin white hand lifted the cover, and a pale face looked out.

"God will bless you, my child, if you will only give us a little water," Rachel hesitated no longer. She quickly took the dipper from the nail on which it hung, and carried the pail to the wagon. The half-famished creatures soon emptied it, and the dog came and licked it dry.

"Remember, child," said the woman, as she drove away, "who it was that said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'"

Rachel watched them out of sight, and when she turned and entered her humble home, she felt happy, despite the fact that she knew not whence the next drop of water was to come. All the afternoon a still, small voice kept saying, "Ye have done it unto me, ye have done it unto me."

It was dark before her father and mother returned. They had gone several miles beyond the village to a well where they heard water was to be had, and brought back two barrels full. The little family on the plain suffered many privations during that year of drought, but the needy were never turned from their door.

The years passed by, and the desert began to "blossom as the rose." Fertile fields, thriving villages, and populous cities were to be seen on all sides. It was then that the brave-hearted people began "a peaceful war for God, and home, and native land."

Rachel was no longer a barefooted girl, but had developed into a comely matron, and was one of the most valiant soldiers in the great struggle. She had been the means of securing a well-known speaker to deliver a lecture in her town.

"I love this country," said the speaker, as he looked over the large audience. "I shall always love it; for it was on these plains that I took my first temperance pledge. When I was a lad my father settled in the western part of the state, but during the summer of the great drought we were literally starved out. Packing our few effects into a wagon, we started back east."

For days we traveled over the parched desert, through winds and drifting sand, with scarcely water enough to moisten our burning lips. Finally we came to a house. It was only a shanty standing alone out on the wild prairie, but it was the home of the angle of our deliverance. A sweet girl brought out a pail of water, and gave us all we could drink. I have since been afraid that it was as bad, and have often wished she could know just how much her cup of cold water did in our family. We held a prayer meeting right there in the old wagon. My father threw away his whisky bottle. 'This is my thank-offering,' he said. 'Mine,' said my mother, 'shall be my boy.' I promised her then for the rest of my life to be a soldier in the cold-water army."

Rachel bowed her head to hide the tears that were coursing down her cheeks, and she heard the still small voice say, "Ye have done it unto me! Ye have done it unto me!"

An African Teacher and His Eloquence Describing a Bible

Najola, Agbebi, Ph. D., a native of Lagos, and the head of the native Baptist church of West Africa, thus defines the Bible:

"This Book contains the mind of God, reveals the state of man, the way of salvation, the doom of sinners, and the happiness of believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true, and its decisions are immutable. Read it and be wise, believe it and be safe, and practice it and be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you, and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's pass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's charter. Here Paradise is restored, heaven opened, and the gates of hell closed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of pleasure. It is given to you in life, will be opened at the judgment, and remembered forever. It involves the highest responsibility, rewards the greatest labor, and condemns all who trifle with its precepts."

"The sense of duty is the largest asset in humanity."—Dargan.

JUST PIECE OF PAPER.

(The Outlook.)

As a result of a recent financial magazine's downfall, a depositor remarked to a bank official that he thought that the man in a subordinate position who handles large amounts of cash is subjected to a greater temptation than the "high financier." "Not so," was the answer; "I was a paying teller for 10 years and I can assure you that handling cash in large amounts is absolutely like handling simple pieces of paper with numbers on them. It is the mathematics of accounting that interests a cashier—the keeping of these bits of paper in perfect order. The question of what he might do with the bills never enters a busy paying teller's mind."

HELPING THE MINISTER.

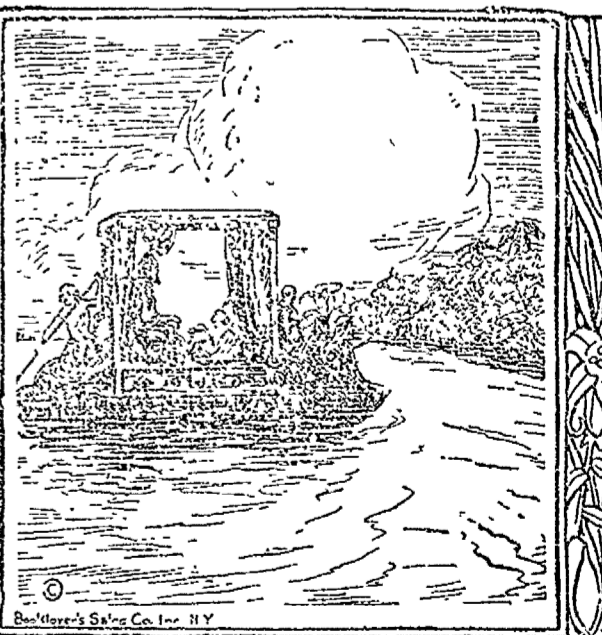

"One thing helped me very much while I was preaching today," said a clergyman. "What was that?" inquired a friend.

"It was the attention of a little girl, who kept her eyes fixed on me and seemed to hear and understand every word I said. She was a great help to me."

"Think of that, little ones, and when you go to church, fix your eyes on the minister and try to understand what he says, for he is speaking to you as well as to grown-up people. He is talking about the Lord Jesus, who said, 'Suffer little children to come unto me.'—Selected.

RECRUITING STATION TO BE CONTINUED

No One Who Has Registered
Can Enlist After December 15.

The recruiting offices will be maintained and recruiting will be continued, but no person who is within the conscription age and who has registered can volunteer his services for the army, whether exempted or discharged by a local conscription board, after December 15 next. Young men between the ages of 18 and 21, and men over draft age, together with those young men who have become 21 years of age since June 5, 1917, will have the right to volunteer their services to the army.

This information was sent out to the various recruiting offices of the state by Major Ryan, head recruiting officer of Indiana, and corrects any erroneous conception that might have been started. The recruiting office reports that a large number of those who volunteer are those not registered and so the above order will not have a great effect on the rush of business. It is noticeable, however, that many who are registered but who would rather enlist than be drafted are hastening their plans to get in, as all chances will be cut off after December 15.

Monday morning three left for the army, two for the aviation section and one for the coast artillery.

ALLEN COUNTY COURTS

RESUME OF THE WEEK'S HAPPENINGS

WEDNESDAY

SUES FOR $1,600.

The county commissioners are in a great quandary over the construction of the proposed new State street bridge. They do not know just what to do as much as it is almost impossible to secure either railroad cars or steel. All available railroad cars are being used in the transportation of coal and war munitions, while much of the steel in the country is being used by the government in the prosecution of the war.

Under these conditions the prospects are not at all favorable that it would be possible to secure the necessary material with which to build the bridge for several months and whether to let the contract and take chances or wait for more favorable conditions, the commissioners have not determined.

An appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of the bridge was made at a recent session of the county council.

THURSDAY

All county work will have to wait until the need of freight cars by the government is not so great, declares R. S. Lovett, appointed by the president to administer the priority, in transportation, to William G. Tonkel, county highway superintendent. As a result much work in the county is being held up. The letter to Superintendent Tonkel follows:

"Replying to your telegram of recent date, I beg to say that the national necessity for preferred commodities is so urgent that cases of individual or local convenience must yield for the time being so far as open top or flat cars may be used.

"The order will be revoked just as soon as the critical stage of the necessity has passed, but in the meantime, it must remain unimpaired by exceptions in particular cases, which from precedent would become too numerous as to break down the rule."

Lige Henderson made a trip on his bisickel to Hardscrabble last wk and Lige says he walkd most of the way there and back pushing the blamed bisickel the hole way ovink to the condishon of the roads. Lige ort to of left the bisickel to home in the 1st place.

Eggs is guttin skeecer and skeecer in Bingville and goin up in price all the time. Hen Weathersby prop of our general store is paying 30 cts per doz for strictly fresh eggs and selling same for 45 cts per doz whitch is ridiculus in the extream. Obe Hankins who has more hens and eggs than onybuddy else in Bingville says he cant afford to ete eggs when he can git so much for em to the store and that he aint lasted a egg for so long that he wouldnt skeecerly know whot one tasted like.

Mrs. Amo Lillyer recd a postage card from her sister Clarissa who lives over to the co seat that Clarissa is on the sicklist but not statin the complaint. This was quite a surprise to Missus Lillyer who never dreamt but whot Clarissa was in good helth until she recd the postal statin otherwise.

Hez Underwood is a going around with a big red bile on his nose whitch is sweld up most as big as a goose egg and as red as the back lile on a oty-mobel. Hank Dewberry told Hez he didnt calkilate he needed any lantern after dark being as that bile would shed enuff lile for him to go by. HAPPY VALLEY

The corn crop hereabouts this fall aint up to the mark by a good deal being as its mostly runny ears and nubbins. The reason is the frost ketchid it afore it had time to matoor.

There aint as much sickness in our midst as common at this time of yr. Why is this we ask. Usually about this time when winter begins to set in most of us has colds or grips or newmonya or somethink similar but this yr were all disappointed.

Hen Allman took his wife Sary Jane last Sunday in the spring wagon 9 miles to visit with her sister over Pea Ridge way. It aint often that Hen gives his wife sitch a splurge as this becuz it wears out his horse harness he says to travel when it aint absolutly necessary.

Rufe Peterson while out huntin one day last wk had a deer to jump out rite in front of him. Rufe said he might of shot the critter if it haddent of surprised him so that it never ockurd to him he had a gun in his hands until the deer was outen sight.

Your correspondents Bugle didnt arrive last wk as usual. As a result several fambuls whitch allus rends it after we git thru was turrible disappointed. Please dont let this ockur agin.

Jim Snyders horse shued last wk and went thru a barbed wire fence. The horse wassent hurt a tall, but Jim was on the horse.

Ezra Sparrow has been off his feed for a wk or two. Ez thinks he has probly et too much salt pork. Probly, being as this is about all Ez etes.

These is all the items we can recall at this time so we will bring this commoncashion to a abrupt close.

Births

We take great pleasure in reporting that births has been more numerous in our midst during the past wk than for several yrs according to our kalkashions. We mite almost say there has been a eppydemick of births in Bingville sinst the last ishue of the Bugle come out.

On last Tuesday for instants Mrs. Bale Hawkins persented Bale with a bouncing baby girl. The roomer spread like wild fire all over Bingville that the new arrival to Bales house weighd 16 lbs and consternation named swoopme being as the wimmen fokes hereabouts didnt believe such a thing as a new born baby weighk that much could be possibl. Finally Mrs. Cy Hoskins volunteered to investigate the roomer and she cald at Bales and found out that the scales whitch Bale had used to weigh the baby on was the same whitch he weighs his butter on for customers. When the child was weighd on a correct pr of scales it weighd only 9 lbs. Mother and child are doing well but Bale still is a good cat exsited.

On Thursday Doc Livermore our veterinary & huming speshalist was cald in grate haste to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Hoskins on strictly private bizness. Docs horse cast a shoe jest as he was startin and by the time Bill Hepburn had shoed his horse and Doc arrived the child was born—a 10 lb baby of the male persuasion we believe altho we aint shure but will let you know next wk.

On Friday sometime during the night Cy Hoskins old cow "Spot" persented him with a fine speckled calf whitch is the living image of its mother except smaller. Sex of calf male. Cy says he is turrible glad to see ole Spot come in fresh being as now he can enjoy the luxshury of cream in his coffee mornings and all the mik and butter he wants to drink.

This makes three births in our midst whitch is all we have heard of as we go to press, altho there may be others. Be that as it may this breaks all records for the past severel yrs as far as berths is concernd and we in Bingville may well be proud of sitch a handsome increase in her populashon.

Roomer Against Hod Denide

There has been a persistent roomer cirkulated around thru Bingville during the past wk to the effect that Hlod Quigly who owes nearly everybuddy in town and whose credit aint worth a toothpick has paid up all his detts in-clooding seven yrs. back subscription to the Boogle and that now he kin hold up his head in this commonitty being as he dont owe a ct in the world.

We tuk the trouble to investigate this roomer and find that Hlod aint paid a dogasted red cent of whot he owes to a livin sole in Bingville—that hes jest as deep in debt as he ever was and is lookin for a chanst to git in deeper. As fur as we be personally concernd he aint paid us ennything on his back subscription sinst he subscribed and we kalkulates he never will, the disreppytale dead beet!

Who starts sitch roomers about Hlod ennyhow?

This is to notify whoever it concerns that one day last wk (I dont remember whitch). I went and lost my ole cornob pipe somewheres but where is a mystery being as I aint saw hild nor hair of that pipe sinst.

I have smoked that pipe now goin on three yrs and I miss it moren I can tell. I prize that pipe not so much for its intrinsick value as for the historick and meller assoshashions whitch clusters about it, so to speak and while I cant afford to give a reward for its return whoever does so will be liberally thanked by me and remembered with grattitood as long as I live. If you happen to smell ennythink like my ole cornob pipe please investigate.

Bingville. DEACON ANDREWS.

FIRE! FIRE!! FIRE!!!

Being as there is a fire in my store every night so that my customers can sit around the stove and smoke and cat and warm their shins while the wind howls without and the mercury drops in the thermometer, I now offer for sale everything in the line of plain & fancy groceries, drygoods, noshons, hardware, butter, eggs and everythink else too numerous to mention whitch is usually kept in a big merchant emporium sitch as I run.

How about them mitts to keep your hands warm this winter, or a over coat or a swetter that garentyted to keep you so gorrand hot youll sweat all the time? I also handel ready made clothing, hats, caps, gloves, nitting yarn and nails. Prunes, crackers, cheese and dride herrings. As for my nitting yarn there aint no better to be had anywhere. Are you nitting ennything for the soljers? If not why not?

Only yesterday I got in a fresh baril of molasses whitch I spend rite off. Hank Dewberry who was present wher I spend same said they was the best molasses whitch ever trickled down his throte, but Hank led nearly a pint trickel down his throte afore he could teil. Try a pt or a qt or a gal of these molasses before theyre all gone. I persoom they will sell like hot cakes.

Fire! Fire!! Fire!!!
Come in and git warm. It wont cost you a cent, but of course I expect you to buy somethink if its only some Crackers and cheese or a dride salt herring or two. Drinkin water with the herring FREE.

MEETS DEATH IN ENGINE PIT

Mitoe Pap Vasiloff Instantly Killed at the Pennsylvania Round House.

EVERY BONE IN HIS BODY IS BROKEN

Engine Backs Onto Him While He is at Work—Native of Macedonia.

Mitoe Pap Vasiloff, thirty-two years old, was instantly killed Monday morning at 8:40 o'clock when engine 7512 backed onto him as he was attempting to get out of engine pit No. 23, at the Pennsylvania round house. Vasiloff was a round house pit cleaner and was at work in that capacity when the engine entered the round house floor at the end of the pit. His chest and head were horribly crushed and death was instantaneous. Y. Toffee, the hostler at the throttle of the engine, did not see Vasiloff, but B. F. Hostetter and Miss Hettie Schultz, employees at the round house, did see him and called to him to lay down in the pit, but he either failed to understand them or did not hear them. Coroner J. E. McArdle was summoned and after viewing the remains at the round house, ordered them removed to the Schone & Ankenbruck undertaking parlors. Vasiloff began work at the round house November 2. He was a Macedonian and came to America with his wife some time ago, leaving two daughters in the old home in Macedonia, expecting to send for them later. Mr. and Mrs. Vasiloff resided at 506 Holmes street, where the remains will probably be taken for funeral services.

LOCAL ICE DEALERS AGREE TO CO-OPERATE

They Will Assist All Efforts to Conserve Foods, Labor and Ice.

Bernard Moran, who has been appointed delegate for Allen county to the Indiana Ice Dealers association and E. D. Eward, manager of the Consumers Ice company, reported to the Allen county council of defense Monday morning that they were ready to co-operate with all efforts to conserve foods, labor and ice.

Mr. Moran was advised, in accordance with his instructions from the state organization, to get in touch with Mr. Beadell, the fuel administrator, and with George M. Hafner, the food administrator. They will together work out plans for the conservation both of foods and fuel.

Mr. Moran reported that he had closed down the artificial ice machinery for the winter and was serving customers with lake ice from his houses at Lake Pleasant. Mr. Eward reported that he would shut down the artificial ice machinery in his plant tomorrow night and thereafter serve his customers with lake ice. It is probable that the two ice plant managers will agree upon some organized system of delivery which will greatly reduce amount of labor and teams or auto trucks needed for the satisfactory service of the customers of both.

SHOOTS OFF HAND WHILE OUT HUNTING

Anthony Shoudell, of Garrett, Meets With Painful Accident Saturday.

(Special to The Sentinel.) Garrett, Ind., Nov. 26.—Anthony Shoudell, the young man from near Auburn, who shot his hand off Saturday afternoon while out hunting, is resting quite comfortably at Sacred Heart hospital, although still very weak from the great loss of blood. The young man is eighteen years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Shoudell of six miles southeast of Auburn. He was out hunting Saturday and had climbed a tree when in drop, and he slipped letting the gun drop, and the hammer caught on a limb discharging the gun. The load grazed the abdomen several shots being imbedded in the skin and blew off the left hand and passed on to the left cheek, a number of shots entering the eye. He ran to a neighbor, a half mile away, and called for help, not wishing to frighten his mother, who was at home alone. He was rushed to the hospital here and operated on at once. While the accident is very sad the young man has won the admiration of those about him for his optimistic view of it for he remarked that he was lucky to be here at all, for had the shot entered a little deeper in the abdomen it would have meant death and he is thankful that it was his left hand that was lost.

CAMPAIGN FOR NEW MEMBERS

Red Cross Drive Will Start December 17 and Close on the 25th.

MULLER RETURNS FROM CLEVELAND

Those Who Must Stay at Home Can Have Part in Winning War.

Harry Muller, chairman of the Red Cross drive committee for Allen county, has returned from attending a meeting of the American Red Cross, held at the Hotel Standler, in Cleveland, November 26. William G. Rose, director of the Christmas membership campaign of the Lake division, had charge of the meeting. He stated that this was an important campaign in that it was a campaign not for funds, but for the mobilization of a gigantic civilian army, an army of 15,000,000, to stand behind the fighting army of the United States. He stated further that membership in the Red Cross, that is, enlistment in this army, meant an open declaration of Red Cross principles. The four principal purposes in the Christmas membership drive are:

1. To force Germany to realize that the concerted spirit of the American people is back of the American government in this war.

2. To spur the morale of our soldiers by pledging to the cause the hearts, minds and money of 15,000,000 Americans back home.

3. To bind the wounds of our fighters so that every possible drop of American blood may be saved to strengthen world democracy.

4. To link the spirit of Red Cross with the spirit of Christmas, and hasten this righteous spirit that means world peace.

The people who must stay at home are going to have an important part in winning this war but if they do not already a member you want to enlist during this drive, and get the button with the little red cross blazed in front.

With the cross in hand look at its four corners and think that each corner stands for one of the four above listed principles, which by this cross will be accomplished.

The membership drive will open December 17 and will close December 25. The campaign is national and the intensive phases start all over this country with the break of dawn on December 17 and ends with the dawn of Christmas morn with "Every American home a Red Cross home." Dean H. P. Almon Abbott, of Trinity church, has just returned from abroad and told of the wonderful good the Red Cross is doing and of the great need for further and stronger efforts. One of the things we can do back here is for every person to get back of the Red Cross as a member. This cause is organized patriotism which will bring results.

Charles Oswald, efficiency expert in charge of the accounting plans for the lake division, stated that the quota for Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky was 1,600,000 members and Fort Wayne was assigned a quota of 25,000 for Allen county. Arrangements are being made throughout Fort Wayne and all over Allen county, that at 7:30 on Christmas eve lighted candles will be placed behind Red Cross service flags in every home, and at the same hour the church bells of the city and communities will chime the announcement of the hour, that Allen county has linked the Christmas spirit with the Red Cross of humanity by completing its quota of membership.

Workshop Notes. The workshop will close all day Thanksgiving.

Miss Francis Ott, who is teaching the home care classes at the workshop, was unable to meet with her classes Monday night and they were held in the sitting room of the Lutheran hospital, where Miss Ott has been confined for the past few days. The class Tuesday night will be held at the hospital.

Two new machines for Red Cross use have been donated by Miss Blanche Biederback and Mrs. Max Blitz. They will be installed at the Y. W. C. A., where a number of girls and women are doing Red Cross work.

DR. EDWARD J. M'OSCAR AWARDED FIRST PRIZE

He is Given Electrical Diagnostic Outfit for Reading Best Paper.

Dr. Edward J. McOscar is in receipt of a letter from the International Journal of Surgery announcing him the winner of prize awarded by that magazine for the best paper read at the Pennsylvania Railway Surgeons' meeting, held in Washington, D. C., a short time ago. Managing Editor Frank E. Lewis in speaking of the matter expressed the hope that the Fort Wayne surgeon would take as much pleasure out of the outfit as the journal does in presenting it. The diagnostic outfit is a valuable one, being of the latest pattern and manufactured by the McIntosh Battery and Optical company, of Chicago.

SELL 15,550 XMAS SEALS

This Year's Figures Slightly Below Last Year's Because of Many Funds.

WILL PLACE LARGE SIGN ON SQUARE

Many $5.00 Contributions Among Saturday's List of Purchasers.

Just 15,500 Red Cross seals have been sold this year up to date, in comparison with 37,040 sold last year. It will be seen that the amount of anti-tuberculosis seals thus far placed this season falls short of the same date of last year but headquarters is not disturbed—for the reason that a this time last year the war had not involved America and the people had not been called upon for contributions to other causes. A special advance sale had been made by personal solicitation.

The amount reported for 1917 is only for Saturday, Nov. 24. Today's mail was heavy and the result will be reported tomorrow. It is believed that the sales this year, because of the vastly greater need, will total larger than any previous year.

Headquarters is at the out for a new record. Owing to the trouble in getting to the order for the usual measured emblem, the painters have not yet delivered the sign that is to adorn the court house corner from day to day. The sign this year is to picture a Red Cross nurse instead of merely the society's cross. This will be placed as soon as the painter can finish it.

A list of those buying $2 worth or more of the seals is herewith given. All the contributions are gratefully received, but owing to the numerous people contributing less than $2 worth it would be impossible to make a complete list. Those subscribing $2 or more up to this time are:

Leunart & Geller, $5; Dan Ninde, $5; J. Little, $2; Kraus & Applebaum, $4; Theodore J. Israel, $4; Hattaway & Son, $5; Willis Hatfield, $2; S. Kraus, $3; Jacob Rohrer, $2; Cooney Beyer, $5; Lanier, Doris, $2; L. O. Hull, $3; J. W. Miller, $2; Sol A. Wood, $3; Miss Emanuel, $5; Hugh Keegan, $3; Charles Agster, $2; William N. Ballou, $2; Albert E. Thomas, $4; Harper & Frieber, $5; Old Fort Supply Co., $5; Brown Trucking Co., $5; Higman & Schaaf, $5; Tinkham Coal Co., $2; Mrs. Beal Erich, $2.50; F. M. Kauffman, $2; Altschule Co., $5; National Handle Co., $4; Agnes Cochran, $2; Fort Wayne Dental, $4; George Gilie, $2; Schaab Roofing Supply, $3; Bell & Sons, $2; J. F. Freeman Co., $2; T. SOCIALISTS SPEND $211 ON ELECTION

Remainder of Candidates Expected to File Expense Accounts This Week.

The socialist party has completed its expense account and has filed it with the city clerk. A total of $211.34 was spent for campaign expenses. This total is considerably lower than the democratic and republican expenditures, will be, but it accomplished the election of one candidate.

The following men filed their expense accounts Saturday: Sam Henline, republican candidate for councilman-at-large, $20.50; Henry A. Miller, democratic candidate for councilman from the Fifth ward, $41; Fred Wahlenburg, candidate for council-at-large on the republican ticket, $50.75; Ben F. Bennett, republican candidate for councilman-at-large, $36.52; Charles King, republican candidate for councilman from the First ward $

Fitz One of Few Fighters Who Really Gloried in Battle

BOB FITZSIMMONS IN THEATRICAL ATTIRE

Bob Fitzsimmons was a man of more real fighting and beat better men in these four fights than Sullivan and Corbett did in all their lives.

Unlike his fellows in the heavy-weight order, Fitz loved to fight. He was at home only in the ring. He was a man of little education, inferior mentality and nervous disposition. He never was a social fellow, like Corbett or Sullivan, who loved to talk and to enjoy themselves in good company. Fitz was an adept at letting wiser men get his money away from him. It is related that he once let a man take away a large poker pot from him on the ground that three deuces beat three aces, it having been explained to Fitz that the cards with the greater number of spots on them won. He was just as simple in real estate and theatrical ventures. So the only time that Fitz was not harming himself was when he was in the ring. He could usually make money there. Yet there have been occasions when the simple-minded farrier failed to get the money for which he fought. When he met Jim Hall at New Orleans, March 8, 1893, Fitz was offered and accepted a purse of $40,000. The promoters meant well, but the fight failed to draw up to their expectations. Fitz won with one of his ripping right-hand punches in four rounds, but he did not get his share of the $40,000, which amounted to about $32,500. In fact, all he got of that was about $12,000. Had he been a wise fighter, Fitz would have had his money in his hand before he went into the ring. Hall was quite as foolish, though rated a much wiser business man than Ruby Robert. For beating Corbett Fitz got not a cent. He was a partner with Dan Stuart in promoting the fight and it lost money.

A Glutton for Fighting.

In his thirty-four years of ring fighting, 1880 to 1914, Fitzsimmons fought upwards of sixty pitched ring battles, as well as several lesser bouts. That means two battles to the year. Jack Johnson is the only other fighter whose record in any wise compares with that of Fitzsimmons in number of battles, and Johnson did not meet such great fighters as Fitzsimmons did.

Sullivan really met but one good man prior to Corbett. That man was Mitchell, and Mitchell was 30 pounds lighter than his huge antagonist. Corbett never met a bad man, in fact, Corbett fought better men than any other fighter, bar Fitzsimmons, and maybe one better than any Fitz met, Jackson. Fitz was always candid about fearing Jackson. He often said that nothing could get him into a ring with Jackson. They had boxed at Larry Foley's school in Sydney and Fitz felt that Jackson had it on him. Probably Jack's style, purely classic, was not so good as Fitz's.

Yet he was willing to fight Fitzsimmons was master of them all.

And how he could fight! He was the "fighters' fighter." Old fighting men like Arthur Chambers, Bill Clark, the famous "Belast Chackca," of St. Louis; Billy Edwards, Sullivan, Tom Allen, all the old boys who knew a good fighting man when they saw him, were always "for" Ruby Robert.

Simple as a child out of the ring, Fitzsimmons was wily as a lynx when he felt four ropes around him and saw a nude boxer in front of him. He was master of all the tricks of the ring, the tricks the old English boxers used to avoid punishment in the cruel long fights of the bare-knuckle days. Playing "possum" was one of Fitz's favorite tricks. He would feign grogginess, an injured hand, a bad leg, to draw an opponent on. Then—

His reputation for cunning probably won him his battle with Corbett. Pompadour Jim punched holes in the Dingo for the first six rounds. The sixth was a slaughter. Fitz was punched until he bled like a pole-axed steer. He was all in, too. He went to his knees, staggered up, panted hard, was all but in. Had Corbett gone to him as he should have gone to him Fitz probably would have been beaten. But Bill Delaney and other men in Corbett's corner kept Fitz's proverbial foxiness in mind and kept calling, "Look out for his right, Jim! Look out for his right! He's only stalling."

Losing Fight Already Won.

Corbett was naturally a careful fellow himself, which kept him from being a truly great fighter. He kept off Fitzsimmons just as he kept off Jackson six years before and lost another battle thereby. Jim made the terrible mistake of letting up on Fitzsimmons when he had him apparently beaten. Then another of Fitzsimmons' great fighting assets, supreme vitality, asserted itself. Given a few minutes' easy fighting, he became quite strong again. Corbett, on the other hand, never was vitally strong. He had never done hard manual labor, as had Fitzsimmons. He was a gymnasium athlete, an indoor man, all his life. Fitzsimmons was an outdoor chap. He always did an enormous amount of outdoor work when he trained. He recuperated quickly from the terrific punching given him. Then he felt Corbett's punch weaken. The moment Fitz felt that Jim was tiring he sailed in. No keeping away on his side. Corbett punched and punched and jabbed and jabbed, and made Fitz look like an amateur. All the time old Bob kept boxing in. He never gave ground. Corbett hit him and hit him and tore his lips into tatters. But Fitz felt that Jim's punch was not there any more, and he was willing to take 100 wallops to get in one.

That was real fighting. Corbett, a perfect boxer, was so wa-

There was a lot of talk about Fitz inventing a new blow, having designed this special blow to win this fight and having worked systematically to deliver it all along. Fudge. The blow is old as boxing. We knew of it as school boys. We knew that a sharp crack, even a jab with extended fingers, in the "wind" would, under certain conditions, cause temporary paralysis. We school boys thought that the "wind," as we called our breath, had been knocked out of us. As a matter of fact a blow in the solar plexus, a nerve center, merely caused temporary paralysis. Many blows will do the same thing. I have seen in a friendly boxing bout a man paralyzed when a friend reached over his back on a duck and chopped a side-hand blow on the loins. Struck some nerve and practically paralyzed the legs. The partial paralysis endured for several days, too.

Opening was there.

As a matter of fact, Fitz's famous solar plexus blow, so far from having been invented, planned, prepared and delivered at the psychological moment, was delivered by instinct in the heat of battle. Had it not just happened to catch Corbett with his head thrown back and his arm up, a perfect position for the attacker, it would not have knocked him out. Of course, Fitz saw the opening and delivered the punch without considering what he was doing. He was there not to knock Corbett out with one punch, but to punch at him until that same punch landed and won.

Fitz's great vitality won that fight. Speaking of it long afterwards Corbett smiled and said: "Gee, he is a strong guy, that fellow Fitzsimmons. When we were training near Carson it was so cold that I rarely left the house save to go to my handball court a few feet away. I would hear about Fitzsimmons plowing all over the mountains in the snow. Gee, I could not go that."

There you learn in a few words what won the fight at Carson City, March 17, 1897.

Drinking Hurf Him.

It is not generally known that Bob liked champagne with brandy on the side, one of the most devitalizing of drinks. He did, though. I have seen him drink champagne with brandy as a "chaser" for hours at a time. He was a strong and hardy man before he entered the ring and before he began to drink. So his constitution stood up well under the strain put upon it. But there is no doubt that drinking, even periodically, hurt Fitzsimmons, and two years after his great uphill battle with Corbett he made a rather dull, losing fight with the young, inexperienced, but powerful Jeffries.

He won some good fights from Sharkey and Ruhlin after he lost to Jeffries, but there can be no doubt that wine did not help Ruby Robert to win any battles. When the end came, pneumonia, it is most improbable that Bacchus was among the gods that helped him.

Spectators always got a real fight when Ruby Robert was in the ring.

Tom (at the concert)—Don't you think Miss Warbles has a voice with a liquid tone? Jack—Yes; I noticed the high bawl.

BY J. B. SHERIDAN.

DIED in Chicago on October 22, Robert John Fitzsimmons, the greatest fist-fighting man that ever lived. Inch for inch, pound for pound, punch for punch, spirit for spirit, there never was a fighter in the same class as the Dingo Farrier, whose life ebbed away in his 56th year.

Fitzsimmons was the very incarnation of the first-class fighting man. He gloried in battle. He knew nothing but prize-fighting. Out of the ring Fitz was a good bit of a "saffie." He was a child in business, a "come on" in theatricals, a pity as an evangelist and a very king as a fist fighter. Put him in the ring with an opponent and he was the wisest of the wise, the craftiest of the crafty.

Put him anywhere else—in an office with a business man, on the stage with an actor, in an alcove with a woman—and poor old Bob was the worst of simulators.

He was a great ring fighter. He had everything that a great ring fighter should have—heart, craft, endurance.

And, above all things, a wallop. Greater was his willingness to take a wallop than to give one. Let it come as it would, he never flinched.

There never was a time that Fitzsimmons was not willing to put it up to an exchange of punches to win or lose. You might be beating him to a sure death or he might be doing the same for you, yet were you to say "Let's swap wallops for it, Bob," and he would swap. He'd risk a sure victory just to take his favorite chance. Of course, he did have an unequalled wallop, but that cut no figure with Fitz. He'd swap wallops with a grizzly bear.

Ready to Take a Chance.

It was his favorite way of fighting. He could never, he could be sure he could, any way any pugilist ever won, his favorite way was to put fortune to the touch of one exchange of wallops.

His willingness to take a chance, to put his fortune to the touch or lose or carry all to his mind, made Fitzsimmons the greatest of fighters. For it may not be known that last fight with Sullivan, he was so drunk that he had to be taken to the hospital.

to play it safe. Most of the great fighters were hard to drag into the ring after they won the championship and got money. Sullivan, always reputed as ready to fight at the drop of the hat, was really hardest of all to induce to fight. John L. really fought one battle between 1881 and 1889—that in 1887 with Mitchell at Chantilly, France. In all, Sullivan fought but four real battles in his career of thirteen years as champion—with Ryan in 1881, with Mitchell in 1887, with Kilrain in 1889 and with Corbett in 1892. Fitzsimmons fought more fights and better fighters in two years than Sullivan fought in thirteen years.

Corbett was cagey about fighting save when he had to, and from the time he won the championship from Sullivan in 1892 until he lost it to Fitzsimmons in 1897, he met but one good man, Sharkey, and he did not know that Sharkey was very good until he got into the ring with him. Jeffries did not care how often he fought, but it so happened that he did not fight very often. Jack Johnson, who succeeded Jeffries, was lazy and fought only when he needed money. Willard, who succeeded Johnson, has fought but two battles in three years, and has shown every possible disinclination to enter the ring.

Fitz Always Willing.

It was otherwise with Fitzsimmons. Champion or no champion, he was always willing to fight. Of course, his improvidence in money matters made it necessary that he should fight. His longest period between big battles was eighteen months, from March, 1897, to June, 1899, when he lost to Jeffries. No fighter worked harder for the heavyweight championship and no fighter held it a shorter time, unless it was Tommy Burns, who was a fluke heavyweight champion, anyhow.

Fitzsimmons fought four terrific battles of the first class between June, 1899, and August, 1900, when he met Jeffries, Dunkhorst, Sharkey and Ruhlin in order. He lost to Jeffries in eleven rounds, whipped Dunkhorst in two rounds, Ruhlin in six rounds and Sharkey in two rounds. Only a little time before he had won twenty-two fights in a row. He was a good work.

RURODE'S

SUBURBAN DAY

What Would We Do Without Christmas?

What could we substitute that would so mellow our natures and so warm the cockles of our hearts? Let us be glad there is such a holiday as Christmas. Let us be glad of the opportunity it gives to display a generous and friendly spirit. Let cheery faces and glad greetings make this the best Christmas of all. Christmas is essentially the children's holiday—little eyes are brightening already in expectation. "Santa Claus writes us that he is coming around just as usual in spite of the war and the work he has had to do for the soldiers and sailors and the little orphan children in Belgium, France and those other places where the terrible war is being fought."

Many of our soldiers and sailors were children only a little while ago. Now they are in training camps and across the ocean, a gift from "back home" will make them happier and more comfortable. Let nothing be too good for our boys.

This Christmas has its problems but they will be met in the spirit that finds joy in contributing to the happiness of others.

AMERICA AND OTHER POWERS OF ENTENTE MUST DETERMINE IT

Will Decide Status of Russ Radicals

Germany Are Understood.

MAY BE HELD AS ALLIES OF PRUSSAINS

Washington, Nov. 28.—The American government and the entente allies as well, will determine whether the Bolsheviks are actually to be classed as enemies and active allies of Germany as soon as official advice can be gathered in conference between Bolshevik leaders and German officers.

Yesterday's new dispatch saying German staff officers actually were in Petrograd actively engaged as advisers to Lenin followed by today's news cables that Bolshevik leaders had crossed into the German line for conferences with the German military authorities, were not wholly unexpected to officials here, but they shattered the faint hope that the Bolshevik might in the end help carry on the war against Prussian militarism.

The developments more than confirmed the contention of those who have held from the first that the Bolsheviks were fostered by German propaganda seeking to break Russia from her allies.

One of the first acts of the allied government when they learn that the Bolsheviks are actively working with the Germans, undoubtedly will be to withdraw their embassies in Petrograd. This, of course, will include American Ambassador Francis.

Whether the diplomatic corps would go to one of the adjacent neutral countries to await developments, or whether it would move to some other part of Russia, where a new government considered representatives of the Russian nation rather than of an anarchical faction, might be set up, has not yet been determined.

This will be decided by the developments in Russia. Ambassador Francis has large measures of discretion to act with others of the diplomatic corps in Petrograd and much of his course will have to be determined without frequent consultation with Washington.

Today the state department had no new advice whatever but was expecting some on which judgments might be formed as to the course the government will pursue. Meanwhile the United States is receiving the benefit of what information the entente allies are gathering in Russia and the course of action when finally selected will be un-

GREAT ACTIVITIES
Defenders Determined Not to Let the Invaders
Get Past.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Great activity among the Austro-German divisions all along the Italian front, and reported in official dispatches from Rome received here today are declared to forecast a still greater offensive in the northern sectors, with elaborate preparations for mighty effort to break through.

The dispatch says: "The enemy is making large scale preparations for a still greater offensive in the northern region. Yesterday in the vicinity of Malta Sappa, large enemy units with machine guns attempted an encircling movement but were counter attacked by a battalion of Alpini and forced to retire leaving in our hands complete sections of machine guns which were immediately turned on the fleeing enemy. Big guns are roaring all along the front, indicating the imminent renewal of a general offensive on the part of the Austro-Germans in a mightier effort to break through our lines."

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

By The Associated Press.

Germany has consented to negotiate immediately for an armistice "on all the fronts of the belligerent countries," according to a Petrograd dispatch reporting on the outcome of the visit of the Bolshevik military delegation to the German lines on the Russian front for negotiations with the German military authorities. The Bolshevik formula has been the proposal of an armistice to all the belligerents with a view to the conclusion of a general peace. A proposal has fitted in well with the admitted German desire for achievement of a "peace by agreement," as indicated in the 1916 peace offer and in the German reply to Pope Benedict's peace note as well as in the rehashing resolution of last July. The entente governments and the United States on the other hand have shown no disposition to negotiate while the "free peoples of the world" continue to be menaced by a "vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible government," in the words of President Wilson's allusion to the German war machine in his reply to the pope. The Bolshevik armistice propositions were submitted to the embassies at Petrograd, but it appears they have not been replied to by the respective governments.

Contag has been established between the Bolshevik leaders in Russia and the German military authorities and negotiations for an armistice are presumably in full swing behind the German lines.

Whatever the ultimate result of these negotiations, it seems clear that at present the Russian negotiators are representative of only a fraction of Russia. General Krylenko, nominal commander-in-chief of Bolshevik forces, whose representatives have crossed to the German side for the parley, has been unable to take over the actual command of more than the northern Russian armies. Communication between north and south Russia has been cut off and General Dukhonin, the de facto commander of all but the northern forces, whose headquarters are at Mohilev, opposite the Galician front, has refused to treat with the Germans.

Representatives of the allied powers are in Paris for a conference upon which the future course of war activities probably will depend. The French leaders have been joined by the representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Italy. A basis for joint action against the Central powers will be determined at the conference, it is indicated, and the future policy toward Russia may be decided upon. Although the Bolsheviks apparently have been unable to extend their power over Russia, except in the cities of Petrograd and Moscow, they continue their efforts toward an armistice and peace. It is reported that German officers have arrived in Petrograd to aid the Maximalist leaders with their advice and counsel.

Indications are that the opposition to the Bolsheviks is rapidly gaining strength. A conference of anti-Bolshevik leaders at Russian army headquarters for the purpose of forming a coalition government is reported. Among the men there are Prof. Milukoff, leader of the constitutional democratic party, and one of the prominent actors in the March revolution; members of the socialist party, and prominent military leaders.

FARMERS' RESPONSE

American Farms About
$21,000,000,000.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Thanksgiving day finds America's horn of plenty with new high record fullness. Responding faithfully to President Wilson's appeal and the needs of a war torn world, American farmers produced a gross total of $21,000,000,000 worth of farm products, equalling in value the nation's total expenditure in one year of war.

That great total, being the value of all crops, animals and animal products, was $6,500,000 greater than last year's, and more than the combined value of any two previous years. There were record crops of corn, oats, rice, wheat and sweet potatoes, tobacco and beans.

The principal farm crops will reach more than $12,000,000,000 in value, minor

BITTER FIGHT STILL RAGING

British and Germans Keep Up Desperate Battle
for Cambrai.

FONTAINE SCENE OF

After Taking Positions the
Fresh Forces.

British Headquarters in France, Tuesday, Nov. 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Desperate and sanguinary fighting has been raging in and about Fontaine Notre Dame since dawn today, when the British again attacked the strongly held village. Shortly after 9 o'clock it appeared that the assaulting infantry had stormed its way through the village in the face of tremendous machine gun fire from both the houses of the hamlet and from La Folle wood, to the southeast. Five hundred German prisoners were taken in the early hours of the fighting.

Two New German Divisions.
Late this afternoon the Germans, however, moved up two new divisions and threw them in for a counter-attack.

The fighting which followed in Fontaine was even more bitter, it is possible, than that which occurred in the first rush through the ruined hamlet. At latest reports superior numbers of enemy infantry had pushed the British back through the village again to the west of the outskirts, but the battle still continued with unabated fury.

In the meantime the British line running around Bourlon wood to the northwest was sustaining a heavy assault. The enemy appeared to be determined to regain this important position if it were humanly possible. The whole front from Fontaine to Bourlon village was the scene of fierce fighting, which at many places was at close quarters. The British line about Bourlon wood is still intact.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Mediation of the strike demands of Baltimore & Ohio telegraphers revealed today that railroad telegraphers throughout the U. Hanger of the board of mediation and conciliation who today went to Baltimore for a session of the mediation conferences with J. M. Davis vice-president of the road. Chicago, Nov. 28.—Nearly two hundred athletes from thirty colleges are in Chicago today wearing the symbols of army rank received after three months' intensive work at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. These new officer athletes include enough all-star football players to make up three eleven, shining lights in college basketball, several golfers of championship class, tennis players who hold interstate records, swimmers and trapshooters of more than local reputation.

Watts Valentine, one of the six to win the rank of major at the Fort Sheridan camp, is a former athlete from Shattuck Military academy, Minnesota. Joseph Spaulding, Yale's football captain in 1912, and Henry Gordon Gale, of the University of Chicago star baseball player twenty years ago, received commissions.

Eight all-American football men who received commissions were: E. J. Allen, University of Michigan; James B. Craig, University of Michigan; Paul Des Jardien, University of Chicago; Jesse Spaulding, Yale; Knox F. Wheeler, University of Virginia; E. Verwiebe, Harvard, and James Turner, Dartmouth.

Among the golfers to receive commissions was Robert A. Gardner, national amateur champion in 1909 and 1915. James L. Lightbody, member of the United States Olympic team at Stockholm, and Robert Simpson, Columbia, Mo., were commissioned second lieutenants of artillery.

DENIAL THAT VON LUDENDORFF HAS GONE TO RUSSIA

Amsterdam, Nov. 28.—An official statement received here from Berlin denies a rumor, attributed to London, that Gen. von Ludendorff, first quartermaster general of the German army, had gone to the Russian front with a number of his staff. It is said that Gen. von Ludendorff is at the western front.

A London despatch on Nov. 24 said that according to advice received from Amsterdam Gen. von Ludendorff had started for the eastern front in connection with the Russian offer of a truce.

GERMANY READY FOR A TRUCE ON ALL THE FRONTS

BOLSHEVIKI SEND MEN OVER THE LINE

Petrograd, Nov. 28.—Representatives sent by Ensign Krylenko, the Bolshevik commander-in-chief of the Russian armies, have been received in the German lines and informed by the German commander that the Germans have officially consented to immediate negotiations for an armistice on all the fronts of the belligerent countries.

The Germans have set Dec. 2 for a conference for negotiation of an armistice.

Ensign Krylenko sent three representatives with instructions to request the German commander of the sector in which the crossing was effected to inquire of the German commander in chief whether it was agreeable to him that representatives be sent for immediate negotiations for an armistice on the fronts of all belligerent countries and increase his response was satisfactory to ask him to fix a time and place for a conference of representatives of both sides. The Bolshevik emissaries crossed the Russian lines at four o'clock yesterday afternoon and were received by the German commander of the sector. A reply was promised at 8 o'clock. At the appointed time the Germans gave official consent to conducting negotiations. The conference was set for Dec. 2.

The removal of General Balueff, commander on the western front is reported by the revolutionary committee at Minsk. He refused to negotiate an armistice with the Germans and has been replaced by a Maximalist. Announcement is made by the Maximalists that they are in control of Tashkent, capital of Russian Turkestan, after four days of fighting.

The military revolutionary committee has seized the customs department.

ENVOYS ARE SENT.

WASHINGTON KEEPS A CLOSE WATCH ON AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA

Washington, Nov. 28.—The conference at Petrograd today of Russian political leaders, which according to a London Times dispatch, is for the purpose of forming a government representative of all parties added to the interest with which official Washington and unofficial Washington as well, is watching the march of developments in that changing capital.

What really lies back of the conference it was too early for officials to judge. It was significant that former members of Kerensky's cabinet were among those who assembled along with the Bolshevik leaders, although the calling in of some members of an overthrown regime, it is recognized, may be a strategic move for effect on the diplomatic corps at Petrograd who have uniformly refused to indicate any recognition of the newly sprung element of power while Russian diplomats and consuls in this country openly repudiate it. Details of the conference were awaited here with considerable concern.

News of the conference followed over night the London report that German staff officers are already in Petrograd acting as military advisers of the government in power. Official confirmation was lacking but if official confirmation comes, it is understood here that the action will be met immediately by this government and its allies putting the Bolshevik government squarely in the status of an ally of Germany. The result would be the immediate withdrawal of the diplomats to the Swedish or some other neutral capital to await instructions from their government, including Washington, and meantime, in this country final orders would be issued heading off supplies for Russia.

The economic effect on Germany would be to make available to it the vast stores of the great Russian empire and the restoration of German utilization for service again at the German front. Meantime, it is believed that Col. House and the allied conference at London is keeping in close touch with the developments.

SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

STRICKEN WITH HEART

FAILURE AT WORK

Elmer Kabisch Falls Unconscious in Shop and Dies in Ambulance.

While performing his duties in the General Electric works at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, Elmer Kabisch fell unconscious as the result of heart disease and died in the ambulance while being taken to the hospital. Dr. F. J. Schulz, the General Electric company's surgeon, was immediately summoned to the side of the unconscious man and with the pulmotor and other means made an effort to revive him, but to no avail.

Elmer Kabisch was 26 years old, resided at the corner of Wilt and Rockhill streets, and is survived by a widow and an infant son. He is also survived by the father, F. C. Kabisch, and by several brothers and sisters. One of the brothers, Frank M. Kabisch, conducts a meat market at 1123 Rockhill street and before taking employment at the Electric works, Elmer was employed as a clerk in the store. He resigned that position two months ago and took employment with Foreman Rohm in the automatic screw machine department of the General Electric works, on the third floor of building 26, on the north side of Wilt street. A few minutes before the fatal attack, Mr. Kabisch talked with some of his shop associates and did not complain of being sick. Corner J. B. McArde viewed the remains at the home and ordered them removed to the funeral home, where they will be prepared for burial.

EXCURSIONISTS RETURN.

Enjoyed Four Days With the Soldiers at Camp Shelby.

The personally conducted excursion to Camp Shelby by Agent John E. Ross, over the G. R. & L. was one of the most enjoyable events of its kind ever given to a Fort Wayne crowd. Not an accident or unpleasant incident occurred to mar the pleasure of the 144 people in the party. The trip consumed eight days and offered a four days' visit with the boys at the camp. The soldiers were given great freedom during the visit of their relatives and friends and a good portion of the time was spent down town. En route to Hattiesburg stop-overs were made at Chattanooga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Fort Oglethorpe and other places of national interest. The cars occupied by the excursionists were attached to G. R. & L. train No. 3, on the homeward trip, and arrived here at 4:05 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The excursionists extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Ross for the manner in which he looked after their comfort and amusement.

RAILROAD Y. M. C. A.

Preparing to Make Last Year in Old Quarters Most Successful of All.

The November monthly meeting of the railroad department committee of management of the Fort Wayne Young Men's Christian association was held Tuesday evening at the railroad department building. Vice Chairman E. B. Hughes presiding. An interesting feature of the evening was the election of H. L. Bley, general yard master of the Pennsylvania company, as vice chairman of the board, and the re-election of W. E. Blessing as recording secretary and J. E. N. Dillon, treasurer. The following committee appointments having been made by Chairman O. E. Maxwell were announced by Vice Chairman Hughes:

House Committee—James Leach, chairman; O. S. Collins, vice chairman; H. L. Bley, E. B. Hughes.

Membership Committee—Ernest F. Stephan, chairman; S. B. Beckenrode, vice chairman; E. W. Gartner, E. B. Hughes.

Educational Committee—James A. Foster, chairman; F. E. Willmore, vice chairman.

Social Work Committee—F. E. Willmore, chairman; W. E. Blessing, vice chairman.

Special guests of the evening were E. H. May, assistant division engineer of the Pennsylvania, and Erwin W. Gartner, chief electrician of the Chestnut street shops of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company. They expect to become active in the work of the department.

Very encouraging reports were made by the chairman of the sub-committees and many new plans were discussed for the winter season. One of the important activities will be a still stronger series of lectures and talks given under the auspices of the educational committee. As a number of association members have gone to fight for their country, a service flag will be prepared and hung in the front window of the building.

The committee of management expects to make this last year in the old building one of the very best in the long history of the railroad department.

CHANGES AT BOWSER PLANT.

Offices Created to Meet Demand of Growing Business.

To meet the requirements of the rapidly expanding factory and the growing business of the plant, S. P. Bowser & Co. have made some radical changes in the organization of the forces. Samuel L. Wass has been appointed custodian of the factory and office property, with jurisdiction over all the watchmen and janitors, and in this connection the announcement is made that the watchman system is to be enlarged and improved. Mr. Wass formerly occupied a position in the planning mills, which has not yet been filled. A. C. Schmetzer has been appointed general foreman of the final operation of painting, assembling, planning and crating. Matters which were heretofore the subject of direct negotiations between the foremen of these departments and the factory manager will hereafter be handled through the general manager. The new position is created to promote the individual and collective efficiency of the departments involved and to increase the effectiveness of the organization as a whole.

PLAYED THEIR FIRST GAME.

The reorganized bowling league of the G. R. & L. offices had their first games at the Academy alley last night, when the Engineers won two out of three games from the Caboose and the Cars won out of three from the Rails. The high team scores were made by the Engineer and the high individual score was made by J. H. Lauer. The scores were as follows: Towles, 119, 126 and 147; Martz, 176, 148 and 176; Getz, 186, 184 and 132; Kalbfleisch, 135, 118 and 99; Brake, 184, 130 and 131; Lauer, 174, 185 and 190; Ackerman, 184, 159 and 184; Klotz, 103, 158 and 157. As stated, this was the first game under the reorganized clubs.

NO LOCAL FREIGHT TOMORROW.

All Fort Wayne steam roads have issued bulletins, announcing that the local freight trains will be annulled tomorrow on account of Thanksgiving. In some instances the crews will be engaged in moving through freight, which is heavy on all roads.

INSTALLING SPRINKLERS.

The Bowser plant is installing an automatic sprinkling system in the old Holtzman school building, which at present houses the departments of publication, art, card, printing, stationery stock and the editorial room of the "Booster and Bomber."

AT TORONTO ON BUSINESS.

W. A. Bersch, auditor of the Bowser firm, is at Toronto, Canada, supervising the annual inventory of the Canadian branch of the firm. Mrs. Bersch is accompanying him on the trip.

WILL OBSERVE THANKSGIVING.

The Bowser employees of both the office and factory will observe Thanksgiving day, orders having been issued that the big works would not operate tomorrow.

Machinist William McCarthy, of the Wabash shops, has gone to Chicago to be the guest of friends over Thanksgiving day.

CANNOT REDUCE THE

Rea Says Company Cannot Handle Passenger Business With Less Cars.

SOME OF THE MEMBERS OF THE ELEX CLUB AT LUNCH AFTER A BUSINESS SESSION.

The Elex club, an association for educational and social purposes of the girls employed at the General Electric works, will soon be enjoying handsome club rooms, now being fitted up for them in the old laboratory building, known as No. 16. The club rooms can be reached by stairs within the building or by crossing the bridge leading from the main office building to No. 16. The room will be fitted with all the comforts of the living room at home. It will have easy chairs, tables strewn with the latest and best magazines, piano and other means of enjoyment. The Elex club is composed of active, earnest and ambitious girls employed at the works who feel the want of mental and physical advancement. With this object in view arrangements have been made for classes in gymnasium, cooking, basketry, ukelele and social usages, one class to be held each week for ten weeks. A recent membership campaign among the girls at the General Electric works resulted in swelling the roll to upwards of 150. The above picture was taken as the girls composing one of the classes were enjoying some refreshments at the close of the class meeting. Nearly every department of the big works is represented in the party. There are stenographers and clerks from the main and the shop offices; machine operators and bench hands in the small motor, the mica, the transformer and the meter departments.

ROTARIANS HAVE

Addresses Made by Lieut. Fishing, B. A. Thompson and Dr. E. D. Baker.

The Rotary club held an interesting noon session Wednesday afternoon. Lieutenant Walter Fishing gave the opening address. His talk was enthusiastically received because of its smack of real military life. He dwelt long on the attitude held toward drafted men and said that all conscripted men became real volunteers as soon as they get into the trenches.

P. A. Thompson followed this address by an outline of the work and purpose of the home guard units being organized in Fort Wayne. He not only asked all Rotarians able to do so to enlist in this unit, but also requested that every member of the organization do everything in his power to interest others. He especially invited the members to attend the meeting in the assembly room of the court house on Friday evening.

The session was closed by an interesting talk and demonstration by Dr. E. D. Baker, the noted mathematician, of New York. A black board was pressed into service and some of the doctor's theories were expounded. An invitation was extended to all Rotarians to attend his lecture on Monday evening at the high school building.

Miss Verne Mitch, employed at the Pennsylvania east car shop, who has been off duty due to sickness for the past four weeks, has recovered and expects to resume her duties in the near future.

Charles Valentine, William McClish and Ernest Trine have been transferred from the pelting department, under Foreman C. L. Lepschire, to the dynamo assembling department, under Foreman V. H. Schultz, at the General Electric works.

J. B. Olliger, freight car builder, and M. Stanczyk, car repairman at the Pennsylvania east car shop, have resumed their duties after being absent on account of accidents, the former having injured his eyes, and the latter his back.

O. W. Miller, of the hand screw department of the General Electric works, has just located his family in a handsome new house, just purchased on Thompson avenue. Mr. Miller is an admirer of the Belgian hare and will raise a number of them, now that he has the room for that purpose.

Miss Grace Rowley, the stenographer who will succeed Miss Carmelia Shader in the office of Stockkeeper W. H. Fell, is the induction department of the General Electric works, has gone to Auburn to spend Thanksgiving with her parents. Miss Shader left this afternoon for Anderson, where she will take employment in railway offices. She has been at the General Electric works about two months.

INJURIES FATAL TO MERCER COUNTY MAN

Amos Marbaugh Dies from Hurts Sustained When Horses Run Away.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 28.—Amos B.
Marbaugh, aged 43, prominent farmer of Center township, Mercer county, O., is dead following injuries received soon after dinner yesterday, resulting from a runaway of his team.
Mr. Marbaugh had gone to the field to husk corn soon after dinner. The horses became unmanageable and in trying to stop them, from his place on the ground, he was struck on the head and side by the wagon. Among other injuries inflicted, his right leg was broken. Physicians, one from this city and one from Monroe, made him as comfortable as possible, the leg being set and his other injuries attended to. Hemorrhage of the brain, however, ensued, and he lapsed into unconsciousness, death resulting several hours later.

HIT BY TRACTION CAR.

Frank Reffe Is Killed in Accident Near Linn Grove.

Decatur, Ind., Nov. 28.—Jumping from an automobile truck on which he was riding and which he thought would be hit by a freight car on the B. & C. C. Frank Reffe, 43 years old, unmarried, was instantly killed. He jumped directly in front of the car and was cut in two.

Reffe was employed by Wes Hoffman, contractor, and had been working on the township schoolhouse near the scene of the accident, two and a half miles east of Linn Grove. The B.
& C. C. traction line is being operated by Thomas Flynn, junk dealer, who recently purchased the property at receiver's sale. Motorman Firman Rose, Conductor Noah Lindsey and Brak-man Harry Marsh were in charge of the car.

TRIAL HALTED BY FIGHT.

Blacksmith and Ex-Pagist. Both Witnesses, Are Fined by Court.

Hartford City, Ind., Nov. 28.—John Price, a Montpelier druggist, was found guilty of selling liquor illegally and was fined $100 and sentenced to thirty days in jail. The jail sentence was suspended.
The trial was halted for some time while a one-round fight was staged just outside the court room by Dan Davis, ex-pugilist, and Wiley Lawson, blacksmith, the former a witness for the state, and the latter for the defense. Lawson kept insisting that Davis had not told the truth while he was on the stand. Davis finally invited Lawson outside and knocked him down. When the fight was over several minutes had elapsed, and the court adjourned to look for the witnesses. Lawson was fined $25 for contempt of court, and Davis was fined for assault and battery.

AN EXPENSIVE HUNT.

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 28.—It cost
Charles Hoff $32.50 and Renn Luger
$33.40 to come from their homes near Van Buren, in Grant county, to Wayne township, Huntington county, to hunt.
They failed to ask permission and the road supervisor of the district filed charges against them. That farmers who wish to blow out stumps, doing the work inside and on their own land, must have licenses even to buy the explosive, is the statement of Glen Brown, clerk of the Huntington circuit court, who has been appointed explosives licensing agent for the county by the bureau of mines. The federal statute, which was passed at the last session of the congress, requires licenses to handle, sell or even possess any explosives except shotgun shells and small arms cartridges.

FIRE AT WARSAW.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—A fire that might have resulted disastrously for a considerable section of Warsaw, broke out in the basement of the Haymond building, in the part occupied by the Warsaw Candy Kitchen on Tuesday morning, about 2 o'clock. That it took considerable fighting to extinguish the blaze is shown by the fact that there was still so much water in the basement Tuesday forenoon, that it was necessary to have rubber boots to get around therein. It is reported that the fire originated from an electric motor wire, in the basement. The south end of the basement joists are badly burned and a hole burned in the floor, about four feet in diameter.

VAN WERT MEN INDICTED.

Van Wert, O., Nov. 28.—The grand jury in the United States court at Toledo has returned indictments against Joseph Balyeat and Walter Brown, of Union township, on charges that they threatened the life of President Wilson. The acts of disloyalty are alleged to have occurred last summer and since that time the men have been under $5,000 bond. The defendants are members of a socialist band that the county officials have been watching for several months.

APPROPRIATION FOR BAND.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—One of the main difficulties, that the Warsaw band has had to face has been financial trouble. They haven't had enough money. Yet they have the material and ability for the making of one of the best bands in northern Indiana.
Recognizing that fact the city council has voted that from December 1, 1917, and following the band should as long as they maintained an efficient organization be allowed $50 per month by the city.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—The city council has instructed the city attorney to keep in touch with the matter of the petition of the Warsaw Gas company for an increase in rate, and asked that he be prepared to represent the city at the coming hearing of this question before the public service commission.

PRANK CAUSES ARREST.

Rosamoke, Ind., Nov. 28.—Two Roanoke boys allowed their peculiar sense of humor to get them in bad when they placed a traffic guide on the interurban tracks which caused damage to a car the following morning. They were arrested.

KOSCIUSKO WOMAN DEAD.

Warsaw, Ind., Nov. 28.—Miss Ellen Pound, a farmer, is dead at her home four miles northeast of Warsaw following an illness of several months. She was 69 years old.

CHEER UP! HERE'S A
$4.95 TURKEY DINNER

Cranberry Sauce, "Stuffin'" and Other "Fixin's" Are Included.

Contrary to all expectations, after delving in the archives of the past, it is found that there is no occasion for a fit of the "blues" over Thanksgiving dinner prospects. So much has been heard about high prices that it had begun to appear to be impossible to have a real, old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner for anything short of a small fortune, such as a full week's salary. But it will be possible for the family of ordinary size to have a Thanksgiving dinner with turkey, cranberry sauce "stuffin'" and all the other "fixin's" for the sum of $4.95.
Sounds like a bargain sale price, doesn't it? Bug to show that there is nothing "phony" about it a menu is given below that can be filled in every detail at any of the downtown groceries at the prices quoted.

The amounts given are intended to provide for at least four people.
Cranberries, one pint.....$0.10
Potatoes (white)......15
Sweet potatoes......10
Butter, one-half pound.....25

Total with four-pound duck.....3.10

Last year the same dinner would have cost just 50 cents less, and before the war, in 1912 or 1913, it would have cost $1 less.

KEEPS GIRL IN SILKS WITH STOLEN ARTICLES

Fred McCoy Starts in a 100
Per Cent. Profit Business Enterprise.

Fred McCoy, colored, has solved the high cost of keeping a "gal" problem.
McCoy has been in the employ of the Paris ready-to-wear store for more than a year and confessed Tuesday to stolen various articles of woman's clothing continually during this period.
Some of the stolen articles were sold at a low price, but a considerable amount of it went to clothe his "gal," a recent arrival from Mobile, Ala. The stolen goods found in McCoy's rooms have been recovered, but the colored girl refused to give up her gifts. Mc-Coy claimed that the waists and skirts were sent into the basement in supposedly empty boxes by careless clerks, but most of the articles still had the price marks upon them indicating that they had been in stock. The lot which included silk waists, and skirts, combination suits, etc., is valued at more than $50. Upon his plea of guilty he was given $10 and costs and 150 days on the Indiana state farm.

PULLS SYMPATHY GAG.

Roy Pollock convicted of having stolen lead pipe and copper scraps from the Herman Tapp barn, was let go. Pollock had his wife in court, and because of her sobs and the fact that the man has several small children caused the continuance.

James O'Neil, a crippled loiterer, was rather sullen and was given until December 4 to grow more genial.

HUNTINGTON BOUND OVER.

On his plea of guilty to the charge of passing a bad check on the Rich hotel, Ernest Huntington was bound over to the circuit court. Huntington with his wife had been stopping at the Rich hotel. Growing short of funds he cashed a check for $20 on a Detroit bank. Part of the check paid for board and room while he took the remainder in cash. Huntington claims that he will inherit money from his father's estate within a short time and give this as an excuse.

SHOOTS AT CHICKEN THIEF.

Roy Stapleton, living at the corner of Florence and Ethel streets, went gunning for chicken thieves Tuesday evening, and believes that he was successful. Stapleton discovered a thief in his coop at 6 o'clock and fired at him. He is positive that he hit the man in the leg, although he kept on running. None of the chickens are missing.

BEHEVED INSANE.

Police Matron Winch was called to 212 East Williams street Tuesday afternoon, where she found Sarah Ann Montgomery, aged 73 years, in a room filled with smoke. The aged woman had built a roaring fire in a cook stove and had removed all the lids. She was taken to the county infirmary where her condition will be investigated.

STRONGER MEN
TAKE THE LEAD

They Have Nerves of Iron and Real Red Fighting Blood

Vital force is the material from which leaders in all walks of life are made. It is well worth getting and holding.

The health and nerve of the athlete is what Nature intended every man and woman to have.

The blood of an athlete is pure and red, a strong heart pumps and drives it through his body. No wonder that every inch of his system is filled with energy and health, his nerves like iron, spirits high, hard tasks a pleasure and life one song of joy.

A leading Doctor says, "Everyone should feel this way. That if you are not red blooded, are nervous, all run down and on your last legs, for you to build up your blood and nerves with exercise, fresh air, nourishing food and Nature's great prescription, Phosphated Iron, a real blood and nerve builder."

Then you will be there with vim and push to easily do the work that you now do on your nerves alone.

He also says, "Phosphated Iron feeds the blood cells with iron and nerve force, and that leading specialists are now using it successfully all over the country, that it has sprung into almost instant popularity with the better class of doctors as one of the few remedies they can depend on to produce results."

Special Notice—To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we put up in capsules only, so do not allow dealers to substitute any pills or tablets. For sale in Fort Wayne by Meyer Bros., four stores, also D. & N. Pharmacy—Advertisement.

Winter Cloak of Snowy Ermine

BETTY BROWN.

The use of ermine was once thought to be restricted to the robes of royalty or the leaders in the legal profession but nowadays it appears as trimming on the gowns of ladies who never dreamed of titles and constructs whole cloaks for beautiful feminine persons who have only a speaking acquaintance with judges.

The lovely garment in the picture is a full-length coat of the costly fur. Its snowy expanse is broken effectively by ornamental rows of the small yellow and black ermine tails.

The shawl collar and broad sleeves mark it for evening wear only.

It is lined with gold and white brocade silk.

With the government urging fair womanhood to save the wool for "the boys" the wearing of purple and fine linen, to say nothing of silks and peltry, becomes a patriotic duty to those who can afford them. Here is shown a luxurious coat of deep blue chinchilla, showing the new deep collar so much in vogue this season in fur coats.

Bead Embroidered Gown Is Tasteful

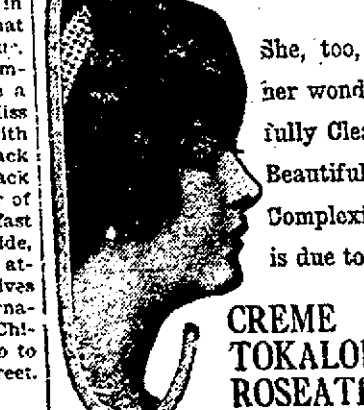

BETTY BROWN.

At least one afternoon gown—and as many more as purse can buy—is the desire of every well-dressed woman. For women now enjoy most of their social activities in the afternoon.

The gown shown here is most successful in its combination of taste and simplicity. Pano velvet is the basic material and it is effectively embroidered in opaque white beads. The low-cut neck, crepe sleeves, and tasseled crepe collar adds lightness, and the tiny bustle fold gives the last touch of smartness.

BRITISH OFFICER TO SPEAK AT GARRETT

Methodist Sunday School to Hold Patriotic Service Sunday.

[Special to The Sentinel.]

Garrett, Ind., Nov. 28.—The Methodist Sunday school of this city have arranged a very interesting meeting for Sunday morning at the regular Sunday school hour. The day will be observed as patriotic day by the school and everything of a patriotic nature will be given. The main attraction for the Sunday school hour will be the address to be given by General Brown, a British soldier, who is acting in the capacity of recruiting officer for the state of Indiana, in behalf of his country. General Brown has won his laurels on the battlefields, having entered the army as a private soldier, and his splendid record shows him to be worthy of the title won. He will relate a very interesting story of the great world war and will tell us many things that our own boys would tell us if they were here. Special music will be given at this time also, and the morning program will be of such a nature that none can afford to miss it.

Garrett Short Items.

The Thanksgiving service will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 at the Methodist Episcopal church, the Rev. Earl Naus, of the Church of Christ, delivering the sermon. Everyone is urged to at least have one member of the family present at this service.

The Hiawatha Campfire girls gave a surprise party last evening in honor of their president, Miss Florence Cobler's seventeenth birthday. The regular weekly meeting was held at the campfire headquarters in the city hall, at the close of which the members departed hurriedly for their homes. The president was detained for a few moments to transact some business and accompanied the guardian to the home of Miss Sabina Rees on a pretense of business. Upon their arrival they found the thirteen members of the camp and a fine pot luck supper with the birthday cake occupying an important place, awaiting them. Miss Cobler has made a very efficient president and her efforts in behalf of the camp are greatly appreciated.

The congregation of the Church of Christ are making arrangements for a big revival meeting to begin Dec. 2, in the pastorate of Rev. Earl Naus, Georgia Tyner, of La Fountain, Ind., will direct the music during the revival.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Clevenger returned last evening from a week's visit at Mt. Sterling, O.

She states that he frequently told her that he hated her. She claims that he is not a fit person to have the custody of their one child, Harold, aged 9, and is asking the court for the care of this child, $5,000 alimony and $60 a month for the support of the child. She adds that the doctor has a real estate valued at $15,000 and has a large income, while she has nothing but her household furnishings. The case has attracted a great deal of attention owing to the prominence of the couple. Mrs. Kramer's home was at Indianapolis before her marriage.

States that he is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and has served in the Philippines. Both of his feet are paralyzed. IT'S A DUTY TO SAVE WAR-WINNING FATS.

In a bulletin issued by one of the state colleges on the food conservation problem called, "A dozen and one ways of saving fats," the thirteenth item is: "Make soap from fats which cannot be eaten."

This is not as difficult as it sounds. Gone is the heavy iron kettle which caused soap making to be such a back-breaking affair. In its place we have light and safe enameled ware, which cannot be affected by the action of the alkali. Less uneatable fats accumulate. When enough are on hand to fill an enameled ware preserving kettle about two-thirds full, put on a moderate fire, and cook until all is a smooth mass. Then stir in concentrated lye, according to the directions which come on all packages. Five cents worth of this lye will be enough for a large kettle of soap. Remove from the fire and set away to stiffen.

Do your shopping before 6 o'clock tonight. We close at 6 o'clock and all day tomorrow.

Stays Indoors to Complete Labor on Address to National Congress.

Washington, Nov. 28.—President Wilson continued work today on his address to the opening of congress, which will be delivered in person, as usual, next Tuesday.

As yet the address is in a rough draft and probably will not be printed in finished form until very shortly before delivery. On that account it probably will not be supplied very much in advance to the newspapers, as is the general custom.

The capital today lay under a blanket of rapidly melting snow and slush and the president abandoned his usual morning round of golf to remain in his study at work on the address writing it himself, as usual, on his own typewriter.

There have been so no intimations from official sources so far of what subjects the president will emphasize. It has been his opening address to congress to the general state of the union and treat special subjects in special addresses. In view, however, of the many pressing subjects confronting congress it is probable that he may refer to some of them in a special way.

Cyrus E. White, of the Kansas legislature, saw the president today to ask for army exemption for farm laborers. Class exemption of that sort heretofore has been denied.

HER PHYSICAL ILLS TO BLAME

Mrs. De Saulles Had a Bad
Thyroid Gland and It Affected Mind.

ONCE SHE HAD HER SKULL FRACTURED

That Also Contributed to the Murder of Her Gay
Young Husband.

Mineola, N. Y., Nov. 28.—What is expected to be a lengthy battle between medical experts over Mrs. Lillian De Saulles who claimed that her physical condition produced a relapse of accountability when she shot her divorced husband, was initiated in the young woman's trial on a charge of murder in supreme court here today.

Dr. J. S. Sherman Wight, Mrs. De Saulles' physician since the tragedy, testified that the patient's condition following the shooting indicated that she was suffering from encephalopathy of the thyroid gland—from an inadequacy of the secretions of this gland. This brings about an inactivity of the vital processes. Dr. Wight testified.

Mrs. De Saulles' attorneys claim the condition outlined by the physician produces a brain and nerve center condition which eventually ends in a "hopeless mental infirmity." This disease, the defendant's lawyers terms hypochondria. This name, however, was not used by Dr. Wight.

An X-ray photograph of Mrs. De Saulles' head which Dr. Wight claims shows a depression of a portion of one of the skull bones just above the forehead was introduced in evidence. This portion of bone was dislodged, the defense claims, when Mrs. De Saulles sustained a fracture of the skull years ago. It presses upon the brain; it is declared, and may have been contributory in bringing about the temporary loss of responsibility during which she asserts she fired the revolver shots in her husband's home on Long Island the night of August 3. Flaws in Suzanne Montau's version of the tragedy were developed during her cross-examination. Mrs. Montau is Mrs. De Saulles' maid and accompanied her to the "box," De Saulles' home, the night of the shooting.

The discrepancies in her story appeared upon comparison of her answers made today to those contained in a deposition taken shortly after August 3.

The witness clung to her assertions, however, that Mrs. De Saulles went to her former husband's home for the purpose of getting her son; that her mistress did not say, "I'm glad I did it; I hope he dies," just after the tragedy and that De Saulles was facing his former wife when he was shot.

to Provide.

In addition to a divorce Mrs. Sechler is asking for $1,000 alimony and a restraining order to prevent him from drawing out the money he has hoarded away in a bank at Uniondale, Wells county, and also to prevent him from molesting her at her rooms in the Bank block. National Council Will be Asked to Co-Ordinate
Money Campaigns.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 28.—Appeals for "funds or property to aid in or alleviate the consequences of the war" will be censored by committees representing the Indiana state council of defense on state-wide campaigns and county councils on local solicitations, as a result of the action of the Indiana state council of defense today.

The report of special committee headed by A. W. Brady, presented a comprehensive plan and added the suggestion that the council of national defense consider the matter of co-ordinating and consolidating national campaigns for money. The suggestion was endorsed and will be forwarded to Washington at once. "In the case of the broader movements, such as the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. and the camp recreation funds, approval is given by the president, the secretary of war or the secretary of the navy. In those cases no other approval is, of course, required," the report says.

"There is, however, another large class of appeals for direct contributions of different grades of worthiness and wisdom." The report provides for a committee of five from the state council and a similar committee in each county to have voluntary authority to pass upon all such enterprises except such as are limited to individual, fraternal or church societies.

A resolution asking Provost Marshal General S. H. Crowder to consider the wisdom of the exemption of farmers engaged in productive labor was presented to the council by Isaac D. Straus and referred to the committee on military affairs.

Evans Woolen, fuel administrator, reported on behalf of himself and his advisory committee that they deemed it unwise to ask the attorney general for a new interpretation of the miners' permit law, but that under existing conditions they recommended that permits, the issue of which is restricted to three days per month at fixed periods, be issued at any time. This is to enable operators to employ itinerant miners who are qualified. The recommendation to operators and miners union officials for their consideration.

MILITARY NEWS NO MORE ENLISTMENTS AFTER CERTAIN DATE

Major Ryan Sends Communication Explaining the Enlistment Limit.

Postmaster E. C. Miller is in receipt of the following communication from Major Ryan on the recent draft measure:

"From and after December 15 all men within the draft age can not volunteer their services for the army. All those young men within the draft age who desire to volunteer must do so in sufficient time to permit them to reach Indianapolis some time on December 13, as the enlistment of an applicant must be entirely accomplished prior to midnight of the 14th, and in order to do this it is necessary for the recruiting officer to send the applicant to Fort Thomas, Ky., at which place the enlistment is accomplished, and if applicants do not arrive at Indianapolis before December 13 their enlistment cannot be accomplished by midnight of the 14th, and they will therefore lose their right to volunteer. From and after December 15 the only person eligible to volunteer for the army are those under the draft age, over the draft age, and those young men who have become 21 years of age since June 8, 1917. No person can be accepted in the army over 40 years of age. The family allowance, which is authorized in the war risk insurance bill recently passed by congress, is effective for those who volunteer as well as others, and a married man with one child entering the service, his wife would receive $40 per month while he is away.

"Every branch of the service is now open with the exception of the cavalry. The army needs, in addition to fighting men, all kinds of tradesmen and mechanics for the non-combatant forces, together with the men who have no trade, and when a man is placed in the non-combatant force he will not be transferred to the combatant."

Both the mayor's veto and Samuel M. Foster's letter of protest were unnecessary in the Fort Wayne Land and Improvement company matter. In 1909 the improvement company deeded the city a strip of land along Edgewater avenue for park purposes. A short time ago the company decided that it had given away more land than it had intended to and requested the city to deed a portion of it back to them. The mayor vetoed this move and Mr. Foster, hearing of it wrote a letter denouncing the action.

Investigation proves that the entire controversy was unnecessary, as the disputed plot was not included in the deal. The land in question faces the Maumee river from the west. The improvement company has a building on this property and has been collecting rent, paying taxes and all other assessments. The clause from the deed which proves that the plot facing the west is not included is as follows: "All unplatted tracts of land lying south of Edgewater avenue, between Edgewater avenue and the Maumee river, in Lakeside Park addition."

GIRL CONFEDERATE OF BANDITS IS HARDENED

Toledo, Nov. 28.—Without a trace of remorse, twenty-year-old Wanda Urbatis, a pretty telephone girl in the office of the Huebner brewery today confessed she knew of the crime and said that under pretext of going to a drug store for tooth ache medicine, she passed the bandits on the street and urged them to postpone the robbery because the bookkeeper, Anton Cames, would not have as much money with him as the bandits expected him to have.

According to the police the girl told them she had informed her male companions it would be better for them to wait until some future time and the haul would be larger. She said her companions had promised they would wait.

NATIONAL FIGURES WILL BE PRESENT

Arouse Country to the Duty of Patriots.

Indianapolis, Nov. 28.—Henry Van Dyke, United States minister to Belgium; Bishop Williams, of Detroit, who has just returned from a trip to the western battle front as a representative of the Red Cross; F. C. Walcott, personal aide to Herbert Hoover, federal food administrator, and Arthur C. Bestor, chairman of the speakers' bureau of the federal committee on public information, have been definitely engaged to address the Indiana war conference to be held in Indianapolis Dec. 13 and 14. The dates for the conference were fixed and other details discussed at a meeting of the Indiana state council of defense today.

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, of the national women's council; George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information, and other celebrities are said by Prof. J. J. Pettijohn, chairman of the Indiana speakers' bureau, to be trying to arrange to be present at this conference, the first of a national series arranged under the direction of the council of national defense. The national council has agreed to send a member of President Wilson's war cabinet to Indianapolis for the meeting. Secretary of War Newton D. Baker having found it impossible to do here, it is expected either Secretary of State Lansing or Secretary of the Interior Lane will come.

The conference will be featured by a mass meeting to be addressed by Minister Van Dyke on the afternoon of the 13th and by the cabinet member the same evening. Governor James P. Goodrich, under whose general direction all Indiana war is now being done, will issue invitations to work-workers in every county in the state to be present both for the mass meetings and the sectional institute meetings which will be held all day and be addressed by national figures with authoritative messages from Washington.

MILITARY FOOTBALL

WILL BE SERVED

Ohio State Champions to Play Camp Sherman, of Chillicothe, Ohio.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—With the "Big Ten" season ended, military football—a brand of gridiron sport distinctly new to middle west followers of the game—will be served in appetizing combinations on Thanksgiving day and Saturday. Seven games will be played between inter-service, inter-camp and Western Conference elevens on the two days. As proceeds of the contests are to be donated to soldier funds more than $100,000 is expected to be raised. Here is the Thanksgiving day program:

Ohio State, champions of the "Big Ten," vs. Camp Sherman, of Chillicothe, O., at Columbus.

Great Lakes Naval Training Station vs. Fort Sheridan Officers at Stags field, Chicago.

Illinois vs. Camp Funston at Fort Riley, Kan.

This is the schedule for Saturday: Washington & Jefferson vs. Camp Sherman at Toledo.

Purdue vs. Camp Zachary Taylor, at Louisville.

Camp Dodge vs. Camp Funston at Omaha.

Camp Grant vs. Camp Custer at Stags field, Chicago.

Popular favorite of years ago, who made names for themselves playing on college teams, will be in the line-ups of the soldier and navy elevens, also the games promise to carry inspiring military spirit. Military bands, society groups, generals and men in public will contribute to the scenes.

What Ohioans regard as the choicest football menu offered on Thanksgiving will be played at Columbus. Neither the strong Camp Sherman eleven nor Ohio State has been defeated this season, and it looks like an even money game, with the soldiers stacking individual prowess against Ohio State's machine work.

All reserved seats have been sold, boxes alone being auctioned for more than $11,000. Almost 20,000 probably will witness the battle, including crack platoons of drafted soldiers which will give exhibitions of progress of the national army training as a part of the afternoon program. Proceeds amounting to probably $30,000 or $40,000, will be placed in trust to be used as an emergency fund for the Ohio selectives when they go to France.

Camp Sherman's eleven is made up of many former college stars, most of them officers in the national army. Among them are Captain Edmunds, old Michigan star; Martin, Yale center; Monk, of Cornell; Goebel, Yale; Gardfield, of Williams; Seovill, Yale; Elchenlaub, Notre Dame; Overbaugh, Brown, and many others.

"Chick" Hanley, this wonderful Ohio State backfield man and All-American player, is the stellar performer of the varsity team. The university eleven probably will take the field just as it did in games which won for it the "Big Ten" championship.

With both line-ups studied with college football luminaries of the last ten years, the Great Lakes Naval Training station and the Fort Sheridan Officers' elevens will battle on Stags field, an important army-navy gridiron struggle. Judging from the advance sale and the general enthusiasm at both camps, thirty thousand fans will see the service match.

The Fort Sheridan line-up sounds more like an All-American eleven than a training camp aggregation. The line-up will be made up of Benbrook, Michigan; Altimindinger, Michigan; and Henning, Michigan Aggies, at the ends; Thomas and Ver Webe, Harvard, at tackles; and Paul Des Jardien, Chicago, center. Wheaton, Yale, and Turner, Dartmouth, will alternate at quarter; Jimmy Craig, Michigan; "Dolly" Gray, Chicago, and Pilska, Notre Dame, at the halves; and Jesse Spalding, Yale, and "Ski" Sauer, Chicago, at full.

Benbrook was picked generally as All-American guard in 1911 and 1912. Jimmy Craig earned the same honor as a half back in 1913. Joe Pilska was an honorary all-western selection at Notre Dame for two seasons, while Paul "Shorty" Des Jardien was chosen by Walter Camp as center on his All-American team of 1913 and 1914. Jesse Spalding captained Yale in 1912 and Wheaton coached the Blue in 1909.

The sailors will be led by "Pit" Smith, 1917 captain-elect of the University of Michigan team. Other Wolverines on the squad are Right Half Back Raymond, Tackle Hildner and End Loucks. Blacklock represents the Michigan Aggies, while Pottinger, center, upholds the Cardinal of Wisconsin. Other capable gridlers are Allen,

Eddie Rickenbacker Finds Autos Too Slow

They can't make 'em too fast for Eddie Rickenbacker. American speed demon now in France with General Pershing's forces.

Rick went as an automobile driver and for a time was attached to Pershing's personal staff as his driver, but this was too slow for the speed merchant and he asked to be transferred to the aviation corps, where he could get some real speed.

The transfer was made and Eddie entered an aviation training camp in the south of France. It took him six weeks to complete the course which usually occupies four months of training and instruction, and Eddie is now a regular aviator.

Illinois; Cozelman, Washington university; Robins, Missouri, and Johnson, Pittsburgh, and Proctor, Nebraska.

The game will be a considerable military spectacle because Col. Ryan, of Fort Sheridan; Capt. W. A. Moffett, of Great Lakes, and their staffs, and thousands of sailors and soldiers will be present. The proceeds will go to recreation funds.

Coach Zuppke and his Illinois eleven will meet their old gridiron hero, "Potsy" Clark, now an officer in the army, when the Illinois and the Camp Funston elevens clash at the Kansas camp. Clark is quarterback of the army eleven.

The contest will be a tough one for Illinois, which went through a bruising battle with Minnesota last Saturday, but the men are anxious to make a good showing against the soldiers. The game will be a test of west and east coaching, as Paul Withington, of Harvard, is in charge of the army squad. Withington coached Wisconsin last season and the Badgers and Illinois fought to a scoreless tie.

The Camp Dodge and Camp Funston divisional football elevens clash at Omaha next Saturday. In its first regularly scheduled contest, the Dodge eleven defeated an independent "all star" team of Des Moines last Friday, 24 to 0, and several old university men displayed the same dash and ability that won them fame in scholastic days.

John L. Griffith, director of athletics at this cantonment, has not announced the definite line-up. In the end positions, the probable starters will be McCormick and Carberry, the former captain of the eleven and one time University of South Dakota star. Carberry, a former West Pointer, has shown his worth as a running mate.

The tackles have several gridiron celebrities to draw upon, with Mayer, one of the best tackles the University of Minnesota ever developed, as foremost candidate. Cook, a minor college man, also has shown creditably at tackle, while Whitmer, former Grinnell (Iowa) college player, probably will play center.

In the backfield, collegiate stars abound. At quarterback there is Moss, former Ames, Iowa, star; Robertson, a freshman player at Dartmouth last year, has first claim on the fullback job, while at halves several men are about on a par, including Thomas, former Iowa star; Derr, old Pennsylvania luminary; Jones, an ex-Wisconsin player, and Sarff, late of Drake university.

Reports received from Omaha indicate that a record crowd will witness the game. Two auction sales of seats on the livestock exchange in Omaha netted $3,600, thirteen boxes selling for $1,100, ranging in price from $40 to $100 for a box. Other seats sold brought in $2,500.

Business men of Omaha are pushing the seat sales, and hundreds of dollars' worth of tickets are being sold through personal solicitation.

ANCIENT FOES WILL MEET ON THURSDAY

Valley Championship Reposes for a Year at Lincoln With Nebraskans.

The valley championship reposes for a year at Lincoln with the Nebraskans. Their selection of the Kansas and Missouri teams as the two elevens to be met in their 1917 conference games was opportune and their choice of Kansas exceedingly well taken. The Jayhawkers had the strongest team in the conference outside of Nebraska and four periods was enough for the Cornhuskers to annex the title after their gambol with Missouri on the preceding Saturday.

Missouri Valley conference football this year has attracted more attention than usual probably due to the fact that the sport was abandoned by several universities of the east and the followers of the sport turned their eyes to the west. By comparison Nebraska ranks with the greater teams of the nation, being probably one of the fastest aggregations of football performers west of the Mississippi river.

Schellenberg, the star back, made a place for himself in Nebraska traditions and he was assisted by Captain Shaw, Cook and Dobson.

Turning to the Thanksgiving day contests, Nebraska hopes to win from Syracuse, although it will not be either eleven's game until the final whistle is blown. It will be the Valley's best offering for the day in the pastime. Reports from Lincoln indicate that the Nebraskans are not overconfident but that Coach Stewart will have his men in the finest fighting trim of the season. The teams have not played a common opponent so that there is no basis for a comparison on the point of scores. However, the Nebraskans have had a trifle heavier schedule and are given the position of the favorite as a matter of sectional pride by Valley followers.

The Kansas-Missouri game, which each year takes on a civil war coloring to the older alumni of the two colleges on the basis of "before the battle," indications seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of the Kansas. It will be a case of the team holding the second place in the conference averages meeting one of the weakest teams of the circuit. However, the Missourians do not look at their chances in that light, but point to the fact that Kansas several times has completed successful seasons with all pre-game indications in its favor only to lose because of the "fight" of a weaker team. The cripples on Coach Schulte's eleven are all being groomed for the fray and Putnam, a back of last year's eleven who has not reported this year, is out for the wind-up. The Missouri coach is going to be pressed to the utmost to perfect a defense against the heavy Kansas drives.

Ames will meet the Drake eleven, whose entire season has been one of discouragement. The Ames team, on the other hand, has only two defeats on her record, having been beaten by Kansas and the University of Iowa, representatives of the "Big Ten," and is tied in point of numerals with the Kansas for second place in the conference. Because of these conditions the heavier Ames team is expected to win by a lopsided score.

The meeting of Washington university and the St. Louis university elevens is a renewal of hostilities between "ancient foes" and involves a city championship. Just who will come out with the long end of the score is questionable.

The conference before the Turkey day tangles now stands with Nebraska at the forefront, Kansas second because of her defeat of Ames, although both of the schools have the same basis, won two and lost one; Ames third, Kansas Aggies fourth, Missouri fifth, Washington sixth, and Drake seventh.

FAST QUINTET CHOSEN AT CONCORDIA COLLEGE

This Year's Teams Bid Fair to Lay Up the Best Record of Recent Years.

The Concordia basket ball team has been announced by Captain "Big Boy" Heine. The personnel of the team follows: Dorn and Trinklein, forwards; Schuessler, center; Heine and Polster, guards, and Matthies and Trautman, utility.

This team is one of the best that ever represented the local school and they hope to make the best record this season of recent years. Dorn, at forward, is the third member of his family to play on the college varsity and he bids fair to outstrip the glory of his brothers. Trinklein is a newcomer but he is one of the fastest passers and speediest players ever developed at the school. Schuessler, at center, was the star of the seconds last season and is now playing the best game of his career. Captain Heine is well known from his record in former seasons and his teammate, Polster, with his size, looks good to stop anything. Matthies and Trautman are both excellent players and may be expected to fill a hole in a dependable manner at any time.

The local season will open December 7 when the Mennonite college team, of Bluffton, O., will appear. Each team has won a game, the local winning two years ago and the visitors last season, and this third contest should be a battle royal.

At the opening Thursday, Dec. 13, the first game will be between the Knitting mill and the Bowser squad, and the second contest will be a match between Pennys and Dudio. According to the advance dope given out by all the teams this season should be a thriller. At the meeting Tuesday night it was decided to use the same rules as last year (Spaulding.)

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Industrial league at the Commercial club Tuesday night final plans were formed for the 1917 schedule. According to the arrangement the playing season will last for twelve weeks with double-headers to be played each Wednesday night. Each team will play in the opening game three times during the season.

crops $2,500,000,000 and animals and animal products, including butter, cheese and eggs, about $5,000,000,000.

This year's values are based on preliminary production estimates and prices paid to producers Nov. 1, as reported by the department of agriculture. An official estimate of the principal farm crop values will be made by the bureau of crop estimates on Dec. 11.

Corn Still King.

Corn, the country's greatest crop, accounts for about one-third of the increased total farm products value of this year. It is estimated at about $1,000,000,000, compared with $2,200,000,000 the five years, 1910-14. In point of quantity corn this year saw its largest production, being 66,000,000 bushels more than 1912 record crop. Next in point of value comes cotton with a crop value at about $1,351,000,000, accounting for more than one-tenth of the year's total value increase.

Hay is the next most valuable crop, with a total of $1,290,000,000, compared with $1,162,000,000 last year and $1,056,000,000 in 1915.

Wheat, the fourth crop in point of value, and worth more than a billion dollars for the second time in American farming history. Its value is estimated at $1,320,000,000, compared with $1,025,765,000 last year, and $929,939,000 the average value of 1910-14 crops.

No other crop has reached the billion dollar total, although oats comes within $25,000,000 of that figure, being valued at $975,000,000, compared with $656,000,000 last year.

Potatoes passed the half billion dollar mark, with a total of $562,000,000, as compared with $447,063,000 last year.

Flaxseed is valued at $29,000,000 and rice at $33,000,000, both being less than last year in point of value, because of smaller production. Tobacco, a record crop, is valued at $249,000,000, compared with $169,000,000 last year, and $103,061,000, the 1910-14 average.

Striking increase in value is shown by the beans, onions, kaffirs and broom corn crops, all of which more than doubled last year's value. Beans are estimated at $120,000,000, compared with $45,000,000 last year, and $27,000,000 in 1915; onions at $19,341,000, compared with $9,852,000 last year and $7,381,000 in 1915; kaffirs, $123,000,000, compared with $53,260,000 last year, and $31,157,000 in 1915; and broom corn at $13,500,000, compared with $6,549,000 last year and $4,769,000 in 1915.

Was No Fun For Her In Russia Any More

TATIANA ROMANOFF

She's tired of Russia, is Tatiana, and who can blame her? If you were in her place you'd have beaten it too, even if you had to stage a mock marriage to escape, as they say he did.

She's a princess, rather—she was until her daddy, Nicky Romanoff lost out.

Then she became a prisoner, forbidden to leave Russia.

But she got away, she did, so the news dispatches say, and now she's coming to America to give lectures to aid a Russian relief work. If the war devils don't wave big bills in her face and persuade her to change her mind.

The picture shows her in the palm of the picture, the big event in the uniform of the Fourteenth regiment of Cossacks.

Meanwhile Gen. Kaledines, hetman of the Don Cossacks, who is reported to control the grain producing territory of southeastern Russia, is growing in power. Many army officers opposed to the Bolshevik regime have joined his forces, including members from the front. Government employees in Petrograd have refused to recognize the Bolsheviks and have been dismissed from office.

As the British press forward from the west they encounter more stubborn German resistance. Heavy fighting is in progress toward Fontaine Notre Dame, less than three miles from Cambrai, and near the village of Bourlon, both one mile northwest of Fontaine. Both these villages were occupied by the British last week only to be lost in the face of strong German counter attacks.

Gen. Byng's men, however, are making progress against the strongly reinforced enemy from whom more than 500 prisoners were captured Tuesday.

Undismayed apparently by the losses sustained in their fruitless efforts of the past two weeks to break the Italian line between the Brenta and the Piave rivers the Austro-Germans continue to hurl fresh troops against the defenders of the Venetian plains. The latest attempt was against the left wing along the Brenta valley. An entire division was used in an attempt to break the Italian defenses. The Germans attacked in mass formation but was unable to break the defense of the Italians.

Fear of a German threat that she would seize a base in Denmark should Norway permit the allies to obtain a base in her territory is reported to be behind the conference of the three Scandinavian kings in Christiania. From Copenhagen two weeks ago it was reported the rulers of Norway, Sweden and Denmark with their premiers and foreign ministers would meet in the Norwegian capital on Nov. 28. It is not disclosed whether hostility to Germany in Norway has reached such a stage that Germany believed Norway was about to give aid to the allies and to counteract such a possibility informed Denmark that if such a step was taken Germany would occupy Denmark as a counter measure. This is said to have brought about the recent conference between the kings of Sweden and Denmark as well as the present meeting.

German propaganda in Russia is increasing in intensity according to information received at the embassy here from the Russian ambassadors at Paris and Rome. Every effort they reported, is being made to misrepresent the attitude of the entente powers and that of the United States and misleading announcements of policy being spread in Russia and in other countries. In some circles it is believed the representatives of the allied powers now in Paris may have already served notice on the Lenin faction that any intercourse with Germany would be looked upon as severing relations. It was not apparent here if any such message had been sent.

HELP FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

In our open air school is saving someone else from the danger of contagion. Every man or woman treated in time to save her by isolation in our hospital protects every other man, woman and child with whom the patient may come in contact. Our fight is going on day-in and day-out. We must have $10,000 for the new burdens that war brings us in disarranging homes and removing heads of families or those helping to support their parents. Some men have been sent to camps who will not be able to stand up under the strain of the hard work and the incipient tuberculosis overlooked in the hurried medical examinations will spread and send these men home for to care for. The Boy Scouts raised $18,000 in a few weeks and we are asking the public for less money to continue a work that is just as important. We appeal to all the people because the benefit touches all the people.

A report of sales to date was not ready this morning, and will be made Friday. The seals have been placed on sale at the following stores: Wolf & Dessauer's, Rurde's Dry Goods Co., German-American Bank, Seavey Hardware Co., Mossman-Yarnelle & Co., Old National Bank, Fishback-Ellenwood, Citizens Trust, Pidgeon Millinery, Fort Wayne Saddlery Co., S. GERMANY READY FOR A TRUCE ON ALL THE FRONTS side and entered into negotiations with the German military authorities.

GO TO JOIN KALEDINES.

London, Nov. 28.—The military cadets and virtually all of the officers of the anti-Bolshevik troops in the Moscow district, according to the Petrograd correspondent of the Morning Post, have gone to join Gen. Kaledines, leader of the Cossacks, who is reported in control of most of southeastern Russia. Many hundreds of officers from regiments stationed in the rear and numbers from the front and virtually all the officers of the guard regiments, it is said, also have gone over to Gen. Kaledines.

Owing to the general disorganization and interruption of railroad, telegraph and postal service the correspondent says, it is extremely improbable that the elections to the constituent assembly will be held except in Petrograd and some other places. Interest in the election in the provinces is lukewarm.

ELECTIONS WERE QUIET.

London, Nov. 28.—Little excitement has attended the elections to the constituent assembly now being held in Petrograd, says the Petrograd correspondent of the Daily Mail in a dispatch dated Tuesday. He thinks that less than 50 per cent of those entitled to vote cast their ballots, but that perhaps another 10 per cent would vote before the polls closed Tuesday afternoon.

News from the army fronts, the correspondents, is contradictory, but apparently the vast mass of soldiers support the Lenin government.

Ensign Krylenko, the commissioner for war, has gone to Pskoff, where he has dismissed Gen. Tchermisoff, and given him command to a commissioner for the northern front.

The general army committee has telegraphed Krylenko advising him not to go to Mohilev, general headquarters, as it cannot hand over the command to an irresponsible person, but will itself continue in authority until the question of government is settled. The correspondent declares that it is impossible to say whether this is the resolve of the army itself.

General chaos, he adds, is spreading steadily and the extremists undoubtedly are gaining ground among the soldiers and the masses.

AMERICA WILL GIVE AID.

Petrograd, Monday, Nov. 26.—In response to representations that members of the railway union and their families were suffering from want of shoes, American Ambassador Francis B. Saypol, in speaking to the supply commissions of the ministry of communications and of the northern railways said that he was urging the immediate shipment of shoes contracted for in America.

Six hundred cars of provisions and equipment, congested at Moscow, are being rushed to the front. It is reported that enormous quantities of foodstuffs have been discovered in Petrograd where they were being hoarded by speculators.

FIFTH ARMY GOES OVER.

Petrograd, Nov. 27.—The Russian fifth army announced today that it purposes choosing parliamentarians to be sent to Germany. This is the second instance of an announcement of definite support of the Bolshevik program by the military, the first being the second army whose action was previously reported.

SMALL PERCENTAGE VOTED.

Petrograd, Monday, Nov. 26.—It is estimated that from thirty to thirty-five per cent of the voters entitled to vote for delegates to the constituent assembly cast their ballots yesterday. Among the voters many women were noted. The balloting was conducted in an orderly manner and apparently there were no attempts at coercion. The most active campaigners were the Bolsheviks, who employed play-carried arm motors, but the campaign was chiefly one of posters and house to house distribution of lists of candidates.

DETERMINED TO HOLD LINE.

Italian Headquarters in Northern Italy, Tuesday, Nov. 27.—A visit made today on the fighting ground at Monte Tomba, Monte Montefiore, and the mountains in the fighting zone in the north and the Piave line where it joins the mountain front, afforded opportunity to see this central point of the present huge struggle and obtain from officers at several division and brigade headquarters direct information in regard to the condition of affairs. The tour was made with a staff officer from headquarters and covered about one hundred miles with stops at the main points of fighting. General Garibaldi, commander of the famous Alpine brigade, declared the fighting had shown that the Italian troops could hold the line beyond any question. Speaking of the spirit of his men, he added: "If the enemy ever does get past, owing to superior generalship or superior strength of guns, it will be only over the dead bodies of our troops, for they are determined never to yield."

The roads leading to the battle front showed increasing masses of troops being brought up for concentration on the threatened lines. Much artillery was coming in. The men and horses seemed to be in good condition after the hard drive.

Miles of infantry moved forward, the ranks showing fresh and youthful troops. They wore steel helmets and were getting ready to go into action. Many had little pink boxes in their hands which looked like packages of candy, but when they were opened it was not candy which was seen, but long thin bullets which fit into the Italian rifles. Every cartridge belt was full of these pink boxes.

Passing headquarters of the fourth army, which holds the vital line between the Brenta and Piave rivers, a staff officer of Gen. Robilant, commander of the army, summed up the general situation as "satisfactory," the reports showing that the enemy was being held.

While the pressure of the Austro-German forces is still impetuous, at the same time they seem to have been worn down by heavy losses and the unexpected strength of the resistance they have encountered. This staff officer estimated the enemy losses as fully two or three times those of the Italians, as the defensive lines always have afforded greater shelter.

PREPARING NEW OFFENSIVE.

Rome, Nov. 28.—On the Asiago plateau, in the Primolano basin, at the north of Col della Beretta, and on the middle Piave," says today's Italian official statement, "our batteries in co-operation with bombardment flights have carried out concentrations of fire on enemy troops massed and in movement."

RAILS DEPRESSED BY GOVERNMENT PLANS

Prospect of Federal Regulation Makes Stocks Very Heavy.

New York, Nov. 28.—Heaviness marked the course of today's early trading on the stock exchange, standard issues tending toward lower levels. The proposed governmental regulation of transportation companies and overnight developments abroad prompted further selling. Recessions in active rails extended from substantial fractions to two points. United States Steel and other issues reacted 1 to 1 1/2 points. Liberty bonds were steady.

Industrials and shippings improved materially during the sluggish forenoon, but rails became increasingly heavy on nominal offerings. Pennsylvania duplicated its recent minimum of 46 and Baltimore & Ohio made a new low under 50. The strength of a few specialties, including Studebaker, was attributed to professional interests. Bonds were dull with Liberty 4s at 97.98 to 99 and the 2 1/2s at 99 to 99.12.

Corn of Past Few Days Has Commanded Good Returns

Because of Quality.

The prices at the various city markets showed a slight advance Wednesday. The hay and corn which has been reaching the markets during the past few days has been of exceptional quality and therefore gets a better price. Some corn has dropped as low as 90 cents a bushel because it did not have the quality. There are still a number of loads of baled hay reaching the markets, which are shipped to the government.

At the city scales Wednesday twenty loads of hay were received, ten loads were baled hay. The prices were $20 and $23 a ton. Seven loads of fine new corn brought top prices of $1.12 and $1.18 a bushel. Seven loads of oats brought prices ranging from 65 to 68 cents a bushel.

for a living in New York city is in the second act where Lucy, for her honor's sake struggles with the son of her wealthy employer. The son turns out to be the brother of this good and beautiful girl in later developments. Nearly crazed by the revelation, the young man is later converted into a good and useful citizen, but the girl well the company comes highly recommended to the Majestic for two performances on Thanksgiving.

Seat Sale Opens for May Robson.

The seat sale opens today at the Majestic for the engagement of May Robson in a new melodramatic farce "A Little Bit Old Fashioned" who will be the attraction at that play house.

The unconsidered wife of a successful New York attorney, who has earned the sobriquet "old-fashioned" through her whole-hearted devotion to others and consequent neglect of self, is the central figure in this delightful play of domestic life. How her despised and rejected assistance proves to be the moving factor which saves her husband's reputation is the main theme of "A Little Bit Old Fashioned" and it provides a succession of scenes which for their mirth-provoking quality have rarely been equaled.

May Robson, as the neglected wife, is at her best and makes the character so human that none can resist its appeal. Her manner of delivering the fanciful tale of "Three Bad Men" keeps the audience in a gale of laughter and her scene as a pseudo maid is a comedy jewel.

Augustus Pitou, who is presenting Miss Robson this season, has provided an exceptional cast of clever players to support the comedienne and furnished a beautiful production.

"Her Soldier Boy" at the Majestic Monday, Dec. 3.

After a season's engagement at the Astor theater, New York, the brilliant musical comedy, "Her Soldier Boy," has been sent on tour by the Messrs. "One Girl's Experience" the Thanksgiving Attraction.

As a play "One Girl's Experience" is acclaimed by the theatergoers as a tremendous success. It is fascinating mainly because the unexpected always happens. The big thing about the play is the character of Lucy Fairweather admirably played and wonderful in its childlike simplicity and trust. Her love for Taulso true and pure and so forgiving and reasonable, is in itself enough to commend the play to thinking people, especially to the people who love a love story sweetly told.

MISS BEATRICE DIAMOND

Is conceded to be the finest lady saxophonist in the world, coming to the Palace with Farrel Taylor & Co. Thanksgiving, on the big Keith fall festival show.

Kalman and the story was written by the well known Rida Johnson Young. The theme is a martial one dealing as it does with an episode of the world war. In a thrilling prologue a group of soldiers are shown holding a jolly entertainment in a ruined chateau just back of the trenches. An enemy's shell demolishes the building and in the glare of the explosion the hero can be seen supporting his wounded comrade. The succeeding scenes are located far from the battle front, and the individuals most concerned are a blind mother and her pretty daughter who are expecting the son and brother, from whom they have been separated for many years. The hero appears and is mistaken for the son in question, and it is only the eventual love which develops between the sister and the officer which brings about a disclosure of the truth. The providential return of the wounded son solves the difficulty in which the lovers find themselves. The fun of "Her Soldier Boy" is contributed by Teddy McLane, an American war correspondent, who has nothing to write about, owing to the big "blue pencil" of the horrid censor, who deletes all of his dispatches to America.

PARRELL TAYLOR AND CO.

Veteran Black Free Fuster on Thanksgiving Day Bill at Palace.

Farrell Taylor, the veteran black face comedian, whose negro dialect and stories have made two generations laugh, is bringing a brand new idea in vaudeville to the Palace for the Thanksgiving day bill opening Thursday afternoon. He is bringing two girls with him, a harpist and saxophonist, whose musical drill has been deftly woven into a little medley with Taylor's inimitable skill as a delineator of dark characters. Tom Davis and company in the skit "Checkmated" a little story within a story that will keep any audience guessing until the last minute for the answer, is another promising number on this bill.

The girly, girly act, The Fascinating Flirts, in which Harry Evans and a bevy of charming lassies are seen to good advantage; Chief Little Elk and his company of red skin vocalists; the Kreunka brothers, knockabout comedians; Nate Leipzig, the card trickster in some brand new illusions with a deck of ordinary playing cards and Davis and Moore, some song singers are others on this bill. There are three performances Thanksgiving.

Do your Christmas shopping early; select his gifts at the men's store. PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.
